REAL MERMAID IS CAPTURED

Dies from Injury and Body is Stuffed and Placed in Case

New York Telegram: Among the 2300 and odd persons on board the White Star line steamship Olympic when she arrived from Southampton there was some more interesting than William Legg, engineer's storekeeper of the mammoth vessel, who has followed the sea for more than thirty years. That Mr. Legg had with him on board the Olympic, safely guarded under a glass case a real, bona fide mermaid, was only the least of the interesting things about the man.

While he was lighthouse keeper of the Steep Island Lighthouse, off the Chinese coast, about one hundred and fifty miles from Shanghai, Mr. Legg picked up on the afternoon of September 2, 1902, a living mermaid. The mermaid had been flung on the rocks and was still alive when picked up by Mr. Legg. The body below the waist was that of a fish, with a fin on the back and one on the stomach and a double tailed tail. The body was of a dark greenish-blue, without scales, while the head and shoulders were of the regulation human flesh. The mermaid was about twenty-four inches long and emitted a whining sound before it died, death being caused by a laceration in the throat, where it had been flung on a sharp rocky projection.

"As you see by the stuffed body," said Mr. Legg today, "the mermaid had a perfect human face, slightly Chinese in cast. Her hair was brown as some of the hair still shows, although most of it has turned white by the action of the acids used in preserving the body. The Chinese fisherman told me that they had very often seen these mermaids, which they called 'witches,' and have heard them making their peculiar whining noise on the shores at night. These mermaids do not live in the water, but between the crevices of the rocks on the Chinese coast, going into deep water only for an occasional swim."

Head Size Of Baby's. The body of the mermaid as it recurred under the glass case in Mr. Legg's room on board the Olympic showed a perfect human head, with hair probably four inches long, part of it white and part of it brown. It had regular teeth and nose, but the size of the head was not larger than that of a new born baby. There were no evidences of scales on the body. A remarkable thing about the mermaid was the perfect shape of the hands and the arms, and the muscles of the arms where they had been preserved by the preserving fluid were plainly visible.

Those who doubt the truth of Mr. Legg's statement will doubtless change their minds when they know that he is an intensely religious man, God fearing and devoting his life to the betterment of the sailor. Stripped to the waist, Mr. Legg presents a wonderful appearance. Tattooed on his chest are Scriptural texts, and across his stomach is tattooed the most wonderful picture of the Lord's Last Supper in colors. Mr. Legg is unable to say from what painting the picture tattooed on himself was taken, but it is a most wonderful work of art. When he turns around there is found tattooed on his back between his shoulder blades the Lord's Prayer and underneath that the hymn "Nearer My God to Thee."

Read Song From Back. "It was from my back as I worked in the hold of this steamship that the engineers who sang "Nearer My God to Thee" upon the sinking of the Titanic learned that hymn. The unfortunate fellows worked with me on board the Olympic and other White Star vessels, and they could plainly read as they worked the inscription on my back."

Mr. Legg has lectured on the subject of his mermaid in England, giving in full the proceeds of his lectures to the Seamen's missions in England. He thinks of quitting the sea and exhibiting himself and the mermaid for the benefit of the various religious bodies connected with the sea-farers' lives in Great Britain.

"Until I found this mermaid" had heard the peculiar moans and whinnings on the rocky shores of the Chinese sea often, but had never believed it possible that these sounds came from real mermaids. The place where he picked up this strange being lies between the Bonham and Ting Tong Lighthouses. I never found another after this one, although I have heard of many cases where the natives have come across the mermaids."

Mr. Legg does not profess to explain the presence of these mermaids in the Chinese waters, but he declares that the one he has is absolute proof that they do exist.

SCOTTISH SHAFTS TO TAP COAL SEAM UNDER OCEAN BED

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Oct. 15.—The efforts to reclaim coal from under the bed of the ocean, now being made by the Carrow Coal Company by means of the sinking of a shaft on the foreshore of the Firth of Forth, are being watched with deep interest by the other coal masters of Scotland.

Having thrown a pier out into the firth for a distance of 100 yards they are now conducting their sinking operations in a totally novel way. Cast iron cylinders in sections of five feet are being sunk deep into the silt and already a depth of 80 feet has been attained. This method will be pursued until the bed rock is reached at a depth possibly of 150 feet. The cylinders sink by their own weight into the soft mud. The man being lowered in a bucket inside the cylinder and a suction pump is used to draw the further sections are added on top and so on until the total depth is reached.

The company is about to sink another shaft, as two are necessary for the workings. Great satisfaction is being expressed on the progress made and hopes are entertained of the early opening of an important colliery, which will afford work for hundreds of men and obtain a new and almost inexhaustible supply of coal for the world.

WANT TO BAR CARS FROM USE AT POLLS

English Political Reformers Would Eliminate Automobiles from Elections.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Drastic as are the election laws of England today, certain reformers want to draw the net closer still. They aim most of all to cut out the automobile as an aid to polling supporters.

Ever since cars have come into use in politics there have been problems to deal with concerning them. First insurance companies asked an extra premium for cars used on election day, and when the matter was referred to the Royal Automobile club, the experts decided the insurance companies were right, as the cars under such conditions were not used for private use.

That is going to land keen politicians into heavy extra expense in the future. But the ardent political reformers are seeking to find some means of eliminating most of the cars used, on the ground that their use is contrary to the spirit of the corrupt and illegal practices prevention acts. Perhaps their object is hardly disinterested, since the preponderance of cars in contests is mostly against the Radical reformers and on the side of the Conservatives.

25 CENT "DANDERINE" FOR FALLING HAIR AND DANDRUFF—GROWS HAIR

Don't Pay 50 Cents for Worthless Hair Tonics — Use Old, Reliable, Harmless "Danderine" — Get Results

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—anytime—will surely save your hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application you will say it was the best investment you ever made. Your hair will immediately take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Mrs. Jack Clark, whose address is Box 38, E. F. D. No. 1, Medicine Lodge, Kansas, says:

"Through overwork I suffered from a general breakdown for about a year. I was very nervous all of the time and had no strength at all. I had severe headaches which nearly drove me crazy. They often lasted for two or three days. I was subject to dizzy spells and a blurring sensation over my eyes. I was also subject to hot flashes. Any little excitement would bring on these nervous and dizzy spells. I could get but little rest and was tired out all of the time. I had no ambition to work and was frequently forced to stay in bed for a day or so.

"I did not get any benefit until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They helped me so much that I was soon able to sleep well and after a thorough trial I was entirely cured. Since then I have given the pills to my daughter, who was very weak and in poor health, and they cured her also. We feel that we cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People too highly."
