

ENRICO SENDS US A POSTCARD. Just to show that he is fast picking up his strength after his severe illness of last winter, the world's most famous tenor sends us the above postcard photo from Rome. Slightly less rotund, the Metropolitan star looks as well physically and sartorially as ever.

MORE HOT WEATHER STUFF. Two Manhattan misses solve the problem of how to help mother in the kitchen and at the same time be comfortable these muggy July days. What if the dish water does splash over—bathing suits have bungalow aprons beat a mile. And when the task is finished, they'll step out into the backyard and let pop turn on the garden hose.

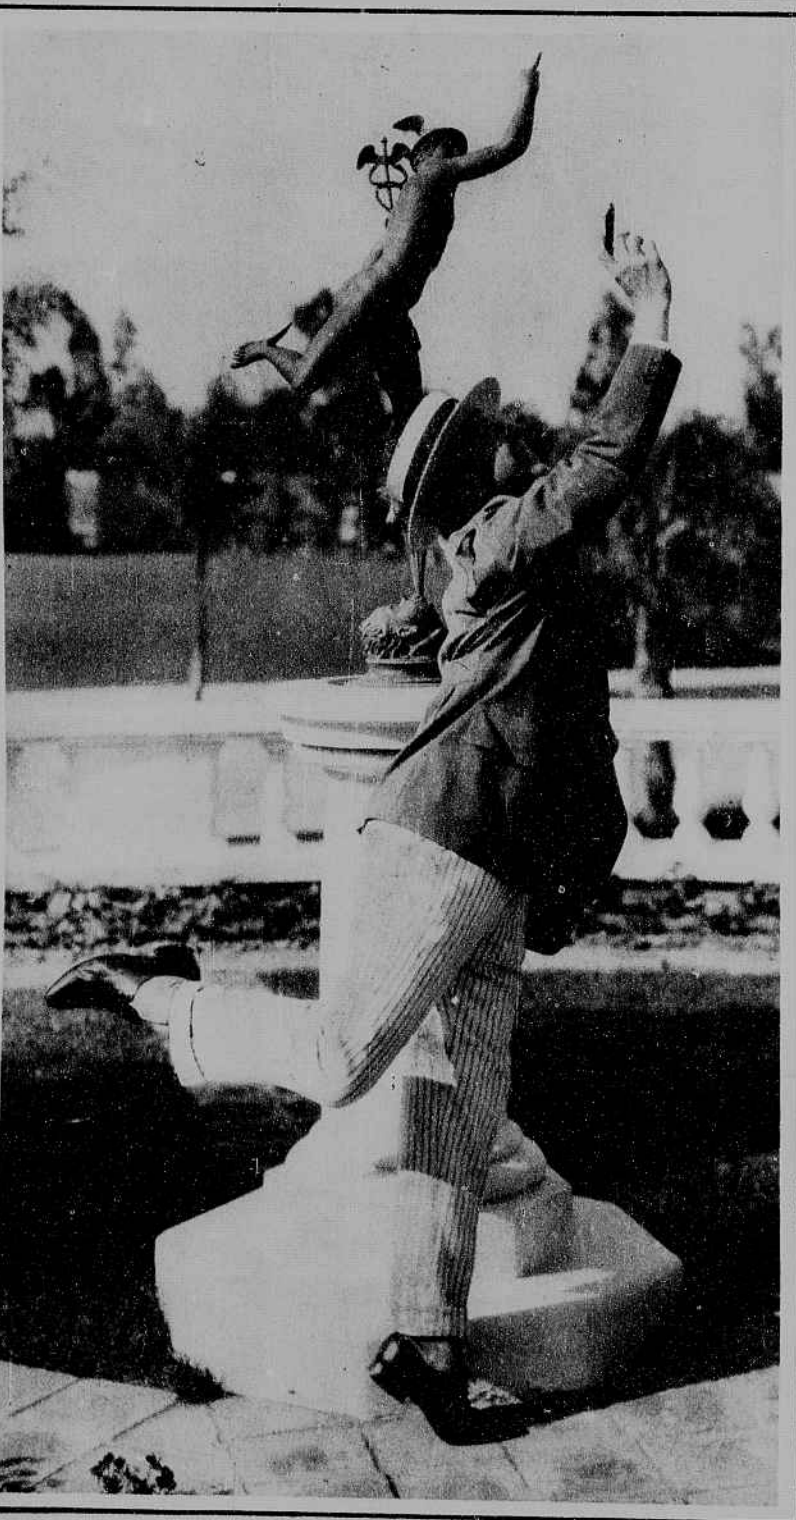

Right—4,000 MILES A FOOT, and this modern Johnny Walker is still going strong. John Lust, of New York, wins a wager of $500 by walking all the way home from Los Angeles in eighty-one days. The conditions of the bet included that he must not accept a lift nor shave during the entire hike—the latter condition accounting for John's apostolic appearance. Our hero carried a 30-pound pack and averaged over forty miles a day.

