

COMMERCIAL.

HONOLULU, AUGUST 23, 1887.

The situation, as regards business, remains very much the same as during the previous week; if anything, trade is quieter. The coasting trade is maintained mostly by carrying supplies to the plantations. The sugar cargoes from the islands are becoming light, and will probably continue so until the new crop will begin to move.

The Notley Rattoon Plow.

This plow consists of three plows, so arranged that the whole space between the cam-rows is turned over by passing once in the row; the two outside plows throw a light coating of soil on the middle row, which is now a double-mould-board, throws the soil toward the cam-rows, thus slightly hilling the row. From three to four animals are required to draw it, and in good ground, it will plow six acres a day, one man being sufficient to drive and tend the plow. This plow is now in successful operation on the Hamakua Plantation, Hawaii, and can be seen by anyone so desiring. I feel satisfied that the planters have only to know the merits of this implement to adopt it.—A. LIDWATE.

A Requested Correction.

Dr. Tucker has taken the earliest possible opportunity of publicly contradicting the following remark attributed to him in the Bulletin's report of the Reform Convention, viz: that he "thought that, of the two, Mr. W. O. Smith was far ahead of Mr. W. R. Castle." The Doctor asserts that he said nothing of the kind, but advocated both names in the plural, without distinction or comparison. Our reporter's notes show that another speaker expressed the view in question, but in transcribing them it was deemed best to modify the expression, as the speakers were all difficult to "take" on the stage, and might easily have been misrepresented many times.

The Call to Dr. Beckwith.

At the meeting of the Bethel and Fort Street congregations, August 17th, a letter was read from Dr. Beckwith in answer to the communication addressed to him some time ago by them intimating their purpose, after the union of the two bodies, to present him with a call. The reverend gentleman, in his letter, cordially thanked the members of the two churches named for their expression of confidence towards himself, and said that so far as he was personally concerned, he was willing to accept their call, but could not definitely do so until after conferring with the Church of which he is pastor in San Francisco and also with the members of his own family.

Supreme Court.

AT CHAMBERS—BEFORE PRESTON, J.—HABEAS CORPUS. FRIDAY, August 19th. Julio Pacifico, a prisoner, appeared in charge of the Marshal under a writ of habeas corpus, issued on the 16th. Mr. V. V. Ashford appeared as counsel for the prisoner and the Attorney-General, C. W. Ashford, counsel for the Marshal.

A New Building.

The contract for the erection of a fine building on Hotel street, on what is known as the C. Brewer estate, has been taken by Mr. George Lucas. Five tenders were in, of which Mr. Lucas's was the lowest. The plans of the proposed building were exhibited to a Gazette representative yesterday. As outlined on paper, the building will present a splendid appearance. It will front 140 feet on Hotel street, 40 1/2 feet deep, and will be two stories high. The material will be brick, with front of pressed brick. The lower part is divided into five parts, intended for the same number of stores. Under each of these divisions there will be a parlor and rooms, which, with a kitchen to be added in the rear, are intended to make this part of the building suitable for a hotel. The upper story will have good verandas and awnings, which contribute considerably to the imposing appearance of the whole front. The building will be fitted throughout with all the modern improvements. The contract figures are $28,216, and is expected to be completed within the next six months.

School Extension.

THE BOARD OPENING NEW FIELDS AND ENLARGING OLD ONES. A meeting of the Board of Education was held yesterday. A number of resignations and applications were considered. Agreement to arrangements made at this and former meetings of the present and also of the preceding Board, considerable extension in English school work may be expected after the present vacation.

A new school house has been completed at Pahaia, Maui, to accommodate 50 pupils. An addition has been made to the building at Pahaia, Hawaii, capable of accommodating 60 to 70 pupils and improvements and repairs made on the old school house, so that between the new and the renovated old structure, the school will be well equipped for over 100 pupils.

