CAMPAIGN SONG.

Jim Blaine and His Crew.

There are Jimmy G., and Johnny A., and
Stephen you know who,
And all the rest of the star-route bums,
Sail around in the same canoe;
I gave a lift to Grant and Hayes,
You all know it is true,
But d—— if I'll ever vote for
Jim Blaine and his motley crew.

CHORUS.

There Jimmy G., and Johnny A., and
Stephen you all know who,
And all the rest of the star-route bums,
Sail around in the same canoe.

They say he is a statesman great,
Though once dove in the mire—
The time he got the Mulligan letters
And threw them in the fire.
He says, "You know they would ruin me;
What better could I do?
For, sink or swim, I was bound to save
Jim Blaine and his motley crew."

Oh, when he got in the Garfield crowd
He did not know what to do,
Until he got at loggerheads
With Chili and Peru.
Says he, "We will go over there
And belt them black and blue,
And learn them not to turn up their nose
At Jim Blaine or his motley crew."

Stephen, he got in a dirty scrape;
The gang they helped him through;
And now he is down in New Mexico
Bellowing for the crew.
He says, "Hurrah for Jimmy Blaine;
We will stick to him like glue,
And give old Arthur the great big run,
For he don't stand in with the crew."

The Arthur boys have the stomach-ache now,
They don't know what to do,
When they think of the rottenness of
Jim Blaine and his motley crew.
Just one word of advice, boys,
And then I will say adieu;
When you go out on election day
Don't vote for Jim Blaine or his crew.

OPHIR, June 23. L. P. H.

LITERATURE.

Magazines.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for July, in its literature and illustrations, is a mirror of the summer world. It opens with a finely illustrated paper by Dr. Trautvetter descriptive of the famous Nile Festival. Dr. Moritz Bausch follows with a description of Prince Bismarck's summer home—his country-seat in the heart of the Sachsenwold, with many entertaining personal sketches of the Prince. The summer resorts of the St. Lawrence are beautifully described by Annie Howells Frechette, and are as beautifully illustrated. Alice Comyns Carr contributes a paper on "The Beauties of the Last Century," and Col. Higginson concludes his American History Series with a few chapters on "Old Hickory." With several other articles of high merit, the serials, two short stories, several fine poems, and the well sustained "Departments," the July Harper's is an unusually fine number.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE. The July number contains, among other articles of high merit, a remarkable contribution to United States history in "The Ku Klux Klan: Its Origin, Growth and Disbandment." The frontispiece is an engraving from a full length portrait of John Bright, with a carefully discriminating estimate of the man from the Fortnightly Review. Julian Hawthorne, in a pleasant, chatty way, describes "The Scenes of Hawthorne's Romances," charmingly illustrated by Harry Fenn. Mrs. Van Rensselaer continues her series on "Recent Architecture in America," appropriately illustrated. Mr. Benjamin completes his "Cruise of the Alice May," in a cruise around Cape Breton; and Ex-President Woolsey discusses the subject of "Academical Degrees, Especially Honorary Degrees in the United States." In fiction, besides the Serials, there are two fine short stories. In Topics of the Times the editor discusses "The Advertising Power of a Good Name," "Dishonesty in Commerce and Politics," &c., while the other Departments are filled with gems of poetry and spice.

POPULAR SCIENCE MONTHLY. In the July number Herbert Spencer gives his attention, in a leading article, to "The Great Political Superstition" of the divine right of parliaments. The Rev. George G Lyon presents an interesting view of "The New Theology," as a development from the old, corresponding with the growth in human powers of comprehension, not contradictory but harmonious with it, and "reformatory rather than revolutionary in its teachings and tendencies." Prof. Woodward, of Washington University, shows what are the "Fruits of Manual Training" as given in that institution, as observed in the better intellectual and moral development and practical fitness of the pupils. M. M. Guyau answers the question, "Are Science and Art antagonistic?" in the negative. A most satisfactory account of "The Volcanic Eruption of Krakatau" and its effects, illustrated with maps, is given from the "Proceedings" of the Royal Geographical Society. Perhaps the most important paper in the number is M. Pasteur's account, given before the French Academy of Sciences, of his discovery of "The Prevention of Hydrophobia" by inoculation. Mr. D. P. Penhallow, of McGill University, contributes a valuable article on "Diseases of Plants." The portrait and sketch are of the eminent old Arabian philosopher Averroes. Dr. S. A. Fisk appraises the merits of Colorado as a residence for invalids. The editor at his "Table" discusses "The Survival of Political Superstitions," and President Eliot's address at John Hopkins University, on "What is a Liberal Education?" New York: D. Appleton & Co. $5 a year.

