

BLOOD FLOWS IN MILL STRIKE RIOT

Hundreds of Workers, Refusing to Return to Work, Clubbed on Storming Factory.

LAWRENCE, MASS., Oct. 1.—Though the 24-hour strike called in protest against the imprisonment of Joseph J. Eitor and Arturo M. Giovannitti officially ended at 6 a. m. today, hundreds of textile workers refused to return to work, and within an hour after the mills opened the bloodiest riot of the Industrial Workers of the World demonstration occurred.

Thirty operatives were beaten down by the police clubs when 200 strikers attempted to "rush" the big gates of the Arlington mills.

The police prepared for trouble when the malcontents who defied their leaders' orders to return to work gathered about the operatives going back to work and falling to check the steadily increasing number of returning toilers, 200 men stormed the mill, intending to drive out the workers and wreck the machinery.

The local and state police advanced to meet the assailants and a short and bloody battle ensued. Thirty operatives were wounded, some of them being badly beaten.

Caged in Blind Street.

The officers drove the men into a blind street and there the battle raged with the police the aggressors and the workmen vainly trying to find some avenue of escape.

Several of the operatives broke through the police lines and others with remarkable agility climbed a high board fence. The authorities contented themselves with dispersing the mob and made no arrests.

Though not more than 1,000 employees stayed away from their work today, there was a general feeling of uneasiness and close watch was kept on Carlo Tresca, the Pittsburg editor who is leader of the present demonstration. He is quoted by the police as saying:

"If Eitor, Giovannitti and Caruso are found guilty or if either of them is convicted, the Industrial Workers of the World will march to Salem, storm the jail and rescue the prisoners if possible."

Bitterness was expressed by the strikers against Mayor Scanlon because he characterized the strikers and their leaders as "thugs."

MARTIAL LAW NOW RULES CUMMING

Trial of Negroes Will Be Safeguarded by Four Companies of State Militia.

implies to the contrary, the usual laws of the community will be in force. Crimes will be tried by military commission or by civil court as may be most practicable as the governor may decide.

No publications, either by newspaper, pamphlet, handbill or otherwise, reflecting in any way upon the United States or the state of Georgia or their officers, or attempting to influence the public mind against the United States or the state of Georgia, or their officers, and no article commenting in any way on the work or actions of the military authorities will be permitted.

All assemblages in the streets, whether by day or by night, are prohibited, and arms will be borne only by permission of the military commander.

Any persons found on the streets who appear to be habitually idle and without occupation will be placed under arrest.

Pool rooms, near-beer saloons, disorderly houses and places where ammunition or firearms of any kind are kept for sale must be closed immediately. Disorderly rendezvous of any kind are prohibited.

While it is the desire of the authorities to exercise the powers of martial law mildly, it must not be supposed that they will not be vigorously and firmly enforced as occasion arises.

Lawyers Appointed To Defend Negroes

CUMMING, GA., Oct. 1.—Fred Morris, of Marietta; Isaac Grant, of Jasper; Howell Brooks and John Collins, of Canton, and A. H. Fisher, of Cumming, were this afternoon appointed by Judge Newt Morris to defend the four negroes now held in jail Atlanta who will be brought here tomorrow for trial Thursday. Judge Morris asked that two or more of these lawyers meet the prisoners at Buford and confer with them as to their defense before they reach Cumming. The trials will begin at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. Judge Morris, from the bench, warned the people of Forsyth county that the prisoners would be under protection of the military and that any demonstration might lead to serious if not fatal consequences.

At the morning session of court Judge Morris called eight lawyers, including Messrs. Morris and Brooks, but each one offered an excuse for not defending the negroes. At the time all were excused. Four of them had been retained to assist the solicitor general in the prosecution.

Today the Forsyth county grand jury returned true bills against Ernest Knox, alias Ernest Daniel, and against Oscar Daniel, two of the negro prisoners, charging them with assaulting the white girl, whose death led to a lynching here last month. The girl's father appears as prosecutor.

GOVERNOR ASKED TO APPOINT ARBITER IN SEABOARD TAX FIGHT

The comptroller general today called upon the governor to appoint an umpire to arbitrate the tax returns of the Seaboard Air Line, which have been in dispute many weeks.

When the road returned its property for taxation originally the comptroller was not satisfied with the showing, and, under the law, failing to reach an adjustment with the road, appointed Railroad Commissioner Murphy Candler arbitrator upon the part of the state, and called upon the road to name an arbitrator.

The Seaboard named Thod Hammond, of Atlanta, and he and Mr. Candler have been endeavoring for weeks to reach an agreement as to a third man, but without success.

The comptroller today, taking cognizance of the failure of Candler and Hammond to get together, asked the governor to intervene and name the third arbitrator, which he has the right to do.

The governor likely will name the third arbitrator this afternoon.