The Board has also authorized new buildings, and the lumber has been put on the ground, at Paaui, Hamakua, for 64 pupils; at Halawa, Molokai, for 100 pupils; and at Kula, Maui, for 60 pupils.

New school houses will shortly be erected in Makapala, North Kohala, for 100 pupils and at Pahoehe, Kona, for 100 pupils. The material has also been shipped for an addition to the Kapaia school house. The new structure is calculated for 75 pupils. The Kapaia school, when the new building is completed, will have seating accommodations for about 180 pupils and will then be one of the largest common schools, outside of Honolulu, in the Hawaiian Islands.

NOMINATING CONVENTION!

people and the prerogative. His own opinion was that John A. Cummins had always been on the side of power against the people, but he might be wrong. Gentlemen who knew better than he did thought he was wrong, and if he thought that he was wrong he would vote for John A. Cummins and support him just as loyally as he would Dowsett, and whatever ticket was voted by that Convention he would support because they knew better than he did what was right and what was wrong.

J. B. Atherton said all of them would recollect that they represented in their ward the largest Portuguese population in the city, and they thought they were doing their duty in nominating J. M. Vivas, and Mr. Camara would now represent that claim.

J. M. Camara was not heard distinctly at the further reporter's table, but was understood to say that Vivas was the choice of a large number of Portuguese, although they did not deem it necessary that he should be run as a representative. If, however, they wanted a ticket to run without having a name scratched, they should choose Dowsett, Kalauea, Vivas and Hnstance.

S. B. Dole said he found Dowsett had been nominated by eight delegates, and Hnstance and Kalauea by seven; therefore those three men seemed to be the choice of the Convention. The question of next seemed to be between Robinson and Cummins. He did not know Cummins' public record; he might have one, but the speaker did not know it. Cummins going to represent his countrymen in that Legislature as a supporter of rabid, popular legislation, even against the Government if necessary? Would he make a good, popular representative? He confessed he did not know. Robinson had been a stationer, a supporter of the movement since the start. He had shown an intelligence and perseverance, and persistence which had been astonishing. And for those reasons he supported the nomination of Robinson, because they would know what they were about when they put him in the Legislature.

W. B. Oleson said they had come to a juncture in the affairs of the Hawaiian nation which was of the utmost importance to the Hawaiian race. The element to control the ballot-box in the future was the young Hawaiian element. They had young men who were much beyond their fathers in every way, and he proposed the name of D. L. Naone as a representative of this class, both as a matter of policy and as a matter of principle.

John Cassidy said the Third Ward nominated Cummins, and they proposed to place him on the list of Nobles. Cummins had pledged to support this party. Formerly it was all power, but now the power was divided. He had had considerable dealings with Cummins, and would take his word in any matter.

Dr. Tucker said that during the past year he had become acquainted with many good men who were in the Convention. About nine months ago the revolutionary movement started. It was carried from one man to another. When it came to a head, did John A. Cummins array himself on their side?

Cecil Brown—Let me say he did not. Dr. Tucker—Yes, when our bayonets glistened in the sun. They knew who their men were tried. They did not find John A. Cummins there, but they found Mark Robinson there. They found plenty of men to support them when the time came for offices to be distributed.

S. Hookano thought the Convention was wasting a great deal of time in discussing J. A. Cummins when there were plenty of good men. They might discuss J. A. Cummins for 24 hours, with the only result that he would be cracked up to more importance than he deserved. Therefore, as J. A. Cummins did not seem to go down, let them get on to the next discussion word only to provoke ill-feeling and prolong their labors. They did not want any wooden men in the Legislature. They wanted men who when they opened their mouths would know what they were talking about. They wanted men who would not only carry on the work of the names was that of a Portuguese. If it was necessary to nominate one, then, he would have no objection, provided it was for the interests of good government.

