

THE AFRICAN METHODISTS

Second Day's Session of the Georgia Conference. Much interest was attached to the second day's session of the Georgia conference of the African Methodist Episcopal church.

Bishop Grant introduced Rev. J. H. Armstrong, D. D., financial secretary of the African Methodist connection with headquarters at Washington.

The sixth district, embracing the Georgia, North Carolina, Alabama, and Florida conferences, has collected during the four years drawing to a close $15,152.80.

Rev. H. T. Johnson, D. D., editor of the Christian Recorder, published by the conference on his department of church work.

The following resolutions were adopted: Rev. R. M. Cheeks, presiding elder, Rome district; M. M. Moore, East Florida conference.

A communication for approval and will be submitted to the railroad authorities, asking for ministers' permits or reduced rates for the ministers of the conference.

Last night the annual missionary meeting was held. Rev. J. S. Hamilton of the Hawkinsville district preached the missionary sermon.

The Baldwin-Melville Company had another large audience last night. The theater was full, in fact.

The phantom fancy dress melange and soiree, to be given by Prof. Agostini Jan. 2, will be a unique affair.

A large gathering will no doubt greet the Juvenile Choral Society to-night at the annual term.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

A LITTLE BOY'S TROUBLE

THOUGHT HE COULD AVOID SICKNESS MERELY BY "MAKING UP HIS MIND."

Once upon a time, a wise little boy assured his ill-informed parents that he didn't intend to have the mumps, even if the disease was "going round."

Thoughtful doctors know that, while whiskey may be a most valuable help in inducing a healthy action in a sluggish body.
