

WILSON EXPLAINS STAND ON TARIFF

Disclaims Idea of Borrowing Republican Thunder in Urging Board.

INQUIRY INTO TRADE QUESTIONS NEEDED

Commission Would Be Indispensable to Congress in Gathering Data, Says President.

Washington, Jan. 26. President Wilson's reasons for his "change of mind" on the merits of a tariff commission and his reasons for favoring a commission at this time, although he opposed it so recently, are given at length in two letters to Mr. Kitchin, Democratic floor leader of the House, made public to-day.

The letter under date of to-day showed clearly that Mr. Kitchin, while at the White House yesterday, had expressed some astonishment at the swift change on the part of the President.

President Wilson, without using the words, disclaims any idea of borrowing Republican thunder, he says, "no thought whatever of a change of attitude toward the so-called protection question. That is neither here nor there. A commission such as I have suggested would have nothing to do with theories of policy."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

U.S. LACKS SHELLS AND GUNS FOR WAR

Would Take 18 Months to Equip Army Needed in a Few Days.

COST OF MUNITION PLANT $400,000,000

Crozier Says No New Rifles Have Been Sent Abroad Since 1914.

Washington, Jan. 26. It would take eighteen months, with all the money available that could possibly be used, to provide this country with munitions for the army which military experts figure would be needed within a few days after the outbreak of war with any first class power, General W. A. Crozier, Chief of Ordnance, told the Senate Committee on Military Affairs to-day.

MOOSE TO STAY. REPLIES PERKINS

Will Agree on Candidate if Republicans Are Fair, Says Letter to Hill.

Chicago, Jan. 26. That the Progressive party yet stands firmly on the Republican lap, unless there is a very definite understanding between the two and a complete recognition of Progressive principles, together with the nomination of a man wholly agreeable to the great body of Progressives, was clearly indicated to-day by a letter received by Chairman Charles D. Hill, of the Republican National Committee, from Chairman George W. Perkins, of the Progressive National Committee.

In this letter Mr. Perkins took exception to the statement made a day or two ago by Mr. Hill that "from every standpoint the breach of 1912 may be regarded as practically healed."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

STEEL PRICES STILL GO TO HIGHER LEVELS

Business in Present Quarter Will Be at Higher Rates.

The great earnings reported by the United States Steel Corporation, according to the trade publications, indicate what is being done throughout the industry. Prices in business in the present quarter will, it is pointed out, be on higher levels and the limit to advances has not been reached.

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

UNIONS UNANIMOUS FOR 8-HOUR DAY

Continued from page 1
Kahn shows that "railroad credit has become gravely affected. It is true that faults of management and disclosures of objectionable practices have been contributory cause in diminishing American railroad credit, but from my practical experience in dealing with investors I have no hesitation in affirming that the main reason for the multiplication of railroad bankruptcies and the changed attitude of the public toward investing in railroad securities is to be found in the Federal and state legislation of the years from 1906 to 1912 and in what many investors consider the liberal, narrow and frequently antagonistic spirit toward railroads of commissions charged with their supervision and control."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

U.S. LACKS SHELLS AND GUNS FOR WAR

Would Take 18 Months to Equip Army Needed in a Few Days.

COST OF MUNITION PLANT $400,000,000

Crozier Says No New Rifles Have Been Sent Abroad Since 1914.

Washington, Jan. 26. It would take eighteen months, with all the money available that could possibly be used, to provide this country with munitions for the army which military experts figure would be needed within a few days after the outbreak of war with any first class power, General W. A. Crozier, Chief of Ordnance, told the Senate Committee on Military Affairs to-day.

MOOSE TO STAY. REPLIES PERKINS

Will Agree on Candidate if Republicans Are Fair, Says Letter to Hill.

Chicago, Jan. 26. That the Progressive party yet stands firmly on the Republican lap, unless there is a very definite understanding between the two and a complete recognition of Progressive principles, together with the nomination of a man wholly agreeable to the great body of Progressives, was clearly indicated to-day by a letter received by Chairman Charles D. Hill, of the Republican National Committee, from Chairman George W. Perkins, of the Progressive National Committee.

In this letter Mr. Perkins took exception to the statement made a day or two ago by Mr. Hill that "from every standpoint the breach of 1912 may be regarded as practically healed."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

STEEL PRICES STILL GO TO HIGHER LEVELS

Business in Present Quarter Will Be at Higher Rates.

The great earnings reported by the United States Steel Corporation, according to the trade publications, indicate what is being done throughout the industry. Prices in business in the present quarter will, it is pointed out, be on higher levels and the limit to advances has not been reached.

