

THE HAZING SEASON HAS OPENED.

Cincinnati Post.

DAYS COME AND GO.

Leaves fall and flowers fade,
Days come and go;
Now is sweet summer laid
Low in her leafy glade,
Low like a fragrant maid,
Low, low, ah, low.

Tears fall and eyelids ache,
Hearts ache;
Here for our dear love's sake
Let us our farewells make—
Will be again awake?
Ah, no, no, no.

Winds sigh and skies are gray,
Days come and go;
Wild birds are flown away,
Where are the blooms of May?
Dead, dead, blooms of May,
Under the snow.

Lips sigh and cheeks are pale,
Hearts overflow;
Will not some song or tale,
Ease, a sweet flow;
With our dear love's love,
Ah, no, no, no.

They'll have to go house-hunting now, and that's all there is to it. Said Mrs. Flynn, decidedly, as she opened the new lodger's door, and prepared to sweep the room.

The new lodger, a young woman, had passed away four days ago, and had left a baby girl of four years, but unhappily, no money with which to care for it.

"It's too bad, old man," he said. "It's a bad sprain, and will take some time to cure. It was the first time you'd been out since Ethel's death, wasn't it?"

The patient nodded and cleared his throat at the mention of his 6-year-old girl, who had died two weeks before. His mother was dead, also, and he was alone. His kind, genial nature had changed since the death of his child.

The doctor took his leave, and Mr. Abbott was left to himself. He picked up a book, tried to read, threw it down, and picked up a magazine. But he soon followed the book, and hung the bell impatiently.

"Get me a cigar, will you, Thomas?" he said to an old servant. Thomas did as he was told, casting a pitying look at his young master.

"It's too bad, old man," he said. "It's a bad sprain, and will take some time to cure. It was the first time you'd been out since Ethel's death, wasn't it?"

THE BASIN UPON WHICH FRANK PARMELEE BUILT A FORTUNE.

When Frank Parmelee, founder of a Chicago transportation line and a man of much wealth, died in Chicago the other day there was a report that he had been a tramp.

Dolly trundled patiently down the narrow winding stairs, and Spot patterned beside her.

"Where are you going, miss?" he asked, laughing, as she struggled to get herself down the stairs.

STATISTICS OF THE NEGRO.

Death Rate In This Country Nearly Twice That of the Whites.

The final census bulletin on the negro population shows that there are 2,043,331 negroes in the United States, including Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico.

Half of this great number are under 10 decades, and in a large percentage of the negroes living in the United States, the death rate is twice that of the whites.

The largest number of negroes living in compact masses are found in certain urban centers, several of which lie outside the great cotton-growing States.

HE HAS SAID FAREWELL.

Joe Jefferson, Best Loved Figure on Our Stage.

The retirement of Joseph Jefferson takes from the stage its best-loved figure and most remarkable character. His life and the pleasures of the public have been closely interwoven, and it has also been crammed with interesting experiences.

He went on the stage as a child in a white tunic beautifully striped with gold bands—when he was 3 years old. In 1830, when Jefferson was 13, the family moved from Philadelphia, his birthplace, to Chicago, then a town of 2,000 inhabitants.

The Jeffersons paid their passage on the boat by playing in the different cities along the route. They traveled and worked about the West and the father was finally compelled to give up the stage and become a sign painter.

Later the family moved to Mobile, where the father died of yellow fever. Mrs. Jefferson opened a boarding house and the children acted juvenile parts.

Harmful to health, Missouri and Texas, with many hardships, fills the next chapter in their history.

The mother held out her hand and young Parmelee reached for the "re-minder." It was a spool of black thread with a needle stuck through it.

He afterward went to work on the lakes, saved money, started a street car line in Chicago and later engaged in the express business.

PAPERS BY THE PEOPLE

THE HOME WILL NOT BE DISRUPTED.

Nothing can destroy the home life. The more women become the equals of men and the more they are considered and treated as equals the stronger will the home life become.

Women in the home used to be considered as dependents; I might almost say as lumbermen. Now, with their increased education, ability and opportunities, they are better able to make the home life what it should be.

The increasing activity of women in all branches of industry is simply the result of our improved civilization.

Women are but following their work from the home to the shop and factory. Weaving and spinning used to be women's work in the home, now this is done in the factory.

ADVANCE OF THE NEGRO.

ONE HEARS MUCH OF THE FAILURE AND THE POINTS OF THE NEGRO.

One hears much of the failure and the points of the negro. The world in my opinion should hear more of the successes and the strong points of the race.
