A SEASON OF MOURNING AND MIRTH. A TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD CAZAR—CHARACTER AND HABITS OF ALEXANDER III.—EFFECT OF THE ASSASSINATION UPON OTHERS OF THE ROMANOFF FAMILY—A FUGITIVE PRINCESS—FESTIVITIES OF THE MICAREME—A BALL OF MANIACS.

PARIS, March 27.—The editor of La Nouvelle Revue receiving the news of the late Emperor of Russia, present in her name to be made up of flowers expressing sorrow, sympathy and respectful admiration.

She has been appointed a member of the Council of Regency by the new Czar, who is getting his affairs in order and making due provision for the Government of Russia, in the event of the death of the Emperor.

Madame Georges Bal, who is also pretty, was a Spanish gipsy. A Greek lady, Madame Ralli, was the Grande Mademoiselle. Nitti and some fellow-Italians were the person of Titian's "Wedding at Cana in Galilee."

There was a supper in the small hours of the morning, laid out on small tables. When the revellers set down to it mirth certainly reigned. But in the early part of the evening there were stiffness and constraint. There should be unity of idea in a fancy ball. If there is not, costumes are not of time one with the other.

And this brings me to the ball given on the Micareme by that benevolent institution, l'Assistance Publique, to the idiotic and hysterical inmates of the Salpêtrière Hospital. A week's notice was given to those unfortunate, and it was daily renewed. The therapeutic effect was magical on their poor brains and nerves.

sonate the gloomy, the sublime giants, half woman and half lioness, who kept watch and ward in the Necropolis of the Pharaohs!