AUGUSTA TAXPAYERS CAN NOT STOP VOTE ON INCREASE OF LEVY

Judge W. R. Hammond's recent illness has caused one of Augusta's many political battles to be staged in Fulton superior court. Richmond county taxpayers appeared before Judge Bell today and asked that he enjoin election managers from submitting a proposed tax assessment to Augusta voters on tomorrow.

F. P. Reynolds, B. R. Green and J. W. Jenkins, plaintiffs in the suit, told the court that the charter amendment passed by the legislature providing for a reformatory was not approved by Governor Brown until August 16, 1912. Before an election on such an amendment can be called 60 days legal notice must be given.

The attempt to hold the election tomorrow along with the general state election was characterized as an attempt to rush through a tax raise without giving Augusta voters due notice of the fact. Judge Bell refused the injunction.

EXILES SELF TO ESCAPE GOSSIPS

Birmingham Woman, Found in Atlanta by Husband, Begg Him Not to Take Her Back.

Smothered under the sting of gossip, Mrs. A. A. Linaberry, an attractive young woman living in Birmingham, came to Atlanta two weeks ago to seek seclusion and to hide herself, even from her husband.

She was found today by Detectives Gillespie and McGill, living quietly in a down-town hotel, and was turned over to her husband, who came here to search for her. Linaberry accompanied the detectives on their hunt, and when the missing wife saw him, she threw her arms about his neck and kissed him time and again.

"Don't take me back to Birmingham," she pleaded. "I don't want to go back there until this cruel gossip is stopped."

The husband pacified her by promising not to take her to Birmingham. Shortly afterward, husband and wife boarded a train for Chattanooga, where Mrs. Linaberry has relatives. Linaberry is a locomotive engineer.

Mrs. Linaberry left her home to come to Atlanta on a visit, and since that time her husband had heard nothing from her.

Aldine Chambers Severely Roasts James G. Woodward

In this morning's paper appears a statement in a paid advertisement, signed by James G. Woodward, "candidate for mayor." He richly deserves the title "candidate for mayor" because he has been a chronic candidate for the last twelve years, and if he had also added "candidate for chief among blackguards and slanderers" he would have been accorded that place without dispute.

Woodward says that "I am a ring candidate." I have heretofore published the names of the good and true citizens of Atlanta whom I am charged with dominating in city politics. This list includes some of the best business and professional men in the city of Atlanta and some of the best men in the ranks of labor, men whose shoe latches Woodward is not worthy to tie.

If men of this type banded together for good government can be called a ring, then I am willing to suffer the consequences of being supported by such a ring.

I notice in this connection that Woodward has never published the name of a single person who is supporting him. It is for the reason that his support is all under ground.

The city of Atlanta pays $21.75 per ton for asphalt f. o. b. Atlanta. Add freight rates from Philadelphia to Atlanta and see how much more is paid by Atlanta than Philadelphia. This is another canard that is utterly groundless.

I only wish to say that Woodward has been mayor two terms and a candidate for mayor six times—and where are the wonderful results which accrued from any administration of his? It is a well known fact that every progressive act passed during his administration was passed over his veto and his protest. The public are tired of being humbugged by Woodward's claim that he accomplished wonders when mayor. He gives no credit to the members of council or the other public spirited citizens who took part in whatever movements were inaugurated during his disgraceful administrations.

This campaign is simply an issue of decency against indecency and involves merely the question of whether a common blackguard, who will stoop to any unscrupulous slander, and who has adopted such methods in his race for mayor as to almost frighten any decent man from entering a race against him, shall be placed by this city at the head of its government and thus advertise to the world that a majority of her people are of the Woodward type.

This morning's publication is Woodward's dying wail. The people of Atlanta will bury him so deep politically that he will never rise again to vex this city with his disgraceful politics, his dirty and slanderous methods and the low plane to which he aspires to bring the campaign for mayor upon every recurring mayoralty election.

I am confident that at the primary on Wednesday I will receive a majority of all the votes cast and that the city will be spared the humiliation of Woodward's participating in a second primary.

ALDINE CHAMBERS

TULL WATERS' STATEMENT

WOODWARD'S STATEMENT in the MORNING PAPER in reference to the price of ASPHALT IS UNTRUE. Read the following statement of Mr. Tull Waters:

"I stated at a meeting of the Public Works Committee recently that the ASPHALT TRUST wanted to charge Fulton county for asphalt delivered in Atlanta $38 per ton, whereas we had information that the prices charged in Philadelphia were $18 per ton (not $13 as quoted in the morning paper). The county board has therefore held up the letting of the contract as we thought this TOO GREAT a difference, notwithstanding the question of freight rates. THE COUNTY BOARD REQUIRES competitive bids on all material bought by the board; NO ONE WITHIN my knowledge, OUTSIDE OF THE BOARD MEMBERS themselves have ANYTHING TO DO with the question of prices paid by the board for material bought for the county. The board endeavors to get the lowest possible prices on all of its purchases.
