ANOTHER RANK FOREST RESERVE

Another Dead Line to Progress Within Two Miles of Bonners Ferry.

Like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky yesterday came the announcement that a large area of country situated south and east of Bonners Ferry had been withdrawn from settlement for the purpose of creating the "proposed Cabinet Forest Reserve." The line comes within two miles of Bonners Ferry, the Northwest corner of the reserve being near the top of the hill on the bench road to Cow creek. The proposed reserve extends to the Montana line on the east, to the Pend d'Oreille lake on the south, and in most places to the Poise Meridian on the west.

It had been hoped that the government had reached the limit of reserve business in North Kootenai when it withdrew lands for the proposed Kootenai Reserve, after establishing the Priest River reserve. The people of this locality will begin to fully appreciate the efforts of Senator Heyburn to prevent our tributary and contributing territory from being tied up

Bonnerrys Ferry Postal Business.

J. F. Cook, Jr., postmaster at Bonners Ferry, submits the following figures as to the amount of business done at the postoffice during the four quarters running from Jan. 1, 1905, to Jan. 1, 1906. The receipts were as follows:

Jan. 1 to March 31,	$ 533.13
April 1 to June 30,	826.51
July 1 to Sept. 30,	826.51
Oct. 1 to Dec. 31,	1041.92
Total for year	$3030.27

There were 1230 letters registered during the year and $10,048.84 worth of money orders were sold during the month of December alone. The money order business for the year amounted to over $30,000. As an office of the 3d class, Mr. Cook will receive a salary of $1200 per annum, but will have no allowance for clerk hire. The new classification will not, however, interfere with his conducting any other business in connection.

The Steunenberg Case.

Harry Orchard, the alleged murderer of ex-Governor Steunenberg, has been bound over without bail, as a result of the preliminary trial. Matters in connection with the assassination of the ex-Governor continue to be of sensational interest.

Attorney Miller of Spokane, who left for Caldwell to defend Orchard without so much as a request from that individual, has secured assistant counsel, and announces that he will camp on the ground until the Orchard case is tried. It has also developed that detectives are on the ground working in the interest of Orchard. The question naturally arises, where does all this money and influence come from to back Orchard.

The efforts of the detectives working in the interest of the state is to try to locate the accomplice of Orchard, the mysterious stranger seen in Orchard's company.

The Milwaukee headed for Bonners.

As nearly every town between the British line and old Mexico has received a tip that the C. M. & St. P. R. Y. is coming its way, the HERALD can not delay longer to put in a bid for Bonners Ferry.

We are led to make this claim that the Milwaukee will strike Bonners Ferry from the fact that Major Faust of the Libby News has mapped out the only practical route for the Milwaukee, via Libby, in which case Bonners Ferry would of necessity get the road, for once in the canyon of the Kootenai, the Milwaukee, like Jimmie Hill's line, could only get out by taking the sky route, at least until it gets down to the head of the valley, 5 miles east of town.

The Major states that information has "altered" through to the effect that it is impossible to get a reasonable grade by way of the Lolo pass, and that the route will be abandoned and the road will take a Northern route, coming via Great Falls, Kalispell, Libby, Bonners Ferry and Spokane.

While this "altered" information is not as direct as we should like the Major to hand us, yet the proposition is not without merit, and the route would be a good one.

Railroading Under Difficulties.

The Kootenai Valley train that left here Thursday morning for Creston, B. C., and scheduled to return at 2:30 p. m., had not got back this morning. In the parlance of the road, the train was "bucking snow." A deep fall of soft, wet snow made progress very slow at best, but 8 miles out the train struck ice as well as snow, and the engine and several cars went into the ditch. Here they remained until three o'clock the next morning before the helper engine sent down from the main line reached them and pulled them back on the track. By noon they had not reached Port Hill. In the mean time the coal had given out and Engineer McDermott and Conductor Raymond had to abandon the train in order to get a rancher to haul them some wood. In due time the fuel question was settled, and then they bucked more snow. The crew and passengers had to seek the hospitalities of the ranchers along the line in order to provide themselves with provisions. It was Engineer McDermott's first trip.

