ARTIFICIAL BLOSSOMS

Smart Little Bouquets to Brighten Various Costumes.

The pretty custom of pinning a single artificial flower or a small bunch of blossoms to the lapel of one's tailored coat to give a bit of color to the street toilet is to be as much in vogue as ever this winter.

The woman who has an eye for color will know just what tints to use in her boutonnières, an important matter, since the strong color can mar seriously the smartest costume. This autumn the exclusive shops are showing an unusually charming assortment of French flowers arranged in little nosegays for the street suit. Small bunches of natural looking pansies are the thing to wear with a purple hat or one with a purple wing, while a snug cluster of moss roses is always suitable with a blue, black or gray suit. Little satin ribbon berries, brilliant in their coloring, are smart with the heavy blue camel's hair suit with its red cloth vest and lining. For the brown tweed suit what could be better than a bunch of old-fashioned marigolds? Violets, though not so new, are always popular and in good taste if the bunch is not too large and the flowers are of a natural color and surrounded by some foliage. A single American Beauty rose, with its natural looking long stem, though inconvenient to wear, is always smart, provided no other bright shade appears in the costume.

To tuck in among the filmy laces and frills of a semi-dressy afternoon gown orchids with a bit of feathery fern, gardenias with their natural foliage or a bunch of gauze sweetpeas are the proper flowers.

It is hard to say just what the prices of these French flowers are, as they vary according to material and size. The single American Beauties can be bought for from 50 cents to $5, while the corsage bouquets of violets are anywhere from $1 to $5 for a large bunch of several hundred set into a pin and with perhaps a tiny pink rosebud or a few sprays of lilies-of-the-valley in the centre. Gardenias cost all the way from 50 cents to $3 or $4, while the marigolds, sweetpeas, berries, pansies, roses, etc., cost $2 or $3 a bunch.

A WISE PRECAUTION.

In one family at least there is never a question as to where the largest table in the living room or library must stand. The convenience of having it in the middle of the room has nothing to do with its position, though a central reading lamp certainly does give a homelike and inviting effect. But whether the room be used constantly or only occasionally, directly under the chandelier goes the table, and if no table happens to be included in its furnishings, some other article must take its place, as a protective measure. Says the house mother: "With a six-foot son and a husband an inch taller, and chandeliers hung sufficiently low so that the maid or myself can reach them to light up, experience has shown the danger of leaving that space beneath them unalled. Neglect of this precaution has more than once cost one or the other of our 'men folks' a severe blow on the top of the head, so now the custom has come to be imperative."

THE TRIBUNE PATTERN.

Wool materials woven in plaid effects always make serviceable as well as pretty school frocks. This one is trimmed with plain cloth, and such material used as trimming makes an important feature of the season. The plaid includes shades of red, and one of the darker shades reappears in the cloth. The little skirt is straight and gathered, and the waist portion is one of the simplest possible. It can be made either with a high, round or square neck and with three-quarter or long sleeves.

Such a dress is adapted to all the materials utilized for little girls' wear, for it is just as desirable for the washable ones as it is for wool. Plaid ginghams make excellent school frocks for the early season, and trimmed with plain linen would be most effective. Light-weight French serge is a favorite material for girls' use, and could be trimmed with plaid or striped material to give an excellent result.

For the ten-year-old size will be required 4¼ yards of material 27, 3 yards 36 or 2½ yards 44 inches wide, with 1½ yards 27 for the trimming.

The pattern, No. 7,131, is cut in sizes for girls of six to twelve years, and will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents.

Please give number of pattern and age distinctly. Address Pattern Department, New-York Tribune. If in a hurry for pattern, send an extra 2-cent stamp and we will mail by letter postage in sealed envelope.

Seen in the Shops

Some of the shops are already displaying aids to a proper celebration of the weird festival of Halloween. Anything more startling than the decorative crepe papers of last year, with their terrifying display of black witches, owls, cats, and so on, on backgrounds of lurid hue, it has apparently been impossible to invent, but there are some new designs which appeal more strongly to the aesthetic sense. One showing life-sized jack-o'-lanterns in their natural golden color, accompanied by the green leaves of the pumpkin, may be used in the ordinary ways, or the jack-o'-lantern may be cut out and made into masks. Any one who knows the peculiar characteristics of crepe paper will see how readily a nose and other features can be shaped in a mask made of it. A lining of a second thickness of paper and a coat of shellac on the outside makes a very durable article, although this treatment is not altogether necessary. All the decorative crepe papers sell for 15 cents a roll, each roll containing a piece 10 feet long and 20 inches wide.

Halloween paper luncheon sets, consisting of a dozen each of plates, napkins and doilies, and a tablecloth measuring 63 by 84 inches, sells for 50 cents. The plates are decorated with a string of little jack-o'-lanterns, which a black cat, seated comfortably in the curve of a crescent moon, contemplates from across an expanse of white. The other pieces have bolder designs, in which appear the usual Hallowe'en figures in black and yellow.

Owl or cat silhouettes, measuring about two inches each way, sell at 10 cents for a box of fifty. They are gummed on one side and may be used for decorating place cards and lamp or candle shades, or in any other way fancy may suggest. Black witches a little larger than the owls and cats, also gummed, are 10 cents for a box of twenty-five. Cardboard witches, measuring about five inches and not gummed, are 10 cents a dozen. Fireproof paper festoons in black and yellow combined, are $1 for a dozen rolls, each roll containing ten feet.

Washable silk Shetland veilings are to be had in a great variety of styles, and for as many different prices. By the yard, in cream or white, they sell at from 25 to 75 cents, according to width, quality and the elaborateness of the design. Distinctly new are the shaded silk Shetland veils one and five-eighths yards long, which sell for $1.95. They come in different colors, with a dark tone at the ends which shades toward the centre to light. Another novelty is a black octagon mesh silk Shetland, finished at the ends and one side with silk fringe, about an inch in depth. This is not essentially a mourning veil, though it may be worn as such. The price is $2.25.

An imitation Chantilly veil in an ecru tint, with an attractive floral design and a deeply scalloped border, is 95 cents.

A pretty round collar of Cluny lace about three inches wide, with two pieces to match, which may be used either as revers or cuffs, is selling for $1.85.
