MISSION CHILDREN

Rev. S. E. Bishop Tells of a Journey In 1836.

From Waimea to Kailua On Hawaii. Prof. C. Ira McDonald Talks of the Life of John Ruskin.

The regular monthly meeting of the Hawaiian Mission Children's Society was held Saturday evening at the home of Mr. J. B. Atherton. There were about fifty present. The meeting was opened with singing, and a prayer by Rev. S. E. Bishop. A solo by Miss Hyde was beautifully rendered.

Rev. S. E. Bishop gave reminiscences of a trip from Waimea to Kailua in 1836. The start was made in March. The children were carried by the natives. Natives also carried the food and luggage. They were paid in fish-hooks, twine, knives and other useful things. A dozen natives could be hired for about 75 cents a day. The method of starting a fire by means of rubbing sticks together was very interesting. The natives would take a piece of dry hard wood and make a narrow groove in it. Then taking another sharp piece of hard wood they would rub it back and forth in this groove. A fine dust would be formed, which after vigorous rubbing would begin to smolder and then break into a flame from which they would kindle the fire. They passed by many small settlements of the natives. Often services were held. They also went to the crater of Kilanea. In many respects it is now very similar to what it was then.

Miss McDonald spoke of the life of Ruskin. She spoke of the change that had taken place in the world. In former times people thought that the world should serve them rather than that they should serve the world. Now men seek to serve their fellow men. The spirit of Christ has brought about this change. We find the spirit in which Christ said: "I came not to be ministered unto, but to minister," has so come down the ages that the world has caught the spirit of Christ. To be of service to the world rather than to have the world serve them is coming to be the spirit of the age.

Most people admire Ruskin as a writer rather than a philanthropist. Two years ago, Miss McDonald listened to a sermon on Ruskin. The thoughts so impressed her that she began to study him. She then said she would like to give a few things of interest in the life of John Ruskin as a great missionary—for he was great in this capacity. He was born in 1819 in London. His father was a man of wealth and influence. He was well educated. He was as well a great Bible student. It is well to remember that his wonderful literary style and literary ability is due to a great extent to his knowledge of the Bible. His works rank second to none in this country.

Ruskin inherited from his father about one million dollars. He received over a half a million of dollars from the sale of his works. They are bringing in continually a large sum which he made a trust fund for helpless people. He first determined to give one-tenth of his fortune to charity. He said after a short time that this was not sufficient, and he gave one-half. He bought works of art and had them put in the city schools. He was the workingman's friend. In 1877, he had given away all he had up to $250,000. Soon after he gave all his fortune away except enough to bring him in £1,500 a year. All his works of art he gave to the Sheffield museum, that students might go there and copy beautiful models. Ruskin refused a life of elegance and luxury to give his time and money to poor people. His interest and sympathies have always been given to poor people. He says there are five ways of spending life: First, for yourself; second, for others; third, in exhibition or display; fourth, to spend it for destruction; fifth, to spend it as a bequest.

Ruskin took up the defense of Mr. Turner the great landscape painter. He was at first ridiculed by the people. Ruskin said the people must have expression of sympathy. He was the founder of art exhibits. By his influence he has been able to borrow the best paintings and works of art from the homes of the wealthy, so that they might be seen by the poor.

Mr. Love then rendered very beautifully a violin solo, Miss Love accompanying with piano.

A letter from Will Castle was read, giving a few college experiences. The meeting closed with a hymn.

Among the arrivals from Maui ports on the Maui, Sunday, were the following: Mrs. S. W. Kaai, A. Haneberg, W. H. Holokahiki and T. H. Macdonald.

The date for the opening of the baseball season is still undecided.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Happy Home Gathering in Honor of Miss Rowena Dowsett.

A party to Miss Rowena Dowsett was given at her home in Kapa'ama Friday night in celebration of the completion of another year of her life. The young lady was most happy upon the arrival of about 150 guests who enjoyed to the full the excellent entertainment planned for them. There was not a single flaw in the happy proceedings.

The house was prettily decorated and nicely arranged. The large dining hall with its oiled floor had on the wall one mass of flowers and here it was that most of the dancers chose to go. The two parlors just opposite, were decorated in the same manner as the dining hall and the floors covered with canvas for dancing. Between these was stationed the quintette club giving music for both sides, while over in the Ewa corner, was an attractive booth surrounded with palms and Hawaiian flags, where refreshments were served. All about on the verandas were comfortable chairs for the guests.

Miss Dowsett received the hearty congratulations of all.

Men Who Wear Clothes

Might as well buy garments that fit and wear well as to buy garments that don't fit and don't wear long, either. It's just as easy and cheap to make clothes that fit a to make clothes that don't. It's only a question of "know how."

That's why we prosper, knowing how.
