A Lump of Carbon.

Tell me, lump of Carbon, burning
Lurid in the glowing grate,
While thy flames rise twisting, turning,
Quench in me this curious yearning,
Ages past elucidate.

Tell me of the time when, waving
High above the primal world,
Then, a giant palm-tree, lifting
Thy proud head above the shifting
Of the storm-cloud's lightning hurled,
While the tropic sea, hot laving,
Round thy roots its billows curled.

Tell me, did the Mammoth, straying
Near that mighty trunk of yours,
On the verdure stop and graze,
Which thy ample base displays,
Or his weary limbs down laying,
Sleep away the tardy hours?

Perchance some monstrous Saurian, sliding,
Waddled up the neighboring strand,
Or leapt into its native sea
With something of agility,
Though all ungainly on the land;
While near your roots, in blood-stained fray,
Maybe two lithtype beasts, colliding,
Bit and fought their lives away.

Tell me, ancient Palm-corpse, was there
In that world of yours primeval
Aught of man in perfect shape?
Was there good? and was there evil?
Was it man? or was it ape?

Tell me, lump of Carbon, burning
Lurid in the glowing grate,
Lies there in each human face
Something of the monkey's trace?
Tell me, have we lost a link?
Stir thy coaly brain and think,
While thy red flames rise and sink,
Ages past elucidate.

Latest Foreign News.

Assassination of the Czar of Russia.

The barkentine Ella arrived from San Francisco on Tuesday evening, bringing news to the 18th ultimo. The most important item of foreign news is the assassination of the Czar of Russia by the Nihilists, of which we give a full account:

LONDON, March 13th.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says: As the Emperor was returning from a parade in Michael Manege about 2 o'clock this afternoon, a bomb was thrown which exploded under the Czar's carriage, which was considerably damaged. The Czar alighted unhurt, but a second bomb exploded at his feet, shattering both legs below the knee, and inflicting other terrible injuries. The Czar was immediately conveyed in an unconscious state to the Winter Palace, where he died at 4.30 o'clock this afternoon. Two persons were concerned in the crime, one of whom was seized immediately. The explosion also killed an officer and two Cossacks. Many policemen and other persons were injured.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

BERLIN, March 13th.—To Blaine, Secretary of State, Washington: The Emperor of Russia was assassinated this afternoon. WHITE, Minister.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 13th.—The Official Messenger makes the following announcement: God's will has been done. At 3.25 o'clock this Sunday afternoon the Almighty called the Emperor to himself. A few minutes before his death the Emperor received the sacrament.

SYMPATHY EXPRESSED.

WASHINGTON, March 13th.—Upon receipt of a dispatch from Foster that the Emperor was dead, Secretary Blaine cabled the following:

Foster, American Minister, St. Petersburg: Express to the Minister of Foreign Affairs the sentiments of sorrow with which the President and people of the United States have heard of the terrible crime of which the Emperor has been a victim, and their profound sympathy with the Imperial family and the Russian people in their great affliction.

BLAINE, Secretary.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

LONDON, March 13th.—A St. Petersburg correspondent says: The Imperial carriage was attacked on the Ikat Rinofsky canal, opposite the Imperial stables, while the Emperor was returning with Grand Duke Michael from the Michael Palace in a closed carriage, supported by eight Cossacks. The first bomb fell near the carriage, destroying the back part. The Czar and his brother alighted uninjured. The assassin, on being seized by the Colonel of Police, drew a revolver, but was prevented from firing it. A second bomb was then thrown by another person, and fell close to the Czar's feet, its explosion shattering both legs. The Czar fell, crying for help. Colonel Dorjibki, though himself much injured, raised the Emperor, who was conveyed to the Winter Palace in Colonel Dorjibki's sleigh. Large crowd's assembled before the Palace, but were kept back by troops of Cossacks. The Imperial family were all assembled at the deathbed. A Council of State was immediately convened, and all places of public resort closed.

THE CZAR'S INJURIES — EXCITED POPULACE.

LONDON, March 13th.—A St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs: The Czar's right leg was nearly torn from his body, and the left leg was badly shattered. A Cossack and a passer-by were killed on the spot. Grand Duke Nicholas was wounded. An officer of the escort and a Cossack have since died. The Czar lingered an hour and a half. All efforts to rally him failed. The only word he uttered after being struck was the name of the Czarowitz. The latter on leaving the palace after the death of the Czar was hailed as Emperor by the crowd. He was surrounded, contrary to his custom, by a strong mounted escort. The people are intensely excited and indignant. The soldiery, who greatly love the Czar, are furious. All the officials hastened to the palace to inquire as to the condition of the Czar. It is stated that the bombs were made of thick glass filled with nitro-glycerine. The assassins stood on opposite sides of the road. The carriage was moving fast, and the first shell struck the ground behind it and the back of the carriage was blown out. The coachman implored the Czar to enter the carriage again, but he moved a few paces from the vehicle to see the wounded of his escort. The assassin who threw the first bomb tried to point a revolver at the Czar, but the pistol was struck from his hand. The Czar seemed to recover consciousness before death, as he motioned away the doctors who wished to amputate his leg. The Czarowitz and Czarina drove to the palace after his death, to avoid the sympathizing cries of the people. A company of guards surrounded the palace. The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh and Grand Duke Alexis have left London for St. Petersburg.