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

UNIONS UNANIMOUS FOR 8-HOUR DAY

Continued from page 1
Kahn shows that "railroad credit has become gravely affected. It is true that faults of management and disclosures of objectionable practices have been contributory cause in diminishing American railroad credit, but from my practical experience in dealing with investors I have no hesitation in affirming that the main reason for the multiplication of railroad bankruptcies and the changed attitude of the public toward investing in railroad securities is to be found in the Federal and state legislation of the years from 1906 to 1912 and in what many investors consider the liberal, narrow and frequently antagonistic spirit toward railroads of commissions charged with their supervision and control."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

OLD GUARD DANCER. Captain James F. Wenham, ninety-two, who is looking forward to annual ball.

TWO STEPS AT NINETY TWO

Capt. J. T. Wenham at Every Old Guard Drill and Dinner Since '76. In the ranks of the Old Guard when it swings into the midnight march of the ball, the Baltimore to-morrow night will be Captain James F. Wenham, who will be ninety-two years old on March 7 next. His comrades are proud of the fact that since 1876, when missed the Old Guard, he has never been joined or left at a parade or a dinner, and they admit that he can dance a two-step or a hornpipe with any of them.

War Would Be Over. The great length of time needed to produce munitions for an army was dwelt on. The general declared it could not be done before an average modern war was over. He did not believe that a single modern rifle, built to order on European specifications, had yet been delivered from an American factory, though hundreds of thousands of them had been ordered since the war broke out eighteen months ago.

TAFT WILL NOT BE LAMAR'S SUCCESSOR

Wilson Decides New Justice Must Be Under 50 Years.

Washington, Jan. 26. President Wilson has set an age limit of fifty-five years on appointments to the Supreme Court. He has decided that the man named to succeed the late Justice Lamar will be young enough and have enough vigor and activity to insure, so far as may be, several years of useful service.

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

GIRL'S ADVENTURE ENDS

Runaway Camela Returned to Parents She Had Said Were Dead.

Camela Fontana, eleven years old, has had her fling in the world and is ready to settle down to a humdrum existence. Her adventure cost her all the thrills of city life and permitted her to run the entire gamut of human emotions, from the very heights of hope to the depths of despair.

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

WOMAN ARRESTS DISTURBER

Miss Esther Waselbaum Then Goes to Court to Prosecute Prisoner.

Following the example of Mrs. Gertrude Eggleston, who arrested a man who trampled upon her in a streetcar Thursday, Miss Esther Waselbaum, attorney, tonight arrested a man who disturbed her evening meal. Just for good measure, she went to the Night Court and prosecuted him.

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

MILLS OFFERS BUDGET BILL

Measure Embodies All of Governor's Ideas, but Is Too Broad for Him.

WOULD MAKE PUBLIC ALL APPROPRIATIONS

Provision Would Prevent Railroading in Closing Hours—Whitman's Dozen Bills.

Albany, Jan. 26. Although the state budget bill introduced to-day by Senator Ogden L. Mills contains all the suggestions in his annual message in reference to appropriations, Governor Whitman frowned on the measure. He said it contained provisions which went further than he cared to go, and announced that he would send to the Legislature next week a dozen bills which would carry out his ideas of appropriation and budget making.

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

OSBORNE FIGHTS TO ENTER HIS PLEA

Will Appeal from Order That He Must Await Prosecutor's Permission.

OSBORNE ASSAILS ASSEMBLY

Scheme is Hatching to Set Back Prison Reform, He Declares.

Albany, Jan. 26. The chief significance of yesterday's action lies in the fact that the prisoner evidently has not prepared his case to the extent he has indicated.

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

WEEKS SUMMONS 3 MORE CONVICTS

Gets Aid of Prison Stenographer in Case Against the Warden.

OSBORNE FIGHTS TO ENTER HIS PLEA

Will Appeal from Order That He Must Await Prosecutor's Permission.

Albany, Jan. 26. The chief significance of yesterday's action lies in the fact that the prisoner evidently has not prepared his case to the extent he has indicated.

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Justice Morschauer held that the November Grand Jury which indicted Osborne, is still in session and would not be unreasonable to prevent him from pleading until it had been discharged, or until the present term of court ends.

$350,000 PROVIDED FOR SING SING CELLS

Sing Sing Will Allow Only for Partial Construction of Addition. Albany, Jan. 26. Carrying out his plan for the building of a new cell block on the east side of the railroad tracks at Sing Sing, Senator Sage announced to-day that the appropriation bill this year would provide $350,000 for the beginning of the work at once. This sum will provide only for the partial construction of the proposed new prison. Additional appropriations will have to be made next year if the plan is to be carried out.

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."

Everything changed, said the President's letter to-day, "because all the circumstances of the world have changed, and it seems to me that, in view of the extraordinary and war-reaching changes which have resulted in this country, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a complete instrument of inquiry along the whole line of the many questions which affect our foreign commerce."