As we go to press this morning, Saturday, we learn that a relief train has gone out to bring the K. V. in, they being off the track again, and having been unable to get as far as Copeland.

A Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Jones were surprised last Thursday evening to have their home invaded by a party of friends, the occasion being the 22nd anniversary of their marriage. Those present passed a most enjoyable evening. Card playing and music served as the means of entertainment. A fine luncheon was partaken of at the midnight hour. Mr. and Mrs. Jones were made the recipients of a lovely Chocolate set, presented by their friends, and wished many happy returns of their wedding anniversary.

Estray.

One steer, branded J D on right side, brown color, eyes white ringed. Anyone knowing of a steer as above described will kindly leave word at Carroll's ranch, near Copeland.

Shavelear Plays Even.

SANDPOINT, Idaho, Jan. 15.—Charles Foy, proprietor of the East Hope hotel, at Hope, recently left for a visit to Spokane, checking a trunk through to that place. On his arrival there the trunk was searched and found to contain lake trout. It seems that a few weeks ago he had the Northern Pacific agent at Hope, J. H. Shavelear, arrested for the alleged cutting off of some meat from quarters of beef shipped to Foy. The agent on learning of the shipment of fish, informed Spokane officers, who searched the trunk and found the fish there. Foy has been arrested and will be given a hearing soon.

The Engineer's Camp.

A trip to Chief Engineer Bowen's camp, of the Spokane & International R. R., is well worthy of the journey to the top of the hill on the other side of the Kootenai.

My wife and I having had several invitations to spend the afternoon and partake of a meal at this delightful spot, accepted and the merry time we had amply repaid us and will long be remembered when the city of tents is no more.

Arriving at camp, we were invited to spend part of the afternoon with Mrs. Bowen, a person with a most pleasing personality, the life of the camp; a peep into her tent makes one feel the real joy of living in the open, the tent cozy, pretty little place, made cheerful with pictures and all the latest magazines are to be found as well as the daily papers.

A most startling sound caused us to cease our social visit and prepare for our meal, and I dare say great was my curiosity to invade the sacred confines of the mess tent.

The chef, Mr. Williams, a lively good looking young man, greeted us most cordially, inviting us to make ourselves at home, and seating us well near the center of the table from where we were able to enjoy a most sumptuous meal and converse with a fine looking and healthy lot of young men.

Mr. Bowen is a brilliant conversationalist when once he is started, he seems to be a favorite amongst the boys. Mr. Johns, the clerk, is a rustler especially in getting the mail and taking care of the live stock. Mr. Browne represents the camp in town, he is a firm believer in Dr. Chas. Wagner's book, "The Simple Life." Mr. Horst, "Little Paul," and Mr. Felderman, "Ed" try to follow Mr. Brown's example in leading the simple life, but are usually unfortunate. Geo and John represent the German element and are two inseparable companions and are usually engrossed in such deep questions as, "the best way to cut wood on other peoples' property without being arrested." Geo. is the "Beau rammel" of the crowd, a shining light in society, particularly fond of the ladies, which trait is amply reciprocated by the ladies. Frank, the teamster, the wit of the table is not to be found when a ride is wanted, however, when you decide to take a quiet drink by yourself he is like a bad penny. Russel and Dorly are both very quiet but "silent water runs deep," and they both can loose the "kids" at a social time in town.

Rogers, Chandler and Hanifen are in a group by themselves. Hanifen, one of the camp's handsome men, can tell some of the most absurd tales about railroaders, and Rogers, the greatest walker and talker and worker, is always ready to contradict these fairy tales. Chandler speaks very little at the table, but he has trouble of his own with the "Weary Willies."

Summing up and looking over the whole outfit, they are a jolly and sociable crowd, and let me tell you, dear reader, if the invitation comes your way, take it up instantly.
