

DID FIRST LOVE GIVE HIM THE RIGHT?

Mrs. Pearl Rause Shrontz.

San Francisco, July 17.—The story of Mrs. Pearl Rause Shrontz and her elopement to San Francisco might make one of the six best sellers.

She tired of the little Ohio town where her ancestors had lived for generations. She tired of her young husband, who was a humdrum country doctor. She wanted excitement.

As a climax to it all the little vine-covered cottage in the Richmond district, where she and the youth had hidden themselves away, two thousand miles from home, was raided by detectives and they were carried off to police headquarters. Here they were confronted by the husband, the young country doctor, and his father.
