

OAHU WILL HAVE NO COUNTY FAIR UNTIL NEXT YEAR

Because of Short Time for Organization, 1917 Plans Go By the Board

Because of the late date at which the commission would be organized, plans to hold a county fair in Honolulu next month have been abandoned, Chairman James D. Dougherty announced today. Mr. Dougherty was appointed chairman by the governor yesterday. Chairman Dougherty, however, will begin immediately to make plans for the fair to be held next year. Sometime between now and the first of October he will summon to Honolulu members of the commission to Honolulu for a conference, at which time the first steps toward drawing up the plans will be taken. Aside from Chairman Dougherty, the members of the commission are Harold Rice, Maui; James Henderson, Hawaii; A. Hebard Case, Kauai, and Valentine Holt, Oahu.

At this meeting a secretary and publicity manager will probably be appointed in order that there may be no delay in starting the work. Where the fair will be held next year is still a matter of doubt, but there is a possibility that Honolulu will be selected. Among other reasons for not holding a fair this year, it was thought that on account of the recent outbreak of anthrax on this island, owners of prize stock on the other islands would not care to bring their cattle to Honolulu at this time.

Chairman Dougherty says he has excellent fair plans in mind, but that they are not ready to be announced yet.

JOHN F. HALEY CALLED BY DEATH

The County Review of Fresno, Cal. He showed marked aptitude and liking for newspaper work and later as a reporter started against veterans in the work.

Col. Hank Martin, who as star reporter of the Sun had to work against Haley when the latter was on the Tribune, declared that Haley was one of the hardest nuts he "ever had to crack."

Having established the Nevada Magazine in 1899, Haley founded the Basins City News at Fresno in 1901. A year later he was with the Grass Valley Union, then later intermountain manager for the California Newspaper Syndicate. He served as city editor of the Nevada State Journal at Reno, managing editor of the Ely Mining Exporter, was in the editorial department of the San Diego Union and city editor of the Advertiser of Honolulu. This last position was from 1912 to 1915, and he left it to accept the revenue office.

Haley was state bullion tax and license agent of Nevada from July, 1908, to May, 1910. When he took the office the revenue of the state from bullion taxes was about $100,000. He increased it in a year to $225,000.

When he took the office owners of some of the biggest mines in the state were paying practically no taxes. They claimed the tax law was unjust and had claimed so for years before his advent. Haley told them no matter what the law was—and he believed it was just—that so long as it was on the books he would enforce it.

He made good his promise. They laughed at him at first, but soon began to feel his persistence, his energy and his fighting qualities. He procured criminal indictments against the chief offender. The feeling that this step aroused was extremely bitter and the collector was even threatened with physical violence. But in the end he won out. They paid the tax and the suit was dropped.

He came to the Hawaii office May 1, 1915. During his administration he saw the revenue increase more than 100 per cent. The difficult task of interpreting many new laws was one of the things he had to face almost as soon as he reached the office. With his assistants he was always on the best of terms, and none of them but would do all in his power to help the chief.

His policy in office has been to deal kindly but firmly with tax payers. As a result he had practically no problem with delinquents for there were none. One of the details of office of which he was most proud was this fact. Yet Haley was not a grandstand player. What he wanted was results.

Haley was married, but not happily as developments in life proved, yet these troubles he bore courageously and kept them to himself. He leaves one child, a son—Charles Emmet Haley—now in school on the mainland. He was affiliated with the order of Knights of Pythias.

BOOZE PEDDLER GETS $250 FINE

That "boose" is being sold freely at homes and perhaps on streets and in public parks was peddled this morning when John Kanian, Hawaiian, was sentenced to pay before Irwin a fine of $250 for selling beer to his neighbors. W. H. Hutton, liquor inspector, placed the defendant under arrest on July 23. According to his official record, it is apparent that Kanian has been buying and selling "boose" as fast as he got it from the saloons. Kanian was represented by Attorney Sheldon.

