VAST SUM FOR PACIFIC COAST

Secretary Taft Wants Appropriation of Five and a Half Million for Coast Artillery Service.

Increase in Coast Artillery Will Necessitate the Expenditure of Enormous Sums by the Government in Providing Quarters for the Men.

Washington.—The annual report of Secretary Taft, to be submitted to congress at its convening in December, will contain estimates aggregating $5,525,920 for construction and other work in the coast artillery service during the fiscal year 1909. The posts at which work is to be done and for which appropriations will be asked include the following amounts asked for, being given in round numbers: Baker, California, $185,000; Stevens, Oregon, $107,000; Winfield Scott, California, $392,000, and Ward, Washington, $334,000.

ENTIRE ISLAND CHANGED BY VOLCANIC ERUPTION

Tons of Lava Have Been Deposited Over Bogoslav Island, and One Peak Has Entirely Disappeared.

Washington.—The remarkable transformation that has occurred in the topography of Bogoslav island, Alaska, as the result of volcanic disturbances, is told in a report received at the treasury department from Lieutenant B. H. Camden, commanding the revenue cutter McCulloch. Regarding the subsidence of McCulloch peak, the report says that the peak had entirely disappeared, and that astonishing changes occurred in the profiles of the neighboring peaks, whose outlines "had been softened to a general symmetry by a padding of lava dust that almost disguised them beyond recognition, while the sandpit connecting the peaks had attained a height varying from twenty to one hundred feet.

"Incalculable tons of lava, hundreds of feet in depth, had been deposited over the entire island. Firr island Perry peak now lowered in the air with a gentle incline, rising from the beach several yards distant, to the summit."

Lieutenant Camden says McCulloch peak blew up within a few hours before the fall of lava dust at Unalaska, September 1 last, about whose origin there has been much discussion.

Mexico's Indian Women.

The beauty of Indian women is one of the charms of Mexico. In the capital, where the Indian has degenerated through poverty and menial service it is less to be remarked than in the smaller towns and in the country. But the beautiful faces one takes in memory away from Mexico are those of Indian women. Fine eyes are universal, and, what one hardly expects, the features, according to Caucasian standards — broad brows, straight noses, well-formed mouths and chins full but not gross or heavy. The expression is very generally intelligent, and often one is struck, both in Indian men and women, with the nobility and refinement of the countenance. One frequently sees types among the peons that seem to belong to some highly civilized ancient caste — an Egyptian priest of royal blood, a Roman centurion, an Aztec emperor. The women are gently lovely where they are beautiful, and the men at their best in carriage, in manners and in countenance are strikingly like the very advanced product of civilization. —Modern Mexico.

Saying "Hello" to Heart Throbs.

"It is a curious thing," said a prominent lecturer recently, "how some books have a strong radiating personality, so that you feel like saying 'Howdy' every time you come across them. Last Christmas I visited friends back at the old home on the farm. When the supper dishes had been put away, the chores done and the evening lamp lighted we gathered beside the organ for a good old fashioned 'sing.' On the center table were strewn the Christmas remembrances taken from Christmas tree on the evening before. Glancing over them I suddenly exclaimed 'Hello! my good friend, Hello!' and as the others looked up with surprise, I picked up a copy of 'Heart Throbs' and read to them from its pages the 'piece' I spoke in school 40 years ago.

"That was enough to set in motion the friendly entertaining spirit of Heart Throbs, and the music was forgotten as we took turns reading the humorous and pathetic bits of prose and verse that have been preserved in this wonderful volume. Some books have great literary value, some have historical significance, but Heart Throbs is the only book I know that slaps you on the back in a friendly sort of way, suiting itself to your moods and proving faithful to every emotion. Next to my love of the Bible I love Heart Throbs. It is the most notable book of the times."

Carefully Compromised.

"Father is in a perfectly lovely mood," remarked Clarice. "Don't you think you had better ask him this evening?"

"Suppose you ask him?" suggested Clarence.

"Oh, I can't," protested the girl. "I'm too shy."

"You ask him just this one time," pleaded Clarence. "I promise you that in the future I'll ask him, no matter how shy I am." —Judge.