ST. NICHOLAS for July is a brilliant 4th of July number. It opens with an account of "How the Tories Broke up a Meeting," a spirited sketch of revolutionary times; and "A Fourth of July Celebration Among the Indians" describes a modern observance of the national holiday on the plains by the nation's wards. There is also the interesting story of Richard Lord Jones, "The Youngest Soldier of the Revolution," and E. S. Brooks falls into line with the boyhood biography of Stephen Van Rensselaer, the boy patroon who so nobly supported the cause of independence; and Chas. Barnard gives a graphic and accurate account of the Bertholdi Statue. Of the serials, "The Scarlet Tanager" is completed, and there are instalments of "Marvin and His Boy Hunters" and "The Spinning Wheel Story;" and there are the usual other stories, poems, &c., &c.

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW. Some suggestions for the improvement of the existing jury system, presented by Judge Robert C. Pitman in the North American Review for July, under the title of "Juries and Jurymen," should, in view of recent notorious miscarriages of justice, receive the serious consideration of every thoughtful citizen. "American Economies," by Prof. Van Buren Denslow, is a lucid and forcible exposition of the grounds upon which the protection theory of national economy is based. Judge Noah Davis writes of "Marriage and Divorce;" Dr. P. Bender, whose subject is "The Annexation of Chnada," sets forth the advantages likely to accrue to the United States from the absorption of the Canadian provinces; Prof. D. McG. Means, in an argument against "Government Telegraphy," subjects the management of the Post Office to a most searching criticism; Charles T. Congdon writes of "Private Vengeance;" and, finally, there is a symposium on the "Future of the Negro," by Senator Z. B. Vance, Frederick Douglass, Joel Chandler Harris, Senator John T. Morgan, Prof. Richard T. Greener, Gen. S. C. Armstrong, Oliver Johnson, and others.

THE ART INTERCHANGE for June 19 contains designs for fish dish and a half dozen fish plates, showing marine plants, fishes and shells arranged in a charmingly decorative way. A design in color for sofa pillow decoration, by the Boston Society of Decorative Art, is also given. A unique design of oak leaves and acorns, for the larger dishes of dinner service, and an exquisite woodland scene, "The Ruined Abbey," by Lalanne, are also to be found in this issue. In Decorative Notes is given some interesting information as to novelties in pottery, porcelain, glassware, vases, lamps, screens, yacht pillows, photograph frames, sachets, birch bark calenders. Published by William Whitlock, 140 Nassau street, New York.

PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL. The July number opens with a fine sketch (with portrait) of James G. Blaine, the Republican candidate for the Presidency. A sketch, with portrait, is also given of Frederick H. Furniss, a prominent citizen of Seneca county, N. Y.; and of J. R. Dodge, Statistician of the U. S. Agricultural Department. Other articles worthy of note are: Organic Cerebration; Sicily and its Ancient Memories; A Craniologist's Paradise; Compulsory Education; Summer Living; The Hydrophobia Puzzle, &c., &c. Fowler & Wells, New York. $2 a year.

This extreme tired feeling we have in the spring, fall and during summer denotes torpid liver; we have no appetite and no ambition. Take Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic; it corrects these troubles, restores good spirits. It speedily cures dyspepsia, bad breath, piles, pimples, ague and malaria diseases. A perfect tonic, appetizer and blood purifier. Can be taken by the most delicate. Price 50 cents of E. Y. Griggs.

Deer Park.

The season has again opened at Deer Park, as will be seen by adver. of the Park elswhere. Already the never-ending stream of summer visitors has begun to flow into the Park from all parts of the country. The popularity of this famous resort grows with each succeeding season, and ten years from now, when the railroads shall have discovered it, will doubtless be furnished with a grand hotel, and all the paraphenalia of a genuine summer resort.