The "boose" that Kanian had before his arrest was worth more than $25, according to Hutton. Kanian is a

CHANGES MADE IN PERSONNEL PALAMA STAFF

Ruth Stacker Takes Charge of Girls' Work Department When Miss Lowe Quits

With the resignation of Miss Florence J. Lowe from the head of the girls' work department of the Palama Settlement, Miss Ruth Stacker, who has lately been directing the summer kindergarten work at the settlement, has been advanced to Miss Lowe's place, and Miss Margaret Jones, a graduate of the Boston school of physical education and especially known here, will take Miss Stacker's place. These two appointments were announced yesterday by W. R. Humphries, assistant head worker and director of the boys' work.

Miss Ruth Stacker, who is well known in Honolulu as a swimmer, has been in social service work for a year, and in her capacity as the head of girls' athletics last year, she received the training which fits her for the position that she will undertake on September 1.

Miss Margaret Jones graduated from the Boston school of physical education, which is now considered a leading school in this work, this June, and returned to Honolulu which is her home. She is also a graduate of the Punahou academy, where she was prominent in school activities and especially athletics. She is the sister of Misses Helen and Catherine Jones, prominent in the social life of the younger people of Honolulu.

By September 1 the work of reorganization of the Palama Settlement girls' work under the direction of the new appointees will begin. At present the chief attention is being paid the fresh air camp at Waiwala, where James A. Rath, head worker of the settlement, is now staying.

POLICE OFFICER GRILLED AT CIVIL SERVICE HEARING

Chinese. The offense was said to have occurred at 9 o'clock and the arrest four hours later.

Mr. Andrews' point was that if the police, with only suspicion to go on and lacking corroborative evidence, or proper warrant, were allowed to make arrests, no one in Honolulu would be safe from spite work and injustice.

The first witness was John Sanborn. He said that he knew nothing about the $5, but about 10 o'clock had been ordered by Officer Holstein to go to the police station where he was taken before Sergeant of Detectives Kellett and, after being questioned, released with no charges made.

Officer Holstein was then called. He said that he had been told that Sanborn had taken $5 from the marine. About 10 o'clock a Chinese pointed out Sanborn as the man who had taken the money. He said he went up to him and said that he had better go to the police station and see Sergeant Kellett and that Sanborn had gone with him.

Holstein first declared that he did not arrest Sanborn but had simply taken him to the station for investigation.

"What would you have done if Sanborn had refused to accompany you?" asked Mr. Andrews.

"I would have taken him anyway," answered Holstein.

Mr. Andrews then asked him if he had been given instructions as to when to arrest a person and what the instructions were.

Holstein replied that he had been given instructions, but on further cross-examination was unable to say what they were. Later Chairman Allul asked the same question and Holstein was unable to answer intelligently.

Mr. Andrews then asked what happened at the station and Holstein replied that he had taken Mr. Sanborn to the desk sergeant who had told him to take Sanborn to Sergeant Kellett.

"You say that the desk sergeant told you to take Sanborn to Sergeant Kellett? Didn't you tell Sanborn that he had better see Sergeant Kellett when you arrested him?" asked Mr. Andrews.

Holstein replied that he had not mentioned Kellett's name to Sanborn. "But a short time ago you said you did," shot back Mr. Andrews.

"No I didn't," said Holstein.

Throughout the hearing Commissioners Allul and Sheldon continually squabbled between themselves and also with Mr. Andrews, between whom and Commissioner Sheldon there were several very verbal encounters, in examining Officer Holstein. It was claimed they used leading questions which were objected to by Mr. An? drews.

"We are sitting here as judges and can use any kind of question we like," shouted Mr. Sheldon.

By smashing the bottle of booze over the head of the man from whom they had bought it, two soldiers, Pats Smith and Fisher of Co. K, 2nd Infantry, punished the said seller of the liquor. He had no license and so the soldiers took it upon themselves to penalize the man for his unlawful sale, hit him as stated, and then reported what they had done to the morning paper.

hard-working man; but it seems that he has purchased liquor in great amounts and kept it in his house, whether for his own use or for sale, no definite information could be obtained. Kanian, through his counsel, noted appeal this morning.

