Hawaiian Tribe No. 1, Imp. O R M., meets at the Wigwam, Fort st., this sleep, at the 7th run, 30th breath.

To-day is Good Friday, commemorating the crucifixion of the Saviour of mankind. It is universally observed throughout Christendom, but with peculiar strictness in purely Roman Catholic countries. In some parts of England it is called "Passion Friday," a name also in use in Germany. There, however, it is usually called "Still Friday," though "Black Friday" is a name common over Southern Germany. "Holy Friday" is the title adopted in most of the Latin-derived languages.

Further intelligence from Koolau is to the effect that the Chinaman, named Ah Young, fired three shots, night before last, at the woman, named Monika, two missing and the last hitting her on the right side, the ball being still in the wound. Yesterday p. m. Dr. Emerson, accompanied by Deputy-Marshal Dayton, went to Koolau to attend upon the wounded woman. After the shooting, a native seized the Chinaman and tied him with a rope, but the fellow pretended to be very ill, so the native untied him, whereupon the Chinaman grabbed a butcher knife and stabbed the native, but not dangerously, in the side, before he could be again secured. He said he was ready to go to prison, and that when he came out he would kill the woman and her whole family. He has been living with the woman, but unmarried. The pistol is a self-cocking one, and was secured.
