

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Mrs. B. D. Coon, president of the South Bend Woman's club, urges that all members of the club who are interested in the organization of a surgical dressing auxiliary, should attend a meeting to be held at 6:30 Friday evening on the second floor of the Red Cross headquarters.

The South Bend Woman's club will present Dr. Frederick Howe, the U. S. commissioner of immigration at the port of New York and Ellis Island, Tuesday evening in his lecture, "Immigration and Reconstruction after the War." The lecture will be given in the Rotary club rooms at 8 o'clock, and tickets may be purchased from the club members or at the door. The club officials are desirous that as many people as possible should hear Dr. Howe at this time, for his subject is a timely one and he is admirably fitted by his experiences as commissioner of immigration to discuss the reconstruction problem in its many phases.

Women's War Work

STORAGE OF CELERY.

Celery that is intended for storage should be planted rather late and can remain in the open ground until the weather becomes quite cool. Perhaps the easiest way to store celery for home use is to bank it to the top with earth, then cover the tops with boards, straw, or leaves and allow it to remain where it has grown until wanted for use. Another good method is to dig a trench about 12 inches in width and of a depth to correspond with the height of the celery, then lift the celery and pack it in the trench with a little soil about the roots. After a few days when the weather becomes colder the trench should be covered first with two boards nailed together in the form of a V-shaped trough, and later with a layer of soil over the top of the inverted trough. The ends of the pit should be left open for ventilation until freezing weather begins, when these should be closed with a bundle of straw, an old bag, or with soil. Should the weather warm up the ends should be opened slightly for ventilation. The soil about the roots of the celery should be watered at the time it is packed in the trench. If the weather is extremely dry, following the storage of the celery, a little additional water should be run in around the roots to keep the plants fresh and crisp.

About two dozen good plants or bunches of celery per person will be sufficient.

CLOTHES CONSERVATION.

Here are some facts prepared by the city and county home demonstration agents showing the need for economy in the use of leather and cotton: "Our government has already let contracts for more than 20,000,000 pairs of army shoes and the allies are buying millions of dollars worth of American leather so that notwithstanding our large imports of hides from South America, the scarcity of leather for civilian use is serious. "Economy in cotton consumption must be stringent, the war having developed many uses for cotton that are new, and the enormous production hoped for in Texas having met with disaster. A recent order from the navy alone called for 200,000,000 yards of cotton gauze for surgical purposes, and $5,000,000 yards of blue and brown denim which is one-third the total annual production of this cloth in the U. S. During the summer just passed various branches of the military service

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

By Adele Garrison

WHY MRS. COSGROVE CONFIDED IN MADGE.

Mrs. Cosgrove's eyes were constantly upon me during the rest of the breakfast at the Catskill mountain farmhouse. I could feel their steady scrutiny even when my eyes were lowered to my food. I knew that she was trying to ascertain whether or not I had discovered the deception that she and her husband had practiced upon the breakfasters, when, by means of different clothing they had made it appear that both their twin sons had been present at the table.

The evening before I had fully tested my powers of observation by finding a characteristic of one of the boys which the other did not possess. I felt certain that I was the only one at the breakfast table, save the father and mother, who possessed the knowledge. I felt genuinely sorry that I knew the secret when I met Mrs. Cosgrove's eyes, full of somber misery, and saw that she dreaded my knowledge.

When Dicky at last pushed back his plate and declared himself satisfied, it was a real relief to me. "I'll just run up and get my things and then we'll start," Dicky said. He went up the stairs with a bound. Mrs. Allis and the two other boarders had left the table some minutes before, so that there was no one except the Cosgroves and myself in the dining room. I purposely delayed rising from the table, for I had no wish to encounter Mrs. Allis outside.

Mr. Cosgrove and the boy, Ned, left the room immediately after Dicky. I was certain that it was a signal from the mother's eye that had sent them away. A moment later she drew her chair close to mine and sat down. Deep lines were graven in her face, her eyes were tortured like those of an animal in pain, and she seemed to have a curious hesitancy of speech.

A Promise Given.

"Mrs. Graham," she began at last, used 30,000,000 pieces of cotton underwear and 14,000,000 pairs of cotton socks, not to mention large quantities of other articles composed wholly or in part of cotton. "Every patriotic citizen has the opportunity to render a most valuable service to his country at this time, by making use of every scrap of wool, leather and cotton already in the household. It is not only important to keep our soldiers well fed, but we must also keep them well clothed, while they are offering the supreme sacrifice for us. "Let this be our motto: 'Not a scrap of usable material shall go to waste in the household.'"

CHAIRMAN OF WAR MOTHERS OF AMERICA IS APPOINTED.

Mrs. E. B. Byrkit, 1403 Lincoln way E., Mishawaka, has been appointed chairman for the 13th district of the War Mothers of America. The appointment was made by Mrs. K. C. DeRhodes, chairman of the woman's section of the county council of defense. There has been no organization here for the reason that local women did not wish to perfect an organization until the controversy between the two factions in the state had been settled. A conference of these factions was held at Evansville recently, resulting in the establishment of one state body. Mrs. Byrkit will take up at once the task of organizing the women of the 13th district.