The Committee resolved to proceed with the ballot, and the Chair appointed Cecil Brown, W. A. Kinney, F. J. Lowrey and J. H. Fisher as tellers. The roll of delegates was called, ward by ward, the members responding with alacrity in coming forward to deposit their ballots. The ballots were read aloud by Mr. Brown, while Mr. Fisher announced the tally. At the close of the count the result was stated from the Chair as follows:

Number of votes cast, 99; necessary to elect, 50; Dowsett, 99; Hnstance, 86; Kalauea, 86; D. L. Naone, 34; Robinson, 23; Keliia, 23; Cummins, 19; Vivas, 14; Spaulding, 5; Carter, 2; Magoon, 2; Castle, 1; J. P. Naone, 1. The Chairman accordingly declared Dowsett, Hnstance and Kalauea elected as candidates for Representatives, and called for another ballot for the fourth man.

V. V. Ashford said that a very serious element had crept into the Convention; therefore he moved that a recess of five minutes be taken, during which time he would read the matter of the fourth candidate. Carried.

On the meeting again coming to order, Mr. Robinson begged to withdraw his name as Representative, which was consented to. Another ballot was taken immediately, when D. L. Naone received 55 votes, Cummins 29 and Keliia 14. Naone was accordingly declared elected as candidate for Representative.

The Chairman announced nominations for Nobles as next in order, when the Wards reported lists of nominations as follows:

Ward 1—M. P. Robinson, S. G. Wilder, A. Young, H. Waterhouse, W. E. Foster, H. W. Schmidt, W. O. Smith, J. I. Dowsett Sr., S. B. Dole, R. Halstead, T. J. King, A. Jaeger. Ward 2—M. P. Robinson, H. Waterhouse, E. S. Cunha, T. J. King, W. C. Wilder, J. I. Dowsett, W. E. Foster, A. Jaeger, A. Young, W. O. Smith, S. B. Dole, H. J. Nolte.

Ward 3—H. Waterhouse, W. E. Foster, R. Halstead, A. Jaeger, W. R. Castle, W. O. Smith, M. P. Robinson, W. C. Wilder, S. G. Wilder, J. I. Dowsett Sr. Ward 4—S. G. Wilder, Alex. Young, H. Waterhouse, A. Jaeger, W. E. Foster, T. J. King, H. W. Schmidt, J. I. Dowsett Sr., M. P. Robinson, R. Halstead, W. O. Smith, S. B. Dole.

Ward 5—H. Waterhouse, J. I. Dowsett Sr., A. Young, M. P. Robinson, T. J. King, S. G. Wilder, W. E. Foster, H. W. Schmidt, E. S. Cunha, A. Jaeger. Ward 6—S. G. Wilder, A. Young, J. I. Dowsett Sr., H. W. Schmidt, M. P. Robinson, W. O. Smith, R. Halstead, W. R. Castle, H. Waterhouse.

Ward 7—A. Jaeger, J. I. Dowsett, Sen., H. J. Nolte, A. Jaeger, John Cummins, E. S. Cunha, W. O. Smith, M. P. Robinson, A. Young, J. B. Atherton, W. E. Foster, T. J. King. Ward 8—S. G. Wilder, A. Young, M. P. Robinson, W. R. Castle, H. Waterhouse, H. W. Schmidt, A. Jaeger, W. E. Foster, W. O. Smith, S. B. Dole, J. I. Dowsett, Sen., R. Halstead.

Koolapoko District—H. Waterhouse, S. G. Wilder, A. Jaeger, W. O. Smith, J. I. Dowsett Sr., H. W. Schmidt, W. E. Foster. On the nominations ending, W. C.

Wilder, from the chair; J. B. Atherton and S. B. Dole each arose and thanked those who had severally nominated them, and stated that they were not candidates.

V. O. Smith wished to say a few words in regard to W. R. Castle, with whom he had served two terms in the Legislature. With the exception of Hon. Godfrey Rhodes and Hon. C. K. Bishop, none surpassed Mr. Castle in the knowledge of parliamentary practice. He would be a most useful man in the Legislature, and the speaker would sacrifice all chances of a nomination for himself if it was necessary thereby to secure the election of the gentleman for whom he spoke.

