BY PAUL BRUNER.

The Sox grabbed two snowball games from the lowly "Quincy" (term used advisedly) crew yesterday p. m., the first being congealed to the home bench 5 to 3, and the second 2 to 0, the latter going only seven degrees. The thermometer novered about the freezing point all afternoon and 18 bugs perished, victims of the Arctic blasts which swept the playing field with sickening regularity. Umpire Knapp managed to survive the blizzard, but that was due solely to the fact that it was too cold for the soft drinks and the bleacherites were not in possession of the customary pop bottle ammunition.

KNAPP IN BAD.

Knapp, who is drawing salary as an umpire, made his first appearance on the home grounds, and got away on the wrong foot, right from the jump. Knapp is rightly named, for in the fourth inning of the first game, he was just as sound asleep as though he were stretched out on a canvas cot in a Turkish bath parlor after a strenuous evening with the wayward. In that heated session Clemens was chased to the clubhouse and fined. D. O'Leary was also asked to contribute to the sinking fund. Listen, and we will relate.

SECOND BASE PLAY.

Clemens had singled. Billings, the Quincy catcher, hurled the ball down to first to catch the Sox left fielder napping, but his arm was a trifle woozy and the pill landed somewhere out in the right field bleachers. Clemens ran all the way to third and was peached on that station, when Kahl advanced the claim that Bobbie had pulled Fred Merkle's copyrighted boner by neglecting to touch second, and running over, tagged him lightly on th wrist. The beautiful part of it all is that when Clemens reached second base his foot caught on the bag, and the athlete stumbled and nearly fell to the ground. But what does Noah Eurelius Knapp say? That dignitary murmurs, "You're out."

"LET ME SLEEP."

Now Knapp had been day dreaming all this time, and his thoughts were 15,286 miles away. He was dreaming of the gladsome day when he would found a correspondence school for umpires and sit in a swivel backed chair fronting a mahogany desk, endorsing checks and dictating mercantile chatter to a dizzy blonde steno. The kale seed was rolling in, and he was just ordering a 75 horse power red devil sent around to the house on approval when Kahl ran up to him and yelled, "That man never touched second." Knapp awoke with a start, and wondered if he had missed his breakfast. He began to grope for the ice water pitcher, and then abruptly realized that he was supposed to be umpiring a ball game.

He did not know whether he had dreamed that second base stuff or not, but took a chance and let her ride. Then followed a mob scene. Clemens, O'Leary and the gang surrounded his honor the Bumps, and endeavored to point out to him the error of his ways, but Knapp was not long on the conversation. All he could say was, "That will be $10 more for you and $15 for you, and you can have another ten." Then he chased O'Leary to the bench, and informed Clemens that the club house needed his particular presence. Barnes went into left garden, and the game proceeded.

BUNCH ERRORS.

Kid Crouch did the slabbing in No. 1 and held the visitors to seven hits. He was a trifle off color on control, but got by nicely. The Sox glommed two runs off as many hits in the third. Koepping walked, went to third on Flaharty's scratch two sacker, which bounced off Golvin's shoe laces into the garden, and registered on Bromwich's single. Three more were grabbed in the fifth, which was a nightmare session all the way. Coleman walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Crouch was safe on a scratch infield bump to third base. Willis, the visiting slabbist, threw the ball over the first sacker's knob and Coleman scored, Crouch going to third. Reed lived on a fielder's choice. Koepping flew to right, and Crouch beat the throw to the platter. Flaharty singled, and Reed, who had gone to second on the play for Coleman and had advanced to third on Koepping's rainbow, scored. Pat went all the way to third when Golvin pegged wild to second, but died there, as Bromwich and Barnes were easy.

The cellar boys got all theirs in the sixth after two were gone. Three runs were hung up by reason of two singles, a two bagger, a boot and a wild pitch. After that there was nothing doing.

SECOND GAME.

By agreement, the second gumbo went but seven innings, which was enough. Hendrix hung the kibosh on Tretter and landed a 2 to 0 shutout. In the first stanza Reed walked, stole second and scored on Koepping's single. The other tally came in the third. Reed, first up, plastered one to center garden for one sack. Koepping waited for a quartet of wide ones. Flaharty bumped to the pitcher and was safe on a fielder's choice, Reed being executed at third. Koepping scored a moment later on Bromwich's single to center. That's all.

STRAY ICICLES.

Chesty Collins, the Quincy center gardener, tried to get by with some Ty Cobb junk in the first inning, but instead was one victim of a double play. Collins had singled. Kerwin laid down one, and was nailed at first. Collins tried to go all the way to third, but was crucified.

