

has either got to go to some saloon and find out or else buy one of the other daily newspapers and I don't care to do either.

This is one fault in your paper I hope to see corrected soon.—Harry B. Nulph, 2148 Congress st.

ROCKEFELLER.—As the law and our institutions stand we can do nothing. We concede that the Rockefeller corporation owns the most of the coal deposits of Colorado. We concede the right to individuals to organize corporations which can do business upon other people's money, and if the corporation makes ducks and drakes of the money, so the creditors and small stockholders cannot find out where the money went, the directors of the corporation can escape with the plunder and repeat the game ad libitum, so the people are robbed of their landed inheritance and robbed of their savings, strictly according to law.

The law robs the individuals of his equal right to the use of the earth, thus putting him at the mercy of the organized appetite of the privileged corporation that thrives on the special privileges of land ownership, franchise grants and exemption from the laws that mercilessly collect debts from private individuals. The corporation can hire the disinherited at starvation wages and also rob them of their savings by stock jobbing, because we are so ignorant of our rights that we cannot get together to change the law that enthrones the legalized robbery.

If we can get together we can un-tax our earnings and our savings and we can tax the land values of the monopolists until they care to hold no more land than they can use. Then the rest of the people will have a chance to use some of it. We can change the corporation laws so that every stockholder will be liable to the extent of his property for the debts and wrongdoing of the corporation. That will abolish robbery by stock jobbing and give the poor a chance to draw a long breath and look around to see what comes next.—Geo. V. Wells.

HOW CAN WE LIVE. — We have read about the Kate Adams bill. How does she think the prostitutes are going to live? There must be such a thing as vice. There has been before this generation and there will be for many generations to come, and they ought to be satisfied there is a certain amount of girls who are willing to sacrifice their souls?

Does Kate Adams think that by putting the girls in a house they are going to reform them? Never. I myself was a respectable girl when I was put in a home, and that is where I learn to be what I am today. Kate Adams must not think that because she has all the luxuries in life that we must not have anything.

We are not dogs, to be hounded around. Why should they put us in jail? We do not commit crime. Kate Adams thinks it will be better for the society people by putting us in jail. Why don't they give us a district and let us stay in one place and we will not interfere with society. Kindly publish this and let the public think it over.—Geraldine, Zita and Maxine.

Mr. Hardup Teetle—Well, this is very funny; heaps of signs and yet I can't find one pawnbroker on the bush.
