JORDAN'S

ANNA KLUMPKE, NOTED IN ART AND LETTERS, NOW IN HONOLULU

Companion of Rosa Bonheur Talks of Her Work and Plans for Visit Here

By MIRIAM STACKER.
A truly wonderful member of a talented family is Miss Anna Klumpke, native daughter of the Golden West distinguished in art and letters beyond the margin which few women strive to reach and fewer still do reach.

Miss Klumpke arrived here yesterday on the Wilhelmina. It is her first visit to Honolulu and within the short space of a few hours she had been in two automobiles visiting places of interest, was interviewed by a representative of the Star-Bulletin, caught a glimpse of the night-blooming cereus and admired Torrey's portrait of Judge Dole.

Possessed of rare talent as a painter of portraits and as the companion and friend of the late Rosa Bonheur, and her biographer as well, this little woman, who speaks French with the true accent of the Parisienne, though American born, is one of the most distinguished women of the French capital. A guest at every reception given by the nobility, if that term is to be used in speaking of the people of a Republic, with entrance to every salon and exhibition, and the holder of the Temple medal, received in 1889, she is almost without a peer in the world of art. And Honolulu has her for a visitor, and Prof. and Mrs. Ingalls as their guest.

Completes Bonheur Biography.
To Miss Klumpke the greatest achievement of her life is the completion of the biography of the great woman painter, Rosa Bonheur, written as a legacy Miss Klumpke has a number of canvases the artist left behind and many valuable souvenirs. Of the paintings, she has ten of moderate size which she will exhibit during her short stay. The book, "Rosa Bonheur, Sa Vie Son Oeuvre," occupied the attention of the painter-author for six years.

When I had finished the manuscript there came the selection of the illustrations, of which there are three hundred, and the work was finally printed by George Petit, the famous printer of France. Among the illustrations is, of course, "The Horse Fair," because it is one of the best known of her great pictures. But Miss Bonheur would not consent to have this canvas referred to as her greatest work; she had another which she considered had greater value from an artistic sense. The owner of the "Horse Fair," M. Campard, was a dear friend of Miss Bonheur, and it was with him we were photographed on an occasion when we had our medals with us.

"Miss Bonheur is an example of the heights the woman of ability may attain through application. No woman artist commanded the attention she did throughout the world where she might be personally known or through notices which the press showered upon her. My relations with her were of the most intimate character and she looked upon me, I know, with the affection which comes from mother to daughter. She was a part of my life; as much, I believe, as I was a part of hers, so it was natural that at the end she should ask me to tell the world of her life and her works. I am prouder of my accomplishment in this respect than of the medals I have received as a testimonial of my work as an artist. That work is a gift, originally and amplified through study and application; my position as biographer of the greatest woman painter the world ever knew came to me as a request from one who was next to mother in my affections and it was my pleasure to be able to comply."

Miss Klumpke has painted many portraits in Boston of the distinguished citizens of that city and of others throughout New England. She has the distinction enjoyed by few women artists, "Ex out de June," or, in other words, of exhibiting one painting in the salon without discussion by the committee. This is her's by right of the bronze medal awarded for an exhibited portrait in the Exhibition Universelle, which is equal to the third medal. She exhibited in Philadelphia in 1889 and was winner of the famous Temple medal for her subject "Women in the Wash House," which now hangs in the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

Has Ten Bonheurs Here.
"Just where I will hold an exhibition in Honolulu has not been decided," said Miss Klumpke. "I have five of my own paintings and ten originals by Rosa Bonheur, one of them, 'In the Meadow,' being a rare gem. I have an unfinished canvas of Mrs. de Breteville in San Francisco which I shall finish when I return and should I receive any commissions here I will return and paint them. Just now, you will understand, I am on vacation and will not do much hard work. I love to talk of my work because I think it a great thing that a daughter of the Golden West should be called upon to put before the world the story of the life of a true eigner. And I want to say that the influence of America on the advance of women in all lines, both professionally and in business has its effect in the old world.

As to Suffrage.
"Am I a believer in woman suffrage? Yes and no. It depends upon the length you would have to go. I am opposed to women voting for State offices or for National ones. If her vote would make the schools better; if it would advance the cause of women, make her better in this world and if her vote would be in the interest of the purity of the ballot as applied to county affairs, I believe I could be won over. I am not, however, a suffragette in the fullest sense of the term as applied in London, for I believe it is not the mission of women to attack officials of government and break windows. The freedom of women and equal rights can come through more peaceable means."