To adopt a remark in Harper: Very few La Salle county people appreciate the beauty of their surroundings, and, in fact, the like is true of Americans in general about the things nearest home. If they did, and completed the natural beauty by art, the whole valley of the Illinois from the old "Widow Brown Ford" to Starved Rock and the Deer Park road would be made a grand boulevard, making one of the finest drives in the West. But these things cost money, and though La Salle county is rich it is not yet rich enough for that kind of luxury. But we doubt not it will one day come, when the development of the resources of this valley will demand a business road over much of that ground.

Of the seventy and odd thousands of inhabitants of this county, and the one hundred thousand it will have not many years hence, only a small proportion are or will be able to make the annual summer pilgrimage north or east. The stay-at-homes need places for recreation. The county has endless possibilities as a great summer land. Its many mineral springs, picturesque drives, and lovely spots like Deer Park will be fully utilized.

For this year, Mr. Clayton, at the Park, has been making some improvements; but his labors have been chiefly directed to getting possession of the land surrounding the Park. There has been a constant danger of the establishment of brush whisky shops and other nuisances, to avoid which Mr. C. has secured all the approaches, which forever stops any annoyance of that kind. Hereafter, then, improvements of a substantial nature will follow rapidly. As the work would interfere with the comfort of guests, they will be delayed until after the season is over. But in the meantime all necessary arrangements for the convenience of guests has been made, and the Park as ever will be a delightful place to visit.

THE MAPLE LOUSE.

As this insect is at present doing a great deal of damage to the soft maples in this vicinity, information in regard to its natural history and how to fight it will be of interest. Mr. O. C. Gibbs, in a communication in the Chicago Tribune, has the following on the subject:

In the report of the State Entomologist, in the transactions of the department of agriculture of the state of Illinois for 1877, at pages 120 to 131, there is a treatise upon this insect. As its present depredations are a serious matter to the owners of shade trees, I condense from it the principal points which will be of practical interest to tree-owners. The technical name of the insect among entomologists is the Lecanium acericola. It is first noticed in the spring as a white waxy scale like substance adhering to the under side of the twigs. These are the adult females from the previous year's brood. Their development is described as follows in notes taken at Peoria in 1877: From May 15 to June 2 the female gradually enlarged from deposition of eggs within the abdomen. June 6 eggs commenced to issue from the abdomen, and deposited upon the twigs. June 15 young lice were first discovered, but deposition of eggs by the adult females still continuing. June 17 young lice crawling quite actively and settling upon the under sides of the leaves. July 3 adult females mostly dead. July 10 male pupae easily distinguished. August 20 males and females copulating. September 5 males disappeared; young females still on the leaves. September 30 females moving from the leaves and settling down on the lower sides of the limbs for winter quarters, where they remain in a dormant state till spring.

Remedies—When first hatched they are weak and can be easily destroyed by almost any poisonous solution sprayed so freely upon the trees as to saturate the foliage. White hellabore has been found effective in the proportions of one pound to twenty gallons of water. A solution of tobacco and soap is also good, as would also be a solution of arsenic in the proportion of one pound to 400 gallons of water. It should be dissolved in boiling water, and no stock should be allowed to graze under trees sprayed with it until there has been a sharp rain to wash from the grass what may have fallen upon it. What is known as the Excelsior force pump, sold by all dealers in seeds and implements, costing $8 retail, furnishes probably as cheap and effectual means for spraying trees to destroy the insects as can be found. Readers will notice that the time for attempting their destruction is as soon as possible after the young are hatched, which in 1877 in the latitude of Peoria was about the middle of June. The presence of these insects upon trees will be readily recognized by the unhealthy and wilted appearance of the foliage. While they rarely if ever kill a tree, they check its growth and destroy the beauty of its appearance for the season, and no owner of fine trees can afford to permit them to work unmolested.

A Walking Skeleton.

Mr. E. Springer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., writes: "I was afflicted with lung fever and abscess on lungs, and reduced to a walking skeleton. Got a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which did me so much good that I bought a dollar bottle. After using three bottles I found myself once more a man, completely restored to health, with a hearty appetite, and a gain in flesh of 48 pounds."

