ANOTHER DAY AT SEATTLE FAIR

A Note Book Page Reserved for Big Things Seen at the Fair.

THE PALACE OF FINE ARTS

Some of the Most Exquisite Pieces of Ornamentation in the Japanese Building—Silk
Work and Other Features.

[BY PROF. A. D. BRADFIELD.]

Those who go through the exposition grounds with pencil and note book in hand making a study and classification of the exhibits will reserve a page for "Big Things Seen at the Fair." Under this heading, should be placed first, perhaps, the immense locomotive weighing half a million pounds, a veritable giant in size and power beside the small engine that was first used in the Northwest. Near it is a gigantic revolving snow plow used to clear the railroad tracks in winter. On the same track is a powerful steam shovel, which gives daily exhibitions of its immense lifting power of 38,000 pounds. The mining building has a lump of coal 7 feet 5 inches long, 5 feet 3 inches wide, and 4 feet 6 inches thick, and weighs 17,000 pounds. In the manufacturing building is a circular saw 130 inches in diameter and weighing 1500 pounds. The visitor's registration book in the California building is the largest book in the world. It weighs 550 pounds, is 35 inches long, 32 inches wide and 26 1/2 inches thick. A manufacturing concern of Washington state has a bar of soap a yard long; another firm, a loaf of bread 6 feet long and made from a barrel of flour. Near the Forestry building is the "Big Stick," a hewed log 4 1/2 feet square and 74 feet long. Another squared timber is 18 inches square and 156 feet long. Inside this building is a room hollowed from a cedar stump 19 feet in diameter. In the War Department is a model of our largest sized naval gun, bearing this label: "Most powerful Gun in the U. S. Navy; diameter, 12 inches; cost, $66,166 04; weight, 55.7 tons; weight of projectile, 870 pounds; weight of powder in one charge, 310 pounds; cost of each charge, $400; cost of wear and tear of each shot, $650; total cost of each shot $1050; range at 20 degrees elevation, 21,000 yards (about 12 miles); muzzle velocity, 2700 feet per second; length, 45 feet."

The palace of Fine Arts is a permanent structure of pressed brick and will be used by the University of Washington after the fair is over. Here are hundreds of grand paintings, some life-sized and many worth thousands of dollars. One loves to linger long in the presence of these master works of genius, these canvasses that seem almost to live and think. In one room are the products of the gold and silver smiths. These are polished to such a degree of brilliancy that one, at first glance, mistakes them for glassware. In the center of the room in a heavy glass case is the Century Vase, that magnificent work of silver valued at $30,000, which was made for our first world's fair at Philadelphia in 1876. This vase, richly adorned with human, animal and vegetable figures in silverware was made to symbolize the peace, prosperity and progress of the first century of our nation's life.

In the Italian building are hundreds of sculptured figures in marble, alabaster and serpentine. So exquisite in form, so true in outline, and so life-like in expression are they, that one is lost in wonder and admiration. The student of classic literature recognizes at once in the life-sized figure near the door the form of Bacchus,

"That first from out the purple grape, Crushed the sweet poison of mangled wine." He stands with hand outstretched, "Offering to every weary traveler, His Orient liquor in a crystal glass"

It would require a whole catalog to mention all the different pieces, but there are several that one instinctively remembers. "The First Sorrow" is a child with one hand upraised to its eyes, the other holding a dead bird. The marble features with their expression of grief are so perfect that one almost expects to see the tears flow. "The Spoiled Dinner" is a child with head turned aside and spoon upraised to drive off a rooster that wants to share its dinner, while the cat helps itself to the contents of the platter. The expression on the countenance of "Inspiration" is one that lingers long in the memory. This bust was sold more than twenty times for $80 apiece. Visitors at the St. Louis fair say that the orders there amounted to the hundreds.

In the Japanese building are some of the most exquisite pieces of ornamentation in bronze, wood, embroidery and cloisonne to be seen on the ground. As the latter is seen so seldom in this country, many will be interested in knowing how it is made. The word "cloisonne" (partitioned) is from the French word "cloison," a partition. A vase is first formed from a sheet of copper or silver and the picture or other figure is traced upon it with pencil. The vase is then covered with clear enamel and before this is hardened the traced outlines are covered with flat gold or silver wire, the edges projecting outward, forming the "partitions." Between these the different colored enamels are painted and then the whole is placed in an oven and baked. The enameling and baking process is repeated four or five times till the "partitions" are filled even with the edge of the wire. The final coating of an enamel leaves the vase perfectly smooth, the edge of the wire forming the delicate outlines of the picture, which is often composed of several colors of enamel. One cloisonne ornament, the red gold iridescent vase required eight years in making and is valued at $5000. This ornamentation, however, is not so much appreciated by visitors as the exquisite embroidery near it. Many visitors on beholding the peacock on the screen are speechless with wonder and admiration; others are loud in praises when they see that they are not looking upon an actual painting but a work in silk thread comprising six hundred shades of color. The sea waves in silk thread is another piece of embroidery that makes people stare in amazement. Some of the other attractive exhibits in this building are the long shelves of hand painted China-ware, the delicately wrought silk handkerchiefs and the exquisite carvings in wood and ivory.

Visited Wallowa County.

