Women's War Work

STORAGE OF CARROTS.

Carrots can remain in the ground until the weather is quite cool, then be pulled, the tops trimmed off, and the roots buried in a pit in the same way as Irish potatoes. Carrots can also be kept in the cellar in crates, or boxes, or piled in small piles on the floor against the side wall of the cellar. Where the cellar is extremely dry it will be desirable to cover them with a little sand which contains a fair degree of moisture. This will prevent the carrots becoming wilted while in storage.

One to three bushels of carrots will be required by the average family.

STORAGE OF BEETS.

Beets are handled in the same manner as carrots but are a little more inclined to heat and mold if placed in too large piles in the cellar. Beets are not so much inclined to shrivel as are carrots. When buried in pits in the open ground both beets and carrots will withstand more cold than will Irish potatoes.

One bushel of beets will be sufficient to place in storage for the average family.

FUNDS OF FURLOUGH HOUSES SOLICITED.

The war victory commission campaign for furlough houses in France is now on and will continue until Nov. 9. The work in St. Joseph county is in charge of Mrs. George W. Phillips, 719 Columbia st., and all contributions should be sent to her.

It is an impossibility to solicit personally all who would give, so every one is urged to donate without solicitation. Mrs. Phillips says that the women of the county are responding well to the appeal and urges them to continue their generosity regardless of the fact that the war seems virtually ended. There will be more need of furlough houses in France during the reconstruction period than ever before.

MEETING OF WOMAN'S SECTION POSTPONED.

The monthly meeting of the woman's section of the county council of defense which was to have been held Monday has been postponed indefinitely because of the prolongation of the health board's closing order.

Several boy scouts were busy Saturday morning crating up the peach stones which have been collected at various points in the city and brought to Fred Cross headquarters. The peach stone drive, like the linen shower and old clothing drive, was unostentatiously successful. The peach stones will be shipped to Fort Wayne.

The Grandmother's circle has postponed its meeting, which was to have been held next Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. N. Robinson on Lincoln way E., until the health board order is rescinded.

HOW THE COSGROVE HOUSE-HOLD RECEIVED THE NEWS OF THE FORTUNE IN SAVARIN'S PICTURES.

Every one at the Cosgrove supper table trailed Dicky and me into the farmhouse parlor at Mr. Cosgrove's invitation to look over the pictures which his brother-in-law had painted of the Catskill mountain scenery.

I was all agog with suppressed excitement at the mystery which I scented in the farmhouse life. Mrs. Cosgrove's look of fear at my assertion that I could tell her twin boys apart, her tenseness of expression at the mention of pictures, and the look of furtive watchfulness which I had seen in the eyes of Mrs. Allis, all crystallized my impression that there was something unusual about the pictures which we were to see.

A big hanging lamp in the center of the room had been lighted and cast the soft, kindly glow which only an oil lamp can give over the rather good pieces of furniture and the many paintings which the room contained.

I was standing nearest to Dicky, and therefore first saw the look of surprise on his face as he glanced at the paintings. His air of bored listlessness had left him. He almost bounded toward the nearest one and scrutinized it carefully. Then he made a quick inspection of the others. As he turned back to us again, his eyes were shining.

"You say your brother-in-law painted these?" he demanded of Mr. Cosgrove. "Then your brother-in-law must be Robert Savarin."

"You Are Quite Correct." A little groan quickly suppressed from Mrs. Cosgrove—a hissing, in-drawn breath, so slight that if I had not been standing next to her I would not have noticed it, from Mrs. Allis—answered Dicky's words.

Mrs. Cosgrove's face held an emotion I could not fathom. But into Mrs. Allis's eyes as I watched her, there leaped into life, then died again, a look of fear.

Mr. Cosgrove straightened himself to his full height, which must have been six feet two.

"You are quite correct," he said with dignity. "Robert Savarin did paint these pictures. Did you know him?"

I noticed the past tense of the question. Was the hand that had wielded the brush in paintings that even to my inexperienced eyes looked markedly valuable, no longer vibrant with life?

