WHO SAYS IT'S COLD? THE WATER'S FINE!

Inventor Takes Swim in His Life-Saving Suit in Potomac and Comes Out Perspiring.

Who said it was cold today? Not T. E. Aud, who inhabits Herndon, Va., and adorns the world of invention.

Mr. Aud is full of ideas, enthusiasm, and aquatics. He leaped into the Potomac river this afternoon, swam around for an hour in the water, which the whole force of the Weather Bureau and the Geodetic Coast Survey described as cold and nippy, and finally clambered from the waves, emitting the loud wail that he was perspiring to death.
