The PEACE of the HEART

A CHRISTMAS THOUGHT

By Douglas Malloch

Peace is not something the pleasure of Kings,

Peace is not something to sell or to buy;

Every carol that merrily sings,

Every anthem that gladdens the sky,

Sings of a peace that forever is ours,

Sings of a peace that can never depart—

Peace of the Christmas, God-given Christmas,

Christmas that brings us the peace of the heart.

Deep in the heart is the dwelling of peace,

There is the temple, the innermost shrine.

"Be ye not troubled," for sorrow shall cease—

Christmas is here with its message divine.

See you the star in the heaven of blue,

Lighting the meadow the mill and the mart?

It is our Christmas,

Star of our Christmas,

Christmas that brings us the peace of the heart.

Centuries so it has lighted the world,

When we were weary has given us calm;

Flags have been flaunted and flags have been furled,

Still it has lighted the pine and the palm.

Man on his earth cannot dim it with wrong.

Change it with all of his warrior's art—

Still we have Christmas,

Glorious Christmas,

Christmas that brings us the peace of the heart.

Life is a labor, and labor is long,

Only by effort we come to the goal;

We shall have need of the star and the song,

Lamp for the highway and light for the soul.

Lift up your eyes to its radiance clear,

On a new year of your pilgrimage start,

Gladdened by Christmas,

God-given Christmas,

Christmas that brings us the peace of the heart.

Kind and courageous, undaunted by doubt,

Faithful to duty, to God and to man,

Working your ultimate destiny out,

Filling your place in the infinite plan—

Thus you shall come to the end of the task

Knowing the pleasure of playing your part,

Making your Christmas,

Merriest Christmas,

Christmas that brings you the peace of the heart.