"I waited anxiously for Dicky's reply. 'Not personally,' Dicky returned. 'He was before my time, but I know and reverence his work, as all the men of his profession must do, and of course I know.'

He broke off suddenly in an abrupt fashion that I recognized. It always marks Dicky's sudden realization that he is saying something indiscreet. I knew that he would not finish what he had to say. But his sudden stop was unnoticed by the other people in the parlor. For at the word "profession" Mrs. Allis shot a swift question at him.

"Are They Really Valuable?" "The men of your profession?" she queried, with a nonchalant air

The train left the rails on a sharp curve in the tunnel near the Prospect Park station and three of the five wooden cars were crushed like pasteboard.

Cars Heavily Loaded.

Every one of the cars was loaded to capacity. Passengers were crowded on the platforms and in the aisles. When the crash came the lights went out in the darkness of the tunnel, and added to the shrieks and groans of the dying and injured.

Fire broke out from contact between the wreck and the third rail, and in its ghastly light the work of rescue was carried on until torches were brought to the scene.

It is estimated that there were as many as 150 passengers aboard the train when it leaped from the tracks and came to a standstill a shattered mass of ripped and splintered wood, broken glass, tangled iron and mangled bodies.

'FLU' BAN PROHIBITS ELECTION BULLETINS IN WINDOW TUESDAY

There will be no election returns bulletined in The News-Times windows Tuesday night. The city board of public health in session Friday afternoon issued orders that no notices or bulletins that would tend to draw large crowds be posted in the windows of the newspaper offices of the city. The orders of the health board specify election returns bulletins. The health board has made this order in an effort to aid in the effort to stamp out influenza in this city.

23 AUSTRIAN DIVISIONS ARE IN MUTINY

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE.) mediate and unconditional abdication of the Kaiser, it was stated in an Amsterdam dispatch to the Daily Express today.

Only two members are against it, Chancellor Max and Vice Chancellor von Payer.

Philip Scheidemann and Mathias Erzhberger, respective socialist and clerical, demanded an early settlement of the question by the Reichstag of which both are members.

The Kaiser probably will await the decision of the Reichstag.

There is now talk of a general election in Germany putting armistice terms to a vote of the people.

"We will read the terms with burning hearts and indignation but there is nothing to do but swallow them and accept," said the socialist newspaper Vorwaerts of Berlin.

The German government is willing to hold the peace conference at Brussels, it is reported.

ROYALTY SENDING VALUABLES TO SWITZERLAND.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The German and Austrian royal families are sending money and valuables to Switzerland, said a Geneva dispatch to the Daily Express today.

There is semi-revolution in Vienna, the dispatch added.

Fifty thousand persons, including many soldiers made a new demonstration before the city hall, the palace and the parliament building shouting, "We want a republic."

Many people have been killed in the peace riots and shops were pillaged.

The Austro-Hungarian retreat on the Italian front has become a rout. Tyrol is full of fleeing, disorganized troops.

GERMAN NAVY IS POWERLESS UNDER TERMS

Under ordinary circumstances the international committee would demand that these terms be furnished by the president to the Berlin government inasmuch as they have been prepared in accordance with the request of Germany to the allies sent through the president. However, officials said that prompt action is a very necessary requirement at the present time and that a mere precedent for action will not be allowed to "gum the cards."

Watch Developments on Front.

Officials here were watching very carefully for developments on the western front. They say that the German war cabinet apparently has agreed that with Austria out of the war there can be nothing more done to save the situation for Germany. It would cause little surprise here should the German high command actually open negotiations with Gen. Foch in the very near future without waiting for further negotiations to be carried on through the foreign minister or the imperial chancellor.

VICTOR ADLER NAMED TO IMPORTANT POST

International News Service: AMSTERDAM, Nov. 2.—Victor Adler has been named foreign minister of the international committee set up by the Germans in Austria. The state controls the German troops in the Austrian army, said advices received here today and proclaimed willingness to conclude peace in accordance with Germany.