HOW THE NEWS WAS RECEIVED AT WASHINGTON.

NEW YORK, March 13th.—The Tribune's Washington dispatch says: The news of the death of the Czar of Russia by the explosion of an incendiary bomb reached here early in the afternoon, and created some excitement in the hotel lobbies and among office-seekers. The information came in a special cable dispatch from Minister Foster at St. Petersburg to Secretary Blaine, and was by him submitted to the President. The records of the State Department contain some very earnest expressions of sympathy on the part of the Russian Government at the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, and it is a remarkable coincidence that a similar dispatch was to-day added, tendering the sympathy of our Government to the Russian Imperial family because the chief of the nation had fallen by an assassin's hand. The Russian Minister called at the residence of Secretary Blaine in the afternoon, and received from the Secretary his first information of the tragedy.

WORK OF THE BOMB—THE ASSASSINS.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14th—A. M.—The doctor's bulletin, published at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, stated that both legs were broken below the knee, the lower part of the body severely injured, and the left eye torn from its socket. Grand Duke Michael was not hurt. The assassins were disguised as peasants. One report states that one of them was so roughly handled that he has since died. All the army officers have been ordered to remain in the barracks. When Colonel Dorjibki asked the first assassin his name, he replied, Rousakoff.

WASHINGTON, March 14th.—The following dispatch has just been received:

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14th.—To Blaine, Washington: The Czarowitz ascends the throne as Alexander III.

FOSTER.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14th.—Dr. Dvoniachine, who was among the physicians first summoned to the Czar, immediately brought the necessary instruments for the amputation of the legs, which were held by the flesh only, the bones being broken. Blood flowed copiously from the lacerated wounds. India rubber bandages were applied, first to the right leg below the knee and then to the left. The Czar's right hand, on which was a glove, was found to be greatly lacerated. His marriage ring was broken to pieces and driven into the flesh. The surgeons tied up the several arteries, and at length, under the influence of sulphate of oxygen and ice, the Emperor opened his eyes and respiration became more apparent. Chaplain Bjainot availed himself of the interval of apparent consciousness to administer the sacrament, and for a moment hopes were entertained of the Czar's life, but a minute or two afterwards his heart ceased to beat. During the final flicker of life members of the family surrounded the bed. The arch priest recited prayers for those in extremes, all present kneeling. The spectacle was heart-rending.

All the officers of the guards, civil officials and court dignitaries met to-day at the Winter Palace to take the oath of allegiance to the new Emperor. When all had assembled the Emperor and Empress and the Imperial family issued from the cabinet where the dead Czar lay. In passing through St. George's Hall, on the way to the chapel, the Emperor stopped before the Guard of Honor and said with emotion: "I should not like my son to ascend the throne under such circumstances as at present."

The Czar, it seems, was warned against attending the parade Sunday. After alighting from the shattered carriage the Emperor approached Roussakoff and ordered his removal. The police had difficulty in protecting the second assassin from the fury of the crowd. One of the Czar's legs was shattered to the top of the thigh, the abdomen was torn open and his face injured. The surgeon declared amputation impossible.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14th.—The bells of the city are tolling, and there are everywhere to be seen manifestations of mourning on account of the assassination of the Czar. Public buildings, stores and residences are draped in black. Offices of legations, Government Departments, stores and places of business generally, are closed. Throngs of people are in the streets discussing the terrible crime which has shocked the whole country. The arrangements for the funeral of the murdered Emperor will be made on the most extensive scale, befitting the high rank of the dead ruler.

It is the prevailing opinion here now that the Czar of Russia will find serious obstacles confronting him at the outset of his reign. Rumors of Nihilist plots are rife, and fears of outbreaks and further assassinations are expressed.

THE FIRST AND SECOND BOMBS.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14th.—The man arrested yesterday confessed that he threw the first bomb, but denies all knowledge of the person who threw the second. In addition to the revolver which the prisoner attempted to use, a dagger was found upon him. The name he gave is believed to be false. The prisoner is 21 years of age.

During the night a Cossack and civilian, who declined to give his name, died from injuries received by the bursting of a bomb. Altogether twenty persons, more or less, are injured.

THE SECOND BOMB-THROWER ARRESTED.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14th.—Roussakoff, who threw the first bomb, has been a student two years at the Mining Academy. The second bomb-thrower has been arrested. He is also a young man.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14th.—The police arrested several persons who were overheard denouncing the dead Emperor and applauding the murder. Upon the arrest of the second assassin he admitted his guilt.

PARIS, March 14th.—President Grevy has telegraphed condolences to the Imperial Russian family.

ROME, March 14th.—The Russian Grand Dukes Sergius and Paul, sons of the late Emperor, leave to-day for St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 17th.—A revolutionary proclamation has been discovered at Roussakoff's domicile. It declares that the Nihilists will continue their work, and warns the new Emperor to beware of his father's fate.

Twelve pounds of dynamite have been found in a mine near the Czar's Palace.

The Communists in New York have called a meeting to sympathize with the Nihilists and rejoice in the death of the Czar. They have cabled congratulations to the Nihilists in Russia.

PARIS, March 17th.—Placards congratulating the Nihilists on the assassination of the Czar have been posted here, and one arrest has been made.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 17th.—A measure has actually been prepared, with the sanction of the late Czar, tending toward representative Government.
