THE WORM THAT NEVER DIES

The case of the postmistress of Indianola, Mississippi, comes as a reminder of a dreary past. When the great war closed and the reconstruction period came on, the bitterness of the south was unspeakable. The men who had controlled public opinion retired to their lairs and refused to assert themselves. They had lost all in the war; it closed by placing them on an equality, under the law, with those who had been their slaves, and in their confused minds there was no justice on earth or in heaven. When the reckless men of their region in frenzy started out under the Ku-Klux sign to murder they did not seek to stay their bloody hands. Now, after thirty-eight years the effect is seen. The men who thought it was but retributive justice to kill negroes, they and their descendants still cling to that brutality, and so potent are they in Mississippi that sheriffs and marshals are forced to admit they cannot protect a woman in the discharge of her duties, because she is a colored woman. Those wretches who have awakened that terror do not know what a disgrace they are to themselves and to their state, do not know what they are doing to keep decent people away from their state, and to notify mankind that with them only brutal methods are respected. The loss and shame is not to the poor woman, not to the United States, but solely to Mississippi and her citizens. The chances too, are that the men engaged in the persecution of the colored woman do not receive one letter per capita during the year.

We think the administration is right, right in marking Indianola from the list of postoffices, for the disease there is one only cured by death.

Those misguided men will die some time, and possibly in forty years more the lower grade of men of that state will become decent citizens. At present Mississippi is a good state to avoid, for very many of her white people are vastly lower in the scale of humanity than can be the lowest negro who ever worked in a Mississippi cotton field.—Goodwin's Weekly.

GOOD ROADS.

According to a recent article in the Washington Star on the need of better roads, the losses and disadvantages due to our bad roads amount to the enormous sum of $30,000,000,000 or nearly one hundred times the cost of the Spanish war. The loss is enough to build all the mainly traveled roads in this country fifteen times over by a new method of improving country roads and also city streets by the use of brick wagon wheel tracks. The road system, which was clearly explained in the New York Herald of Nov. 9th by the Hon. Martin Dodge, United States director of the office of road inquiries, will enable the finest and best roads in the world to be built for an average cost which should not exceed $2,000 per mile, which is about one-fifth of the average cost of stone roads.

The direct loss due to hauling produce over our bad roads appears to constitute a mud tax of over $600,000,000 a year, making a mud tax of over $2,000,000, for each working day in the year and nearly $8 yearly for every man, woman and child in this country. The indirect loss probably equals a like amount, while the increase of farm values, estimated at only $8 per acre, would equal some $5,000,000,000, or enough to build all the mainly traveled roads many times over. The increase in road building in New York State, where one half of the cost is paid by the state, has been two hundred and thirty fold or twenty-three thousand per cent in the past four years.

The Brownlow H. R. Bill, No. 15,369, if passed, will enable any town or county road supervisor to apply for and receive one-half of the cost of building roads in his district from the national government, and should start a road movement that will give us the best roads in the world in a few years of time, and also save the enormous losses mentioned above, besides making rural mail delivery almost universal. In view of this it would appear to be the duty of every person to ask their congressmen to promptly procure the passage of this bill, which would so greatly benefit the present and future generations.—Emmett Index.

REPORT OF GAME WARDEN.

T. W. Bartley, state game warden, whose report is being printed at this office, states that it is impossible to enforce the present law successfully where public sentiment is against it. He points out numerous weak points in the law and makes numerous recommendations. He states that deputy wardens cannot be had in many places where most needed as a man does not care to make enemies when his services are so meagrely paid for.

The plan of paying the deputy wardens out of the fine levied, after a conviction is had, is very unsatisfactory when hostile courts and unfriendly juries set the guilty man free after the deputy has put in a week or two working up a case. A few experiences of that kind usually prevent any further prosecutions from that particular deputy. The law is wrong in principle, according to Mr. Bartley, and needs some radical amendments.—Nampa Leader.

IN GOOD HANDS.

Taken collectively the present legislature of Idaho is one of the most intelligent bodies that has ever assembled in the state. They are all earnest in purpose and anxious to transact necessary legislation as expeditiously as possible. The speedy settlement of the senatorial question has left very little bitterness and the legislature is now ready for business. The state administration is everywhere regarded as an especially strong one and the belief is current that it will co-operate heartily with the legislature. To be sure, the party now in power will be obliged to face a large deficit in every state institution from Moscow University to the penitentiary, but this heritage from the Democratic state administration will be faced courageously and the problem correctly solved. There will be no flinching. Every dollar of legitimate indebtedness will be paid. Retrenchment in the matter of state expenses will be the order of the day and careless operations of Governor Hunt's administration will not be repeated. The state officials enjoy the perfect confidence of the people and with an exceptionally intelligent body of legislators the destinies of Idaho are certainly secure.—Pocatello Tribune

REPUBLICANS TAKE CHARGE.

Monday was a gala day in St. Anthony for the republicans of Fremont county, the democratic regime having come to an end. Some of the newly elected county officials arrived in the city Saturday and others came in Sunday and all except County Attorney

Soule, who is in the hospital at Salt Lake in a very critical condition, were on hand Monday morning in due time to take their respective oaths of office. The business affairs of the county having been turned over to the new officials, the ordinary routine of business was immediately taken up. The board of county commissioners entered earnestly into their work, although the unfamiliarity with their duties will retard their progress somewhat until all the unfinished business left over by the old board is cleaned up.

The men now in office are careful, honest and fair, and judging from their introductory work, the people of Fremont county can well be proud of their choice.

THERE was a long special in the Salt Lake Tribune of the 9th, signed by James A. Haynes, the purport of which was to the effect that President Roosevelt objected to the election of Mr. Reed Smoot to the United States senate, not because he had any objection to Mr. Smoot personally or his religious faith, but because the election of an apostle would arouse opposition and inject an unfortunate question in national politics which would create unfavorable comment. To avoid this the president urged that some other than an apostle be chosen. Senator Kearns said in his interview with the press reporter, that the president had requested him to state that he very much hoped that no apostle would be elected. This story sounds very thin and we do not believe that the president had so much to say in regard to an apostle being elected to the United States senate. An apostle has as much right to be elected to the senate as any other member of the Mormon church so long as he is free from the stain of polygamy. It is believed that if the president said anything about the senatorial affairs in Utah at all, it was upon this ground and with the object in view to avoid another scene in the United States senate similar to the one which occurred when Mr. B. H. Roberts, whom it was claimed was a polygamist, went down to Washington and demanded a seat in that representative and august body.

THE land office paper is still to be kept alive for the federal patronage of the aforesaid office. J. R. Jones, formerly editor of the Mackay Telegraph, has taken charge of the Chronicle and will endeavor to scale the ladder of newspaper fame in Fremont county. Register Thomas probably holds the controlling interest in the outfit, not only for profit but for the opportunity it affords him of saying that he has done a great deal for the dear old republican party up in Fremont county.

THE Modern Woodmen of America gave their public installation of officers at the St. Anthony opera house Monday evening. There were about 250 invited guests present who took part in the dancing and more especially the feast which was carefully prepared by the members of the order. St. Anthony Camp was organized three years and a half ago with 16 members and the camp has grown with such rapidity that its membership now numbers about 65.

LAST Saturday morning about 3 o'clock, three Denver women attempted to hold up and rob W. C. Thompson, a waiter, and when he resisted one of the women shot him, the bullet passing through his cheek. The wound is not serious. The women were captured.