O. D. Brumbaugh, one of the genial proprietors of the Idaho Hotel in Silver City, returned Tuesday from a visit with his sister-in-law and family, who reside on the Imnaha in Wallowa county, and whom Mr. Brumbaugh had not seen since 1878, his brother having passed away in the meantime. Arriving at Enterprise on the train he prepared a team and drove out to the Imnaha, enjoying a very pleasant visit with the family. They have a nice place on the Imnaha on which excellent fruit is grown, but with no present market, the principal industry of the country being stockraising. Mr. Brumbaugh says Wallowa is the greatest stock and grain country he ever saw, and that the assessment shows over $7,000,000 in taxable property valuations. This is truly a great and rapid upbuilding for a section of country that but a few years ago was a wilderness and the hunting grounds for roving bands of Indians. On the way out Mr. Brumbaugh met a brother and wife, who is a prominent and prosperous resident of Douglas county, residing near Roseburg, with whom he had a very pleasant visit at Parma.

MRS. ELIZABETH BEATON.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Beaton, whose demise occurred in Silver City Friday morning last, was held Sunday afternoon, the services being conducted in the lower Masonic hall. A large gathering of friends and relatives were assembled and the beautiful service and excellent singing by the choir was very impressive. Wreaths of beautiful flowers decorated the casket, which lent a scene of sweet repose and peaceful slumber to the features of the departed one.

After the services the remains of the deceased were conveyed to the K. of F. cemetery, where they were tenderly laid to rest in the presence of relatives and sympathetic friends, assembled to pay the last sad tribute of respect to the memory of one who in life was generally loved by all, but whose spirit was called by its Maker from a long and useful earthly life to the realms of eternal peace and rest above.

Mrs. Elizabeth Beaton was born in Yorkshire, England, in 1828, and came to Canada with her parents in the early 30's. She was married to James Beaton, who survives her, in Canada, February, 1850, and had she lived until February, 1910. Mr. and Mrs. Beaton would have celebrated their Diamond Wedding anniversary. She came to Silver City to join her husband about five years ago. To Mr. and Mrs. Beaton were born ten children, six of whom are living, Mrs. Mary Swan of Silver City, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Playford of Kent, Wash., Mrs. Kell, who resides in Canada, and sons James Beaton, Jr., of Portland, Oregon, and Peter Beaton of Indianapolis, Ind.

The heartfelt sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved husband and relatives.

OWYHEE COUNTY MINING NEWS

A Rich Body of Ore Opened on the Como and Alice No. 2-- The Banner Lead.

Connors and Belcher, who have been doing considerable development work on the Como and Alice No. 2, near the head of Long Gulch, just above the Banner ground, have opened a body of very rich looking ore 8 feet wide. Assays have not yet been made of the ore, but all who have seen it prophesy that it will run high in values.

In drifting south on the Banner vein streaks of ore carrying good values have been encountered, also some water, which indicates that they are nearing an ore body. The ledge is four feet wide with well defined walls. The force will be increased during the coming week on the Banner and two more of the promising ledges in the Erdman crosscut will be developed. Considerable outside work is being done in preparation for a busy winter. With the big strike recently made on the Belcher property, which adjoins the Banner on the south, it can only be a short time until the Banner will prove a sure winner.

Several more men have been put on at the Rich Gulch property, and extensive preparations are being made to do considerable work in developing this property as soon as the transformers arrive. The power line has been completed and all the wiring done ready to start work. The transformers were delayed in shipping. This mine is past the experimental stage, and as the ore body is of vast size and gives good average assays, there is no question but that the Rich Gulch will soon be known as one of our greatest producers. Mr. A. F. Stevens, the general manager, is here to start the work in full blast.

The time has arrived in this mining district for promoters and companies who have bonded or taken over property to "get in and drill," or they will soon find that they will become a back number. There is just one way for them to do business in this camp and meet with success, and that is to get their money into the bank and show that they mean business.

SAD INTELLIGENCE.

M. N. Fegly, editor of the Nugget, received the sad intelligence by wire Monday evening of the death of his youngest sister, Mrs. Lucy A. Bryant, whose demise occurred at the family home near Santa Rosa, Calif., Sunday September 26, 1909, at 12:45 p. m.

As the telegram did not reach Mr. Fegly until 6 o'clock Monday evening it was too late for him then to make preparations to arrive at Santa Rosa in time to attend the funeral, much to his regret.

Mrs. Bryant, the deceased, had for a number of years been a patient sufferer from dropsy, and at the time of her taking away was 54 years of age.

She was a patient wife, a kind, loving and affectionate mother with high ideals of home, and it was her wish that she might live to perpetuate with her loving husband and children the true happiness of the family home life and peaceful surroundings.

Although her death had been expected, the announcement was a deep affliction to Mr. Fegly, and the sympathy of many friends is extended to him and the other bereaved ones.

To mourn her loss are left her husband, Jay Bryant, two children, Margaret, 25 years of age, and Kenneth 16 years; besides three brothers and two sisters, Mrs. K. E. Tucker of Pasadena, Calif., Mrs. S. O. Randall of Birmingham, Iowa, and J. M. Fegly of Los Angeles, J. J. Fegly of Wichita, Kansas, M. N. Fegly of Silver City.
