Secrecy which has shrouded the suit of Senora Constance Casenove Lee Pastor y de Mora for the annulment of her marriage to Luis de Pastor, Spanish minister to China and Siam and former charge d'affaires of the Spanish legation in Washington, today was lifted by Justice Stafford, presiding in Equity Court No. 2, who permitted the testimony to be filed in the regular form.

ASSASSIN ATTEMPTS TO KILL HUERTA

LIND IN MEXICO CITY TO FORCE HUERTA TO QUIT

Belief in Capital That He Is to Aid O'Shaughnessy in "Verbal Representations—Does Not Call on President Upon Arrival From Vera Cruz—Refuses to Make Any Statement of His Business

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 7.—If John Lind, special envoy representing President Wilson, returned to Mexico City at the request of General Huerta, his early actions today did not indicate it.

Lind, with Captain Burnside, military aide of the Vera Cruz consulate, arrived here today and went at once to the same hotel where Lind had quarters during his first stay in the capital. Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires, called on Lind immediately and they were in conference several hours. Lind refused to make any statement, but he did not visit the national palace nor did he receive any Mexican officials.

It is conjectured here that Lind was sent back to Mexico City by the State Department to back up O'Shaughnessy in the "verbal representations" he is making to Huerta in an effort to persuade the dictator to resign.

DR. WILEY IS RICH ONCE MORE

Detectives Search Pure Food Expert's Office For Accounts of Big Fortune.

His! The heavy silence of the eleventh floor corridor of the Woodward building was disturbed by a gum shoe sliding stealthily over the marble floor. A spot of light sought the door numbers, while behind the electric dark lantern might be seen a crouching figure.

"Ha, discover-r-r-red!" The spot had found room No. 1129, where the name "Dr. Harvey W. Wiley" adorned the door panel. A skeleton key shot back the bolt and the gum shoe slid across the threshold.

The startling announcement was made by Dr. Wiley last night at a dinner of the Advertising Men's League in New York, and clerks in his office here today corroborated the fact, but refused to comment on the circumstance. Nothing was taken, but practically all of the food expert's papers were gone over and most of them scattered about the floor.

SKELETON GIVES MURDER PROOF

Hagerstown Boatman Disappeared Seven Years Ago. Officials Conceal Facts.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Nov. 7.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Martin Kinsell, an aged and well-to-do boatman on the Chesapeake and Ohio canal, who disappeared at Big Pool, this county, on December 10, 1906, and was believed to have been murdered for his money, after seven years seems to have been solved by the reported discovery of his skeleton in a corner of a barnyard on the old Squire T. Belt Johnson farm, about a mile from Big Pool.

The remains, it is said, have been identified by means of a pocketbook containing Kinsell's name which was found in the clothing. The authorities refuse to either confirm or deny the statement.

Bones Are Re-buried. When asked concerning the unearthing of the mystery today State Attorney Scott M. Wolfinger replied, "Nothing doing."

According to the information of the discovery of the skeleton, it was found under a manure pile by farmhands while they were cleaning up the barnyard recently. At the bottom of the pile they came upon a low mound, which excited their curiosity, and digging into it, they found the skeleton of a man. The flesh was gone, but the clothing was partly intact. After removing the bones, the clothing was searched and the pocketbook, said to bear Kinsell's name, was found. It was empty, bearing out the theory that Kinsell had been robbed.

It is not known if the skeleton showed signs of how Kinsell met his death. The bones were reinterred and the pocketbook preserved.

When Kinsell, who was a veteran and a pensioner, disappeared, he had over $100 in his pockets. He visited Funkhouser's store and Tice's saloon on the night of his disappearance, and was last seen going toward his home. No trace of him was ever found afterward.

FIREMAN TAKES 30-FOOT PLUNGE

Pickrell, Hoseman Fighting Blaze, Slips on Ladder, and May Die.

Hoseman George M. Pickrell, of No. 9 Engine Company, was seriously hurt in a thirty-foot fall from a ladder while at work on a fire in the three-story loft-building fire in the rear of 1621 Twelfth street north-west, shortly before 9 o'clock this morning. E. C. Waters and T. Davis, two other members of No. 9 Company, who were helping Pickrell with a hose line, narrowly escaped injury. Surgeons at the Homeopathic Hospital, where the injured fireman was taken, say that his condition is critical. He has a fracture of one leg and other injuries, the extent of which cannot be immediately determined.

Second Alarm Turned In. The fire was discovered shortly after 8:30. It was an old building, with thin partitions, and with the arrival of the first detachment of apparatus, it was seen that another alarm was necessary. Chief Wagner was with the second detachment, and assumed charge. The flames were confined to the third floor, which was occupied by D. L. Stewart, a colored undertaker, as a storage warehouse. A quantity of old furniture was stored on the upper floor, and although the top of the structure was gutted, the loss will not exceed $1,500.

Pickrell's fall was caused by his foot slipping on a ladder. With Waters and Davis he had carried a hose line up a ladder to a third-floor window. Pickrell reached the nozzle and the others hoisted the line behind him. Just as Pickrell carried the third floor, he was seen to slip and topple from the ladder. Waters made a desperate attempt to catch him, but he plunged to the brick sidewalk below, striking on his face and side.

Pickrell has been in the fire department a little over a year. He lives with a brother, John H. Pickrell, a conductor on the Seventh street trolley line, at 1223 Monroe street northwest.