Above—SMASHES A WORLD'S RECORD that has stood for twenty years. Pat O'Connor, of Ireland, established a running broad jump record of 24 feet 11 3/4 inches in England in 1901. For two decades jumpers have been trying in vain to beat it. Last Saturday Ned Gourdin, Harvard's wonderful colored athlete, in the Harvard-Yale vs. Oxford-Cambridge international meet, performed a miracle and leaped 25 feet 3 inches.

Left—"GOOD NIGHT NURSE!" Two winsome ministering angels of the Broad Street Hospital try out some new steps on the uncompleted top floor of the new addition that is being built to their institution.

Left—RUPERT HUGHES becomes inebriated by the California climate and poses as Mercury. The famous novelist and movie author is an indefatigable worker and he's grinding them out at the Goldwyn Studios with tireless energy. "The Old Nest" and "Dangerous Curve Ahead" are his two most recent screen offerings.

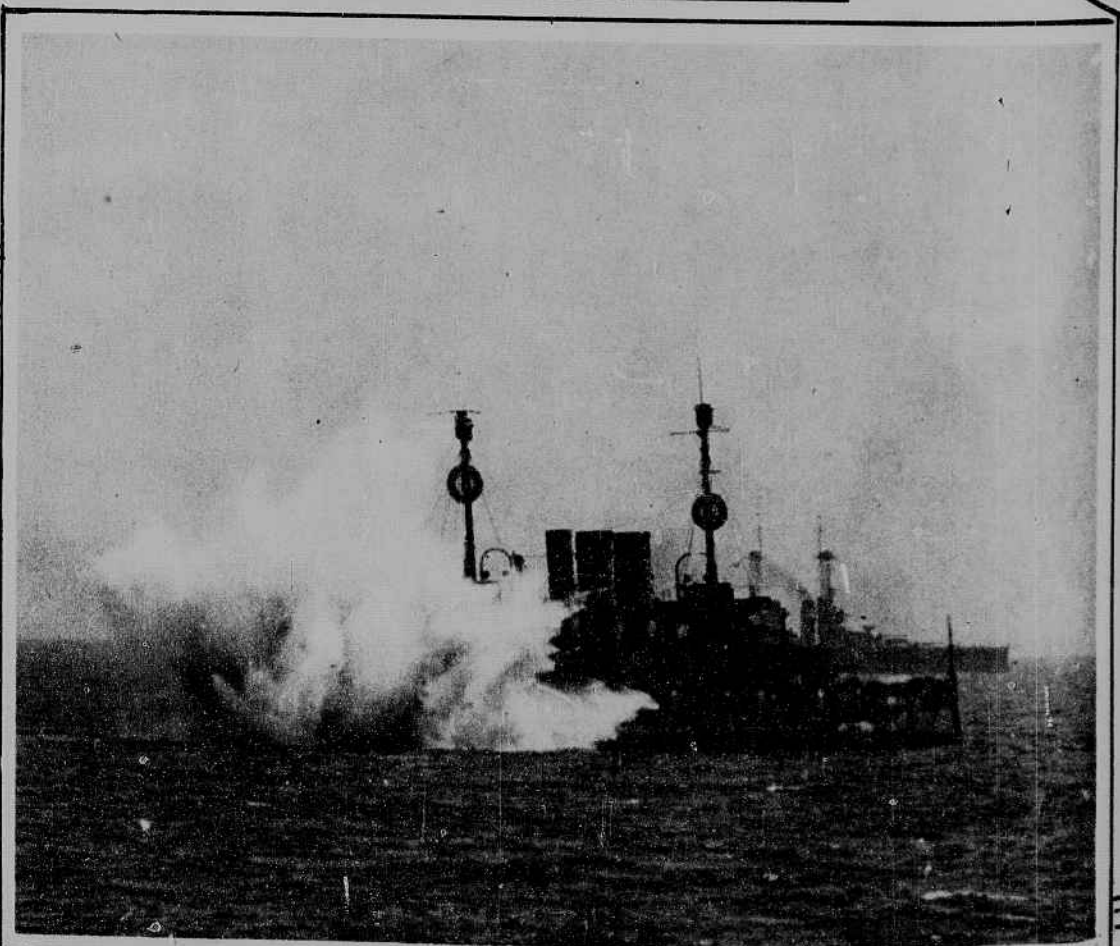

Above—KEYSTONE COPS GET TANKED. Not content to rest on its laurels as "the finest in the land," the Pennsylvania State police have recently added a speedy motorcycle division to their force, pictured here tanking up at a roadside gasoline station to aid them in hugging thieves who use high powered motors for their get-away.

Left—THE NEW BASEBALL MASK. Frank Snyder of the Giants tries out one of the new masks designed to better protect the catcher and at the same time give him a less obstructed vision.

Right—A NAVY K.O. A 230 pound bomb from a navy seaplane lands on the stern of the former German battleship Ostfriesland, in the opening experiments of the final phase of the joint army and navy bombing tests off the Virginia Capes to determine the effect of aerial attacks on capital ships.