"Miss Bonheur was of the opinion that women should not band themselves together for any purpose in order to be independent of men and with much of my life spent with her it is natural that I should feel the influence of her thoughts. Every woman has a career if she will but set out to make it and it is attainable whether she appear at the polls or attends strictly to her affairs. There is much in the world for woman to do. This is being shown in the ranks of scientists and in business every day. Perhaps the efforts of the more aggressive suffragettes has given woman an inkling of what may be accomplished; she has been shown the road and quickly, in this generation, takes it."

Miss Klumpke is one of four daughters who have achieved fame, one as a musician, another as an astronomer and still another as a physician. She has brought among her art works to be shown here a portrait of her father which is said to be an excellent sample of her excellent work.

RUSSIAN BRIDGE PARTY PINCHED

Fortune finally favored two Russian damsels who arranged before Police Judge Monsarrat this morning upon a charge of being present where gambling was openly conducted, were released upon a promise that hereafter they would never again hover about in the vicinity where games of chance held forth unlawfully.

As a result of a raid made by Chief McDuffie and his assistants, a number of Russians were rounded up. One failed to respond to roll call, this morning and a ten dollar deposit to insure his appearance, was forfeited.

Four victims of the McDuffie vigilance were assessed fines of five dollars and the court costs.

The detective department swooped down upon a sextette of old timers in police annals this morning, when they were engaged in an attempt to work a little fortune by the assistance of dice and good luck. McDuffie and his men placed under arrest a delegation of Hawaiians. One giving his name as Hanale, and being recognized by His Honor as one addicted to the habit of playing return engagements at police court.

"This is only the fourth time that I have been here," declared Hanale when cross questioned by the magistrate.

"You are fined $10 and costs," pronounced Judge Monsarrat. Four members in this party were assessed the nominal five dollars and costs.

It cost Ah Lum a fever this morning for admitting that his hook was permitted to remain at a place on the streets of Honolulu other than a regularly designated stand for such articles. The Chinese produced the coin and departed much saddened but a considerably wiser Jehu.

Joe Alves declared on the stand today that he never administered a blow upon the person of his better half as alleged in the complaint. An inquiry into the case developed the fact that Alves was about correct in his denial to the allegations and he was discharged.

CALLED SUPERIOR

fore the court Haynes' fiery letter that was read in its entirety. There was an evident intention on the part of Captain Hopkins, who, with Captain Culler, is counsel for the defense, to show that there had been a possible "inspiration" for Haynes' epistle; but that inquiry was not pushed vigorously.

The second witness was Dr. Vans Agnew and his testimony referred chiefly to the "I-won't-tell-you" attitude of Dr. Haynes and brought out the details of the carrying away to Moanalua polo field of certain veterinary instruments without Dr. Haynes complying with the orders that memorandum receipts be given therefor in such a case.

Minded Own Business.
Two enlisted men who were present at the time Haynes was so short in his replies to his senior, corroborated Vans Agnew in his testimony; but one, Cavanaugh, though admitting that he was present on that occasion, said "I was attending to my own business," and was promptly excused.

Following this witness adjournment was taken in this case to await the arrival of Major McClure, the much-needed man in the Willyoung case.

MATHESON ASKS KUHIO FOR JOB

The following letter has just been made public:
"Honolulu, Hawaii, June 21, 1912.
"Hon. J. K. Katanianaoale, City.
"My Dear Kuhio:—I cabled you just prior to your leaving Washington, to this effect: 'Commercial bodies favorable to me secretary provided favorable you,' which cable I followed by a letter, which you will probably have forwarded back here from Washington. I have been waiting, since you returned, to call on you and make an application in person for the position which Mr. McClellan will leave in October, but have not wanted to appear in any unseemly haste about it.

"Will you kindly look upon me as an applicant, and, if you have any idea that the application might be approved of, will you let me know when it would be convenient for me to call and talk it over with you. If I am personally agreeable to you, I do not think I will have any particular trouble in getting the same backing from the commercial bodies as was given Mr. McClellan. I say this as a result of conversations with a few of the officers of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants' Association.

"Trusting to hear from you soon, I am, yours very truly,
"R. O. MATHESON."

It was stated this morning at the Delegate's office that the letter has not been answered.

WHY NOT?