V. V. Ashford spoke of two important questions that he submitted without comment. T. S. Douglas referred to H. J. Nolte as a man of deep intelligence, who would always vote on the right side.

Cecil Brown thought all the names were known to every member of the Convention, and that they had all made up their minds. He did not think that any enigma or any criticism of any of them would change their minds. Therefore, they had better proceed to ballot.

V. V. Ashford thought the position of some members on the list should be aired. He hoped the motion to proceed to ballot would be voted down. The motion was lost.

Fred Turrill said one of the Second Ward nominees was H. Waterhouse, and although he had water in his name, yet he had never taken water in this movement. E. S. Cunha was of Portuguese nationality, had lived long in the country, and was possessed of extensive landed interests. He had received a request from the Fifth Ward to speak a word for T. J. King, who, if not exactly a representative of the younger portion of the community, yet, as was said of the ex-Premier, although his head was gray, his heart was green.

V. V. Ashford spoke of a prevailing opinion that members of the old House of Nobles should have a chance if they wanted it. Of these the names of S. G. Wilder and J. I. Dowsett Sr. were available. C. K. Bishop declining to run, H. W. Schmidt was in favor of Portuguese immigration, to the exclusion of the Chinese. If there was a question about the ninth name, W. O. Smith should be taken in preference to others who had been named. T. J. King, although without legislative experience, he was sure, would fill the position with credit.

W. B. Oleson was strongly in favor of W. R. Castle, as a man who had been in the Legislature and gone out into the country and had been a native constituency. If there were any honors to be given now, he thought they should be given to the man who "stayed by the stuff" when it meant something to stay by the stuff.

Dr. Tucker was for W. O. Smith and W. R. Castle because they were making a Legislature and needed lawyers very seriously. He had no fear that the country would ever be insulted by any such Legislature as they had last session, but would have men who would know how to vote. For that reason especially, and not only that, but they were men who they knew. They knew their record.

S. B. Dole said those who knew anything about parliamentary law knew that last session ran five months because it was conducted with a want of knowledge of parliamentary practice. And if it had not been for W. R. Castle that session might have been running yet. He had in former sessions represented Hawaiians and had always gone in for increasing their rights and decreasing their taxes. This movement puts Hawaiians in a new position. It was just as good for Hawaiians to be represented by Castle as by any man of their own color.

S. Hookano did not want to discuss the names all day. They wanted men who knew the effect of laws made in the Legislature. J. A. McCandless did not believe in putting in nine lawyers, and advocated the names of A. Young and W. E. Foster as representatives of the new element.

W. A. Kinney made brief remarks, which, owing to bad acoustics with open doors and windows, escaped the reporter. The ballot was then proceeded with, nine candidates being elected on the first vote, as follows:

Votes cast 100; necessary to elect, 51; Robinson, 97; Waterhouse, 97; Young, 93; S. G. Wilder, 91; Smith, 81; Dowsett, 79; A. Jaeger, 74; Foster, 73; Castle, 62.

The other ballots gave Schmidt 41; King 38; Cunha, 37; Nolte, 16; Halstead, 9; Cummins, 9; scattering, 3. J. H. Paty, when the cheering that greeted the announcement of the result subsided, moved that the nominations of Representatives and Nobles be made unanimous, which being seconded by several delegates passed without a dissenting voice.

W. F. Allen moved that the thanks of this Convention be tendered to Hon. W. G. Irwin for the use of the hall. Carried. J. H. Paty moved three cheers for the worthy Chairman, which were given with great enthusiasm.

J. B. Atherton proposed three cheers for the ticket, to which there was a vociferous response. John F. Smith moved for short speeches from the candidates, but as the evening shades were gathering the motion was not supported.

Cecil Brown moved the Convention adjourn subject to the call of the Chairman, which carrying the meeting dispersed.
