HILO IS EXCITED OVER MYSTERIOUS VESSEL RUMORS

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence.)

HILO, May 14.—All Hilo was anxious last Saturday morning when the news was brought from Maui that a supposed raider was off the shores of Molokai and Maui and that she had two funnels, one of them evidently a dummy. The report was sent into Kahului by Captain Parker, the harbormaster at that port. The captain had been out early making his way to Lahaina and, when near the site of what was once McGregor's Landing, he had seen a strange looking vessel out at sea. He felt sure that one of the two funnels sported by the steamer was a dummy. The captain reported the matter by telephone from Lahaina to Kahului and then the scene of excitement is said to have eventuated.

The first thing done was to arrange for two sampans to make the circle of the Island of Maui from different sides. These two boats were very speedy and they were soon off on their journey. In the course of time they met on the Kihei side of Maui and then both saw the strange looking steamer, away off Molokini. The sampans headed toward the ship and she at once steamed off at full speed into the wide Pacific.

In the meantime an island steamer was making her way to a Maui port and the captain, when off Molokini, also saw the stranger. He describes her as a peculiar-looking craft with two funnels—one of them a false one, he declares.

A Matson steamer was in Kahului harbor, waiting to start for Hilo, here to get a cargo of sugar and to pick up the former German steamer O. J. D. Ahlers and tow her to San Francisco. Captain Ryan was informed of the presence of the supposed raider and was advised to sail with all lights extinguished. This was done and the vessel arrived safely in Hilo Bay on Saturday morning.

While some people do not believe in the raider story, others declare that the vessel is probably the one that has been reported from Samoa and Fiji, and that the extra funnel has been raised in order to divert suspicion from her, as in the real South Seas she was described as having only one funnel.

That the raider, if there is one, is waiting for a chance to attack some steamer bound for the coast and thus obtain supplies, is the opinion of many citizens. Still there are said to be Japanese warships in Hawaiian waters and they should be able to handle the situation all right.

Since the above was written, investigation has failed to confirm the story of the mysterious vessel.

MID-PACIFIC FOR JUNE IS BRIGHT

The June number of the Mid-Pacific Magazine is out on the newsstands today, and keeps up its high standard of interest.

From the bright color cover, showing beautiful Waialua Falls, Kauai, to the last page, this month's Mid-Pacific is a magazine of quality. Articles concerning Hawaiinel, as usual are featured, but practically every country of the Pacific is represented in its pages.

For Japan, Baron Shibusawa contributes an article entitled "Spiritual Japan and America"; the Editor's Diary this month tells of the "Busiest City in the World," Canton, China; the art section, on fine art-paper, shows sixteen pages of some of the wonders and industries of New South Wales and Australia; N. H. Sutherland tells of the wonderful miniature exhibits of Canada at San Francisco, and then tells of the real thing in the Great Dominion; Horace F. Clark sends his "Manila notebook, which appears in the form of an article: "Rambles About Manila."

J. M. Lydgate contributes an account of the history of the "Last King of Kauai," and Woods Peters, a young Honolulan, tells of a venturesome trip with his bicycle through the "Big Island" of Hawaii.

"Mark Twain on Maui" is full of interest, and contains experiences and anecdotes of the great humorist on the "Valley Isle." Mrs. Jack London's "Log of the Spark" is concluded in the June number, but a new series of South Sea articles has been promised by Mrs. London.

The Mid-Pacific, edited and printed entirely in Honolulu, is a magazine that compares favorably with any publication of its kind anywhere, and the June number, just out, is a good example.

THINK CRIMINAL TRYING TO WRECK TRAINS AT HILO

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

HILO, May 14.—That some criminal or maniac is deliberately trying to murder somebody by derailing trains of the Hawaii Consolidated Railway Company is very evident. For the second time within a week a switch has been tampered with near Moohean Park and only for certain safeguards provided by the railroad company there would have been another wrecked locomotive last Saturday evening. It will be remembered that a week ago the evening train to Paauilo was derailed and the engine sent digging into the sand of Moohesu Park when a switch that should have been closed was found to be open.

Last Saturday night the train came along, as usual, from Waiakea but the crew took no chances of another accident and a man was sent head to see if the switch was properly closed. Much to the surprise of this man, he found that the switch, although showing most of the white signal, was open again. The train was halted and the switch properly closed before the engineer went ahead.

That a serious wreck was only avoided by the care taken by the company is sure. It was rather in the shape of a miracle that the engineer was not killed a week ago when his locomotive turned over on its side and narrowly missed pinning him beneath it.

The second outrage is a horrible one and the police are being urged to look into the matter and place guards, or in some way or another, get hold of the man who is so criminal at heart as to wreck a train and attempt to kill the crew and passengers. The military authorities may be appealed to as they are guarding many other institutions in and around Hilo.

The mystery of how the switch is opened is in a fair way to be explained and a certain man is under suspicion. If he is proved to be the perpetrator of the crimes he should get the limit in jail.