Old Days Recalled By Aged Hawaiian In Uniform Array

Octogenarian, Sash-Bedecked, Suggestive of Kalakaua Dynasty, Haled in Police Court

CARRYING a kauwila walking cane and bedecked in the old uniform of the Kalakaua dynasty, with sash, said to have been worn by the Kamehamehas, Naomahielu, aged 85, was haled in Judge Irwin's court-room this morning on a charge of vagrancy.

The old Hawaiian, apparently proud of his attire, was the center of attraction in the court-room. Naomahielu is regarded as simple-minded and absolutely harmless. But on several occasions, he was seen frequenting the homes of the rich and causing unrest and pilikia. As he sat in the court-room this morning waiting for the trial of his case, Prosecuting Attorney Charles Chillingworth walked up to Judge Irwin and, after holding a short discussion, the court ordered his case continued until August 14.

Naomahielu was formerly an inmate of the Lumaililo home, but no one could hold him there. He generally wakes up at night and without any ceremony walks out of his room and to the street. He said this morning that the life in the home for him is "miserable."

The shipping board will use most of the former German steamships now in this port in other waters than the Pacific, according to a despatch from Washington to the San Francisco Chronicle. Announcement is expected soon as to what vessels will be steamed away in a few days. Other former German vessels are at Manila and shipping men believe some of the steamships to come to San Francisco later will be allowed to remain in the Pacific on their arrival. It is said a few of the vessels will be turned over to the Pacific Mail Steamship company and other Steamships.

L. L. McCandless has written to the territorial food commission suggesting that persons whose lands adjoin government forest reserves be allowed to pasture their cattle on these reserves. He says it would mean more pastureage and, consequently, more cattle.

WANTS ENGINEER NOW IN OFFICE FOR NEW HEAD

Supervisor Hollinger Opposed to Outsider; Suggests Promotion Policy

That no outsider should be considered as a possible appointee for the position of city and county engineer but a man already in the office who has worked under George M. Collins, the incumbent, should be selected as the new head of the Honolulu $1,000,000 road program, is the belief of Ben Hollinger, supervisor.

"We must have the very best man for the place," said Mr. Hollinger, "and in my opinion we need no further than the department itself. There are one or two men there who are perfectly capable of handling the position and if we are to get good engineers in the future we should have a policy of promotion which will make it worth their while to stay with the department."

Among the men in the department who have been spoken of for the position are Fred Ohrt and E. E. Black. The former has been with the county government for four years and has been Engineer Collins' right hand man. Mr. Black has had considerable experience here both with the federal government and the county.

While Supervisor E. A. Mott-Smith says that he is not ready as yet to take a definite stand on the question from his conversation it appears that he favors giving the present department engineers the first consideration. Who he will appoint as assistant engineer, providing the ordinance establishing the position passes third reading, City and County Engineer Collins said today that he had not definitely decided.

Mr. Collins has agreed to start with the B. P. Bishop estate as chief engineer the first of October and will present his resignation to take effect on that date within the next few days.

POLE SNAPPED, FENCE SMASHED IN AUTO CRASH

Chauffeur Now in Jail Following Reckless Driving Under Liquor's Influence

Driving over on King street at a reckless rate while under the influence of liquor at an early hour this morning, Edwin N. Rutherford, a Hawaiian chauffeur on the Young Hotel Auto stand, smashed into and broke an electric light pole when his car skidded near Piliot street. Although a pole was broken and a nearby fence smashed, the machine was not badly damaged and the driver received only a bruised leg when he was thrown out. Rutherford now rests in the police station facing a charge of heedless driving and a second charge of being under the influence of liquor while driving.

Returning home from Hettie's tavern, Rutherford is said to have raced up Kalakaua avenue and then along King street at a fast pace. Nearing Piliot, his car skidded and the machine smashed into the pole, breaking it, and then into Harry Davies' fence. In the double smash the car turned completely around.

The car, No. 1598, is the property of Caesar J. Lopez, and is a Cadillac.
