

THREE DIE AND FOUR RECOVER.

The Dreadful Effects of a New Drink in Chinatown.

QUICK DEATH LURKED IN THE CUP.

Three Chinamen Succumb to the Effects of What is Supposed to be Belladonna—the Maker of the Drink the First to Die—Post Mortem Held.

- Chang Leong, dead.
C. Jock Kim, dead.
Chong See, dead.
C. Apai, recovered.
Chang Wai, recovered.
Chang Ching, recovered.
Chang Chung, recovered.

The above is the result of the efforts of a newly arrived Chinaman to make a cooling drink for six of his countrymen.

Chang Leong was the name of the man who did the poisoning. About 2:30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, a number of celestials were gathered in the Kwong Hip Lung store on Hotel street.

Within an hour after Leong had made and drank his preparation, he was dead. In the meantime the others were in great agony.

The man that was taken to the hospital was, strange to say, attacked soon after his arrival there, with all the symptoms of active hydrophobia.

At the Kwong Hip Lung store the Chinamen in charge were very reticent in speaking of the matter. They allege that none of the men had been in the city for more than three weeks, and that they had no connection whatever with the establishment, but were only allowed to make the deadly tea there as a matter of accommodation.

An eye witness to the affair of Saturday said that the man who had done the cooking had taken the wrong herbs by mistake.

After Dr. Miner arrived, and just after the second man had died, the Chinamen gathered around and would not believe that he was dead.

"Sunday in Australia." "Sunday in most of the capitals of the Australian Provinces is not an enlivening day," observes a writer in London Figaro.

Persons who are subject to attacks of bilious colic can almost invariably tell, by their feelings, when to expect an attack.

PEARL HARBOR.

Mr. Girvin Extolls Its Advantages as a Harbor.

MR. EDITOR:—On the yacht Hawaii, with good company and a generous hamper of provisions, a week ago I visited Pearl Harbors for the first time.

The great depth of water close to the shore will facilitate wharf-building and the landing of heavy merchandise or naval stores.

At the Kwong Hip Lung store the Chinamen in charge were very reticent in speaking of the matter. They allege that none of the men had been in the city for more than three weeks, and that they had no connection whatever with the establishment.

REGISTRATION FIGURES.

Numbers and Nationalities of Coming Voters.

The registration of voters in Honolulu for the election of delegates to the coming Constitutional Convention has been under way for three weeks, with the following result:

Table with 2 columns: Week, Number of Voters. Rows: First Week, Second Week, Third Week, Total.

Those voters are distributed among the different districts as follows:

Table with 2 columns: District, Number of Voters. Rows: First District, Second District, Third District, Fourth District, Fifth District, Total.

Classified according to nativity there are:

Table with 2 columns: Nationality, Number of Voters. Rows: Natives and half-caste, Hawaiian born, American, British, German, Portuguese, All others, Total.

If this latter classification had been by nationality or citizenship instead of by place of birth, the American element would have cut a considerably larger figure on account of the large proportion of British and German born residents who are naturalized citizens of the United States.

The registration office will remain open one week longer, closing on Saturday evening next, April 21st.
