MAN'S ARREST BRINGS OUT STORY FROM GIRL EMPLOYE OF THE FAIR

Man Accused of Forcing Her and Another Girl From International Harvester Co. To Solicit On Streets—Faces Pandering Charge In Morals Court.

Two detectives from the Desplaines Street Station last night made an important step in the establishment of a relationship between low wages and white slavery.

They arrested Joseph Culeoci, 427 S. Aberdeen street, and heard two young low-wage victims—one from The Fair and the other from the International Harvester Company—accused of maintaining a den at Racine and Austin avenues, for which they paid—"after hours."

The police heard the man arguing with the girls at Grand avenue and Green street. They had been laying for him for some time. And then suddenly they pounced on him and the girls recited their troubles to the officers.

The Day Book will not publish the girls' names. It does not wish to further wreck their lives.

Both girls are half-orphans. The girl from The Fair gets $5.50. It was necessary for her to bring her money home to her mother. The other girl gets $7 a week from the International