Call at Lutz & Briggs' drug store and get a free trial bottle of this certain cure for all lung diseases. Large bottles $1.00.

A FEMALE HERCULES.—Southern newspapers for some time past have been telling strange stories of the miraculous feats of a Miss Hurst, of Georgia, but as they were supposed to belong to the hackneyed order of spiritual manifestations, little attention was paid to them. A few days ago, however, Miss Hurst appeared in Washington, and exhibited some of her strange powers in the presence of several professors of the Smithsonian Institute as well as a number of members of congress. It is sufficient to say that her feats were rather out of the line of ordinary spiritual manifestations, and created unbounded astonishment. A World correspondent writes:

In the clear light of a blazing chandelier, in the presence of about fifty watchful people, the Georgia girl showed herself the possessor of most curious strength. With her hands resting lightly upon the handle of an umbrella held by a stout young man from among the spectators she was able to shoot the umbrella through space by a simple exercise of her will. Congressman Reese, of Georgia, who is a very powerful man, tried to hold a chair in his arms while Miss Hurst rested her hands lightly upon it. The chair was forced down in spite of the most violent struggles of the muscular Congressman until it was about two inches from the floor. "Now push the chair down to the floor," cried Father Hurst. Mr. Reese changed his resisting powers and bore his whole weight upon the chair without being able to make it touch the floor.

This experiment was repeated with two men, and then three tried to hold the chair still under the touch of the young woman, but in vain. It was tested in various ways, but no one was strong enough to resist the so-called force. There is no claim upon the part of the Hurst family of any supernatural explanation of the young woman's powers. For nine months she has been the possessor of the nervous strength exhibited this evening. She can raise chairs in which stout men are seated by simply placing her palms on the back of the chair. This was done this evening with various well-known gentlemen who were present. Miss Hurst is a strong, healthy-looking country girl. She claims to be in a perfect gale of spirits when exhibiting her strength, and laughs nervously at every movement of the strong men in their mad struggles to resist the highest pressure of her hands.

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints, purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Lutz & Briggs.

"Makes no difference how smart de mudder and fodder is, some o' de chillun will be smarter than de udders," says Opie Read. "Makes no difference how rich de groun', some o' de co'n stalks is taller den de rest."

Cause of Failure.

Want of confidence accounts for half of the business failures of to-day. C. M. Forbes, the druggist, is not liable to fail for the want of confidence in Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup, for he gives away a bottle free to all who are suffering with coughs, colds, asthma, consumption, and all affections of the throat and lungs.

Washington Letter.

Regular Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, June 17, 1884.

If congress should adjourn on the last day of this month, as the house of representatives has signified a desire to do, only eleven more working days would remain of the present session. But the record of the past week does not indicate an early adjournment. In view of the immense amount of business that remains to be transacted, the thought of an early departure is out of the question. Important measures were advanced very little in either house. The senate cannot get along with the Mexican pension bill. After spending three days debate upon it in open session, and two day in secret session, the republican side of the chamber making campaign speeches on amendments which they proposed, they then went into caucus, and tried to get a plank or two of the Chicago platform into it. Of course, their aim is to defeat the bill, but they would have it appear that they are so very friendly to the soldiers of the late war that they cannot support it unless it is so amended as to include all ex-union soldiers in its beneficent previsions. Senator Saulsbury does not approve of the measure as a whole, but from a far different standpoint. The objection urged by him was that it proposes to pension men who are holding seats in the two houses of congress with the money wrung from the poor toiler as taxes. The senator from Delaware does not speak often, but he talks very plainly when once incited. He informed his associates that they flattered themselves that they were great men, senators of the United States who made laws for the people; but behind them was another power greater than themselves that controlled their action if not their judgment. He alluded to the pension agents who sit around the capitol and issue their circulars and decrees and send up petitions for pensions. The great and mighty statesmen bowed to these behests for fear of losing political status at home. He thought if senators were not human beings, controlled by motives of self interest, and if the soldiers had no votes, there would be no such bills pending before the national legislature. He respected as much as any man the claims of the war marked veteran, but did not approve of squandering money, which people who were suffering for the necessaries of life paid into the public treasury, to pension able bodied men. He said he knew the man who ventures opposition to any bill that proposes to pension anybody takes the risk of being censured and denounced for it. He was willing to take each man's censure and reserve his judgment. He wanted a consistent record, and would vote for the reduction of taxation whenever he could, but would not vote to increase the expenses of the government and thereby keep up taxes.

