

REGAL RITES ACCOMPANY BURIAL OF POPE

BODY OF BENEDICT XV LAID IN CRYPT UNDER ST. PETER'S

Rome, Jan. 26.—Pope Benedict XV was entombed with solemn and impressive ceremony this afternoon. His body enclosed in three caskets and dressed in the pontifical robes in a crypt under the great basilica of St. Peter's, to the right of the entrance.

The historic and beautiful ritual was witnessed only by members of the sacred college, members of the pontifical household and the papal nobility and diplomats accredited to the Vatican.

The great bronze doors of St. Peter's had been closed at noon, cutting off the stream of people, who for more than three days had been passing before the entrance where the body lay in state.

Ushers Carry Body.
The ceremony began with the removal of the body from the chapel of the Holy Sacrament to the chapel of the choir. It rested upon a bier which was borne upon the shoulders of the pontifical ushers, whose usual function is to carry the Pope in the pontifical chair in pontifical processions. The Vatican clergy headed the cortege, bearing torches and chanting the anthem "Exultate Domino." On either side of the bier strode members of the Swiss guard, palatine guards and the papal gendarmery.

As the procession moved the choir of the Chapel Julia, in glowing robes of purple, sang the "Miserere."

Noble Guards Serve As Escort.
Noble Guards in dazzling full dress uniforms formed an escort of honor and the pontiff's bier was covered with a tapestry of red damask on which the body rested while lying in state in the basilica.

Members of the members of the sacred college, bishops, archbishops and diplomats entered the chapel of the choir, with its high steeple rising on both sides of the altar and took up their positions according to their rank. The strains of the "Miserere" were heard as the procession approached the chapel and the Cardinal Archbishop Merry Del Val and the cardinal camerlengo, Gasparri, took their places near the caskets which were to receive the body.

As the strains of the "Miserere" ended the body was carried in and the anthem "Exultate Domino" was again sung, followed by the chanting of "In Paradisum."

Search Interior for Looters.
At 11 o'clock the clearing of St. Peter's, preparatory to the burial services, was begun by the Italian royal troops. At 11:30 o'clock a search was made of the interior, so that no unauthorized persons remained for the final ceremonies. In rooms and corridors and behind pillars numbers were found, many of them women, who had hidden in a hope of being overlooked until 3 o'clock, the hour the caskets were scheduled to be laid.

A comparative display of this kind gives everyone the privilege of making com-

7 PERU MINERS ESCAPE FROM BURNING SHAFT

ELEVATED TO SURFACE AFTER PLUNGE TO ROARING C. LDON
NO MEN IN LEVEL.
ALL HANDS HAD LEFT WHEN BLAZE WAS DISCOVERED, TWO DEPARTMENTS AND RESCUE CREW FIGHT TO CHECK FLAMES.

Peru, Jan. 26.—(Special)—Fire discovered last night at 9 o'clock in the third vein level of the Union Mine, this city, was raging with unchecked intensity this afternoon despite the combined efforts of fire departments from Peru and La Salle and skilled squads from the mine rescue station at La Salle to extinguish the flames. Fears are expressed that the loss will run high into the thousands.

Seven men who were being lowered into the shaft were first to make the discovery that the mine was afire. They telephoned the "top" and were immediately hoisted to the air above away from any danger.

Fight Way Through Airless Tunnel.
Two men, hazzarding a journey into the bowels of the earth this morning in a hope of cutting off the fire from two dozen miles near the main entry, narrowly escaped death, and would have died but for the heroism of Walter Rechinowski, a miner, who not only rescued himself but dragged William Martens, a fire boss, the greater part of a mile through the smoke-filled tunnel to a point where both could be rescued.

Make Trip for Mules.
Martens and Rechinowski volunteered to enter the mine to drop an asbestos curtain between the burning entrance and the stables, where twenty-four mules were kept. The two worked their way back into the tunnel from the "west" passage, only about two miles away from the upper works.

When they came in close to the fire they were met by a blast of smoke which forced them into a hasty retreat. Crawling on their hands and knees, and then, when air became scarcer and scarcer, sliding along on their stomachs, the two managed to cover several blocks of the back trail before Martens, a man well along in years, collapsed.

Orders Rechinowski to Leave Him.
He commanded his companion to proceed without him and leave him there to die. Rechinowski refused to desert his mate. He picked Martens up, carried him as far as his own remaining breath would permit, and then dragged him almost up the far entrance, when he, too, went down, threatened with suffocation. With one last supreme effort he reached the exit. After gaining the air he fell unconscious in a huddled heap. Dr. Grieves was on hand to administer first aid treatment to Rechinowski, who, after he had been resuscitated, told of Martens' brave pluck. Rescuers rushed into the shaft and found the dying fire boss where Rechinowski was forced to abandon him.

Mules Meet Their Fate.
Brought out into the air and with the aid of artificial respiration, Martens was restored to his senses. This afternoon neither man was suffering any bad effects from their harrowing experience.

They reported that the flames were spreading rapidly through the level in what is known as the "east passage." The twenty-four mules, they said, could not survive the dense clouds of smoke that filled the mine.

No Men in Mine.
So far as is known, no one was in the shaft at the time the blaze broke out near the main entry. A check of all employees of the company revealed that none had been lowered into the pit prior to the time the discovery was made that the shaft had been transformed into a roaring caldron during the night.

