Detroit, 8; Chicago, 1.
 Cleveland, 8-0; St. Louis, 3-5.
 Philadelphia, 3; Boston, 5.
 Washington, 2; New York, 1 (11 innings).

National League.

Chicago, 5; Cincinnati, 1.
 St. Louis, 1; Pittsburgh, 0.
 Boston, 4-4; Philadelphia, 5-2 (second innings, darkness).
 New York, 3; Brooklyn, 1.

Federal League.

No games scheduled.

Mattie McCue will get his big chance Saturday. He has been definitely decided on as an opponent for Joe Rivers in Los Angeles, substituting for Ad Wolgast.

Rivers is a more experienced campaigner than McCue and has a more impressive record. He should win, but McCue has an opportunity to make ring history.

Bombardier Wells knocked out an Australian named Colin Bell in the second round at London. The English papers puff Wells on the strength of this victory, so he may come over here to get knocked out again.

Kid Williams, new bantam champion, defeated Kid Herman in ten rounds at New Orleans, but was ill
 and unable to put up his best fight.
 Herman got home a few blows which damaged Williams' face, but the title holder was satisfied to pull through with an easy decision.

Jack Britton knocked out Joe
 Eagan in the fourth round at Boston.
 Britton was to have fought Matty Baldwin, but the latter refused to go on because the Chicagoan was 4½ pounds over the 135-pound limit.

Frank Chance has picked up another first baseman, Henry Kingman, a Californian, who was being tried by Washington.

Cubs Have Chance Against New York —Ed Walsh is Right.

If Red Corriden can play some inspired baseball, there is hope for the Cubs to yet make a race of the National League pennant dash, and give the Giants a tussle for the honors.

Corriden can make or break the chances of the Cubs. It is a large task to rest on Red's shoulders, but he is an aggressive young man, and fight and determination may win where mechanical skill has failed.

Corriden's greatest weakness is on balls hit directly at him. Several shortstops now considered top-notch-ers had the same difficulty at one