The senate added $800,000 to the house consular and diplomatic bill, thus protracting the session with another dead-lock contest. It has also debated a claim of Georgia for money expended by that state for the common defense 1777, but the republican senators are not willing to do justice of any kind to a southern state. Senator Morgan in advocating the claim said the ought to be able to consider this question aside from all reminiscences of the war, and as lawyers, as construers and expounders of the constitution, say that this debt is, or is not legal. "Can the senate of the United States," asked he, "twenty years after the war, permit itself to be influenced by acrimonious feeling so as to blind its judgment upon a pure, dry question of law?"

After four days argument the house passed the river and harbor bill, the Hennepin canal scheme being stricken out, and then discussed the senate's amendment to the post office appropriation.

The necessity for dislodging from power a party which, according to no less authority than the late chairman of the republican national committee, has long outlived and abused its mission, is imperative. And the democratic party seems to be in the face of an opportunity, which it cannot be doubted it will use wisely.

Now that Mr. Tilden's noble document of declination has simplified the situation by removing all doubts as to his position, greater activity will be shown in pushing the various candidates and in scrutinizing the merits of possible ones.

It is not generally known that money was freely used at the recent Chicago convention, nor that Blaine was in constant communication, by means of cypher telegrams, with his managing friends there. When he left Washington on Tuesday morning before the nomination, he only decided at the railway station to turn northward, when a cypher telegram from Chicago was placed in his hands telling him to go.

For chapped hands, face, lips and all roughness of the skin, use Kaloderma. 25 cents. Sold by E. Y. Griggs.

The gas works of Bloomington, Ills., exploded late on Tuesday night, leaving the city in total darkness.

Bishop Matthew Simpson, of the Methodist Episcopal church, died at Philadelphia on Wednesday morning. He would have been 73 years of age to-day.

Ben Butler has accepted the nomination of the National greenback convention which met in Indianapolis recently. He indorses all the purposes of the greenbackers, whatever they may be.

Want of Faith.

If Forbes & Lorriaux, the druggists, do not succeed it is not for the want of faith. They have such faith in Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup as a remedy for coughs, colds, consumption and lung affections, that they will give a bottle free to each and everyone who is in need of a medicine of this kind.

The second largest source of revenue to the United States government from any one branch of business is derived from the production and manufacture of tobacco. Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Co., of Durham, N. C., claims to be the largest manufacturer of smoking tobacco in the world. The reputation of Blackwell's Genuine Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is too firmly established to need any commendation at our hands. In another column our readers will notice their new announcement, which is of interest to all lovers of the weed. The company are perfectly responsible, and when they announce that they will give away $11,950 in cash, it is an assured fact that they mean just what they say. Smokers will find an opportunity of combining business with pleasure by reading their announcement.

Carter's Little Liver Pills will positively cure sick headache and prevent its return. This is not talk, but truth. One pill a dose. To be had at all druggists. See advertisement.

"Do you know," remarked a grocer to one of his customers, "that eggs contain five times as much nourishment as any other kind of food?" "I don't doubt it, for I only got a smell of one of those I bought from you the other day, and I've not eaten anything since."

Physicians and Druggists all unite in recommending Downs' Elixir for coughs and colds. Lutz & Briggs.

DIPHTHERIA!

THE PROSTRATION which follows Diphtheria, and the persistency with which it clings to the patient, are well known to all who have had any experience with this terrible disease.

The following letter shows how the restoring and invigorating properties of overcome it, and how by vitalizing and enriching the blood it neutralizes and eradicates the poisoned matter from it, bringing to the convalescent the color, life and vigor of robust health.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—My little girl had the diphtheria last April. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had been taking it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully regained her health, much to our delight. We now recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours,

J. R. SMITH,
19 Butterfield Street.

"That Extreme Tired Feeling."

"The first bottle has done my daughter a great deal of good; her food does not distress her now, nor does she suffer from that extreme tired feeling which she did before taking HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA."