Charlie Snyder, who is taking his turn on the slab with the basement aggregation, is touted as some hitter. He was secured from the St. Louis Browns and has been playing the outfield part of the time, because of his sticking. Snyder went in as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning of the first game, but fanned. He also did the pinch stunt in the seventh of the second, and delivered with a clean single.

Barnes did not get a chance in the outfield, after he had been shoved into the void left by Clemens.

Carrigan robbed Kahl of a hit in the second game. Kahl lined one to center which was tagged for a safety, but Carrie, rushing in, speared the pill on the dead run.

Coca Cola Reed made a pretty play on Kerwin's grounder in the second game. The Georgia peach orchard was playing well over toward third station, when the ball was hit about two feet due east of the keystone sack. The kid rushed over, grabbed the pellet and in the same motion winged it to first, beating the runner by a hair. Much applause.

Golvin made a beautiful stop in the first inning of the second game. Bromwich binged a liner toward right field which looked like a lulu. Golvin with a leap into the air, speared the ball with one mitt.

"Tubby" Hackett, the manager with the excess adiopose tissue, entertained with some polite chatter, rendered in a basso profundo bull frog vocal effect.

The crowd sure had it in for Umps Knapp. It hissed the downtrodden disciple of the indicator repeatedly, and continued to pan him all afternoon.

The Quincy-Davenport game scheduled for tomorrow has been called off. Quincy will play an exhibition game down in the wilds of Missouri. The Sox go on the road Wednesday for a series with Quincy and Peoria respectively.

The Dubs won both games yesterday, but the boys still lead.

ROWLAND DRAWS A FIFTY DOLLAR FINE

(Davenport Democrat.

Chicago, June 9.—President Tearney of the Three-Eye league has imposed a fine of $50 on Manager Rowland of the Dubuque club for violating the player limit rule, which says no club shall carry more than 14 men. The Dubuque club, President Tearney asserts, was carrying 15 players.

"I am very much interested in this rule, which means the success of a club in a minor league and I mean to enforce it," President Tearney said. "I have no doubt that Manager Rowland did not intentionally violate the rule, so I made the fine as light as possible. Under the league rules, I should fine the club $50 for each game played while more than 14 men were carried and forfeit the games."

Holdout Reports to Dubuque.

Dubuque, Iowa, June 9.—Shortstop Rollo Barringer, a holdout, reported to Manager Rowland yesterday and participated in the last game with Peoria.

St. Paul Buys Twirler.

St. Paul, June 9.—The purchase by the local American Association club of Pitcher Brandt from the Boston Americans was announced here yesterday. Jack Flynn of the local club has been sold to Indianapolis, and Pitcher Salmon, recently acquired from Louisville, has been released.

Flaherty an Umpire.

Pat Flaherty, former major league pitcher, who was with Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Boston before going to the American association to pitch and who later played the outfield for the Boston braves, has been signed to umpire in the Federal league. During his day Flaherty was noted for his quick return ball and was in a way responsible for the rule against this delivery.

Manager Jensen's Cross Country aggregation copped a close game from the Rock Island West Ends yesterday by a 4-3 count. With the score 3 to 1 against the C. C. gang, Bloomberg leaned against a fast one for a homer, driving in one man ahead of him and knotting the count. The winning run was pushed over in the ninth, thanks to Davenport's single. Curtis, of the winners, faned 11 men and held the opposition to four swats, while the Jensenites combed the opposition for 10 solid ones. The West Ends are not satisfied with the beating and another game will be played in the near future, for a $25 side bet. Next Sunday the Cross Country team journeys to Dixon. The batteries for yesterday's game were Curtis and Workman; Shean and Page.

GIANTS DEFEATED IN TENTH INNING

Brain Work of Charlie Smith and Stonewall Defense Wins for Cubs.

Chicago, June 9.—Buffaloed by the wise old noodle toted on the shoulders of Charley Smith and turned back by some of the best cub defensive work of the year the climbing giants tumbled yesterday before 11,000 chortling, frigid cub cohorts. Fighting nip and tuck with each other and every inning producing its share of sensations the old rivals tussled for 10 sessions before the Trojans could slip over the run that won by 2 to 1. The Rock Island Sluggers lived up to their name yesterday, grabbing both games of a double header. Silvis was trimmed 4 to 1 in the morning and South Heights took the count in the matinee performance, 13 to 9. Clark for the Sluggers, proved an iron man, pitching both games and fanning 27 men.

The Red Islanders walloped the Eagles yesterday afternoon, 9 to 0. Koch and Nold did the battery work for the Red Islanders, Wagner and Moltzen working for the losers. Nold was in excellent form throughout.
