A attendant was called. The door was opened, and a woman proceeding from the room was almost unrecognizable. A small window which had looked out upon the yard was completely boarded up.

The committee then ascended a flight of stairs leading to the ward-room for women. This apartment occupied the entire floor, and the ceiling from a lead-colored silk dress, was noticed as one of the windows.

Having returned to the basement, a poor imbecile who had been brought up from the street and confined in one of the strongest cells. He asked several of the committee why he was placed there.
