The AUCTION BLOCK BY REX BEACH

Here we have the tale of a young woman who is thrust by her greedy and lazy family into a world of human vultures to win a fortune with her personal charms. But she surprises them all with her fine traits of character.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Peter Knight, defeated for political office in his town, decides to venture New York in order that the family fortune may be saved by the expected rise of his charming daughter, Lorelei. CHAPTER II—A well-known critic interviews Lorelei Knight, now stage beauty with Bergman's Review, for a special article. Her coquettish mother outlines Lorelei's ambitions, but Lillian, the press agent, later adds his information.

be like those mills—it couldn't be worse." Lorelei had never heard her roommate speak with such feeling nor in such a strain.

her knees; her eyes were brilliant in the gathering dusk. Her memories seemed to affect her with a kind of horror, yet to hold her fascinated and to demand expression. "I was an imaginative kid," she continued. "It's a trait of our people, like—well, like their distrust of authority and their fear of law."

evidenced her agitation. Rising, she jerked a beaded chain that depended from the center lamp, and the room was flooded with mellow light; then she drew out the table drawer at her right, and with shaking hands selected a small box from the confusion within. Lorelei recoiled at the sight of a revolver hidden among the disorder.

The Gaucherie of Soldiers. Soldiers when marching at night through open country invariably grope late toward the left, not to the right. This is the experience of an old soldier, who thinks the tendency is due to two causes.

Her Recommendation. A woman prominent as a social worker was in the city to engage a new girl the other day. She visited an employment agency which makes a specialty of finding places for country housemaids and was much pleased with one from the country.

Dad Cets Back. "So you are going to marry a chorus girl, hey?" "Now, don't kick up a fuss, dad. Two can live as cheaply as one."

Correct. "It's easy to find out what time it is," said a married man. "If the hall clock says 5:20, and the drawing room clock says 5:50, and the dining room clock says 6:05, and my watch says 6:15, and my wife's little Ginky watch says 6, it's 6 o'clock in our house."

Perseverance. Perseverance is more prevailing than violence, and many things which cannot be overcome when they are together yield themselves up when taken little by little.

To know how to wait is the great secret of success.—De Malatre.
