AT SMALL EXPENSE.

How a Visitor Can See World's Fair.

The August World's Work which is a special double World's Fair number, contains an article "How to See the Fair," which is filled with helpful, practical suggestions. Among other things it says:

If it be possible, engage rooms before you go to St. Louis—at least find out where you may engage rooms for the price you wish to pay. If possible, do this by direct correspondence or through an acquaintance.

Rooms in good hotels are exceedingly costly, or overcrowded. The hotel-keepers put into their houses twice as many people as usual. The most satisfactory arrangement that persons of moderate means can make is to engage rooms (usually with breakfast), in some well-kept private residence. There are many such in the section of the city that lies near the fair. The prices range from $1.50 a day for each person to $5 or more. If possible, arrive in St. Louis early in the day. Then you will have time to find rooms by daylight.

The wise fair-goer will carry only the most comfortable clothing, especially only the most comfortable shoes; for seeing any fair—this fair in particular—is wearying.

The silent visitor will learn much less than the inquisitive one. At every exhibit there is a man or a woman whose sole business it is to give information and to answer questions. In a whole fortnight, you will not find a discourteous or unwilling attendant; and most of them are, of course, well-informed persons. They expect you to ask for information; and, by asking questions, you will find out things that you never dreamed of.

It is impossible to give any very helpful information about the cost of a week's visit; for no two persons have quite the same habits in spending. If your room and breakfast cost you $1.50 a day, and your luncheon 50 cents, and your dinner $1, your admission fee 50 cents, and your incidental expenses 50 cents a day—you have already spent $4 a day. A very frugal person can do more economically than this. But most visitors will find $5 a day necessary. Yet any one can see the fair for half this sum; and most persons who have $10 a day to spend will be likely to spend it.

The Kukaiau-Ookala Contract.

Citizen labor will be employed on the Kukaiau-Ookala road contract. August Humburg, of Hilo, has received a letter from Contractor L. M. Whitehouse to this effect, and directing him to engage a competent white man as foreman of the work in place of Fukui, the Japanese, to whom there has been so much objection by the Young Men's Republican Club. Mr. Whitehouse also instructed his agent to announce that he is prepared to employ citizens on the road at the rate of $1.25 a day, a day to be of eight hours labor. The Young Men's Republican Club who have made the fight on the question of the employment of citizen labor, are much gratified at the outcome of the controversy, and insist this establishes a precedent for the exclusive employment of citizens on government work.

St Petersburg, Aug. 12.—The Russian people are divided between rejoicing over the birth of an heir to the throne and anxiety as to the fate of the Port Arthur squadron. The city is beflagged and illuminated. The latter will be named Alexis.
