

"GASLESS" SUNDAY ORDER TO STAND

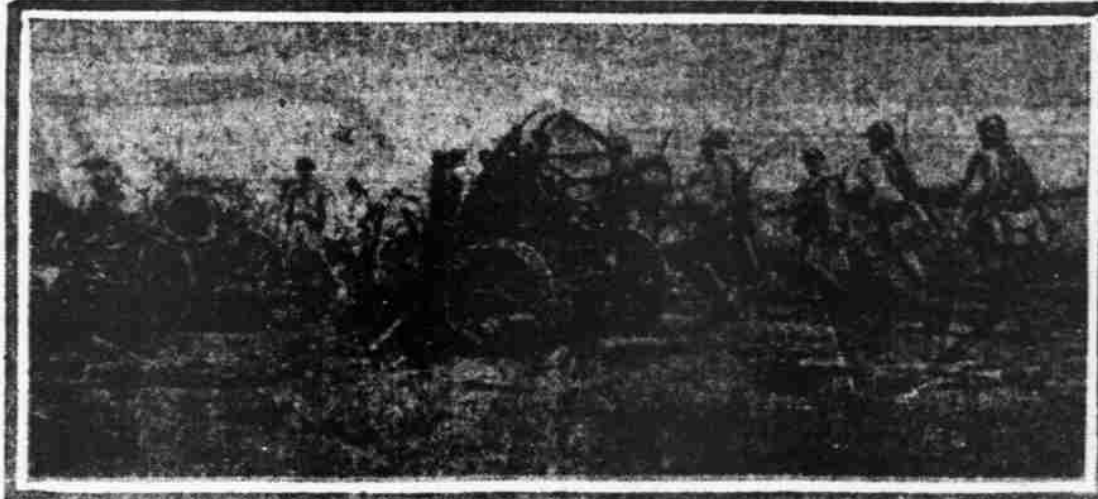

Despite the spread of Spanish influenza throughout the country and the increased necessity for fresh air jaunts to ward off the disease, Fuel Administrator Garfield announced today that gasless Sundays would continue. Action on the part of the Fuel Administration was caused by the receipt of an appeal from Gov. Samuel McCall of Massachusetts asking that the gasoline order be lifted so that the fight against influenza might be helped. Brig. Gen. Charles Richard, acting surgeon general, rendered an opinion that the release of the restriction would have little, if any, influence on checking the spread of the disease.

WOMEN CALLED TO SERVE AS NURSES

Every American woman capable of assisting in a sick room, is urged by the War Department to offer her services to her country in the present emergency.

The Red Cross announced today that owing to the Spanish influenza its search for nurses had been extended to all our territories and insular possessions. A survey is now being con-ing strength. This has been done at the request of Secretary of War Baker and Surgeon General Gorgas. Questionnaires are being distributed to enroll America's entire nursing force. Trained nurses, pupils, and women everywhere who have had nursing experience of any kind are urged to cooperate.

POLICE MAY STRIKE

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 5.—More than 250 of the city's policemen have signed resignation blanks and threaten to quit unless they are immediately granted an eight-hour day. Voters last November approved an ordinance giving the men the eight-hour day, but city officials say it cannot be put into effect because the city lacks funds to pay additional men.

WINS FARMERETTE FLAG.

Miss Jane Starr, of Los Angeles, is the first Californian to win a service flag from the National War Garden Commission. Miss Starr has been most successful as a farmerette, an occupation that she has pursued when not selling Liberty bonds or doing Red Cross work. The service flag has as its emblem a spade, which ornaments its center.