The level in which the fire is confined is about four hundred feet below the surface of the earth. The scene of the blaze is known as the "working level," as it was there all the miners were kept at work.

The miners who were brought to the top informed the engineer that the whole interior of the level seemed, during the momentary glance they had of it, to be a seething mass of flame and predicted there would be little possibility of preventing an enormous loss.

Hurry up calls were sent into the Peru and La Salle departments, both of which responded with full fire fighting equipment. When they attempted, however, to reach the flames 400 feet below the ground, they found the task futile. An appeal was sent to a mine rescue company, which has a station in La Salle, and a squad of

DAYTON P. O. ROBBED BY MEAT CLEAVER BANDITS; GET $7.25

THIEVES USE BUTCHER'S 'WEAPON' TO BREAK OPEN STRONG BOX CONTAINING FUNDS BELONGING TO UNCLE SAM AND STORE KEEPER.

Running a risk of facing a term in the federal prison to secure a few dollars of government money, thieves last night robbed the Dayton postoffice, making way with $5.25 in postal funds and $2 in pennies from the W. B. Fleming grocery store. The robbery is believed to have been pulled by the roughest kind of amateurs, so the police said, the traces led behind by the robbers' team.

This postoffice, which is located in the rear corner of the Fleming grocery store, was closed shortly before 9 o'clock last night. This morning at 7 o'clock Mr. Fleming opened his place of business, and built a fire before he discovered that the place had been burglarized.

A small safe, which is more in the nature of a strong box, twelve by twenty-four inches in dimensions, which held the postoffice funds, had been smashed open by a meat cleaver, which was taken from the butcher shop. The supply of stamps was passed over the robbers, evidently searching only for cash. The money from the store was taken from a cash drawer and from a dish in the candy case.

The meat cleaver was found where it had been hidden by the robbers, after the theft in the coal pile, in the basement.

Entrance to the building was gained by breaking out a basement window. The robbers then went upstairs by an inside stairway. They worked with the door, until they succeeded in getting the wooden bar lock that fastened it from the arm that held it.

A trail of burnt matches which were strewn on the floor around the room, showed that the burglars had taken their time in making the search. The robbers were evidently of a hungry frame of mind, for they stopped long enough to have a lunch, opening a can of peaches, and scattering crackers all around the cracker box. Some bars of candy are also believed to have been devoured by the hungry boys or men.

The candy and cigarette case was evidently overlooked for it is not believed to have been touched.

The thieves left the building by a side door which they unlocked from the inside of the building. The door was carefully closed after the robbery and it was not until a careful investigation was made that it was learned that the exit had been made that way.

Deputy Sheriff Fred E. Steidman went to Dayton this morning to make an investigation.

Ray Husted, 29, a well known resident of this city, who has been residing at the O'Keefe rooming house on West Main street, passed away yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock at Ryburn hospital, following a lingering illness. Leakage of the heart was given as the direct cause of Mr. Husted's death.

The deceased had been in poor health for a considerable time. As his condition became gradually worse he was taken to the City hospital Dec. 22, 1921, where he was confined until the time of his death. He was born in England Oct. 31, 1892, and came to America several years ago, settling in Ottawa.

Surviving he leaves a widow, Mrs. Margaret Downey Husted, to whom he was united in marriage last August. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from St. Patrick's church. Burial will be made in St. Columba cemetery.

Besides his grief-stricken widow surviving, Mr. Husted leaves his father and a brother, living in England, and a brother residing in South Dakota.

thoroughly trained rescue men were set at the task of saving the property.

Reverse Huge Fans.
This afternoon statements given out by the mine officials said that the rescue men had made little progress against the flames, which appeared to be spreading farther and farther back into the level. In a hope of stemming the spread, the huge fans were reversed and great rushes of air sent against the fire in a hope of driving it out the main shaft.

45 DEPUTIES FORM CORDON OF GUARDS AT STREATOR PLANT

SHERIFF AYERS AND FIVE DEPUTIES JOIN LIVINGSTON COUNTY OFFICIALS IN MAINTAINING ORDER AT WORKS WHERE MEN ARE ON STRIKE.

Armed with revolvers and with two rifles, Sheriff Curt Ayers and four deputies left at 5:50 this morning on the first interurban car for Streator, ready to be on duty for the reopening of the metal stamping works, which were operated today for the first time since the riot of last week. In Streator the quintet of Ottawa men were joined by a number of special deputies from that city and by deputies from Livingston county, until the armed body of officers on duty at the plant numbered forty-five.

At the stamping works today workmen were busily engaged in the plying of their trades turning out the company products, and the deputies had spent a quiet and uneventful time up to a late hour this afternoon. Inside the building, within easy range of the officers, stood two suitcases filled with ammunition, ready to put down any disturbance that might occur.

During the morning and the early afternoon all was quiet at the plant and the operation under the open shop policy was carried on with very little trouble from the organized labor sympathizers.

The plant went over to the open shop policy of operation on Jan. 2. Last week on two days mobs formed around the company property, just south of Streator. The superintendent of the company, Frank Mason, was injured one day, while in the riot the following afternoon ex-Sheriff William Patterson of Livingston county had his face cut open twice by bricks thrown by the mob. Several other deputies were injured by flying missiles.
