THE BULLETIN. Published every morning, Monday excepted.

LOCAL BREVITIES. Sunday was a cold, damp, and disagreeable day.

The churches of the city were well attended on Sunday.

The two largest steamers on the western rivers, the Jas. Howard and Great Republic, are loading at this port for New-Orleans.

A few more fires and the anti-cistern men of the city will come to the conclusion that probably it would be as well to build cisterns that would give our fire companies a full supply of water in case of emergency.

Late Springfield dispatches announce that Mr. Webb, our member in the house, on Friday last, introduced a resolution, asking congress to pass a law establishing a United States Circuit Court at Cairo, which was adopted.

The Paducah Kentuckian complains that the Cairo papers do not arrive regularly, at that place, and wants to know whether the fault is with the mails or at the printing offices.

Found, eight keys on a string. They were found in the rear of Mr. Thornton's Tenth street building, near where the Rough and Ready and Hibernian engines were at work Saturday evening.

Lost, on Saturday evening, Dec. 16th, near the corner of Commercial and Eighth streets, a small memorandum book, in which were contained a large package of bills. The finder will please leave it at the store of Mr. C. H. Hann.

The Hibernian fire company did noble work at the fire yesterday. They were first on the ground, and threw the first water.

John Holmes, who has served as night policeman in the first police district for the last six months, has resigned his position in the office of the Illinois Central railroad depot at this place.

The third party of the series to be given by the Cairo Torpischorean Club will be held at St. Charles hotel, on Friday evening, Dec. 22, 1871.

EXPLANATION.

Editor Cairo Bulletin: I see in your Sunday morning's issue an item purporting to come from the city authorities, requesting me to state what became of the man I committed to the city jail on the night of the 14th inst., which I will do.

EXPLANATION. I picked up a man on the corner of Twelfth street and Washington avenue and committed him to the city jail. On Friday morning at 9 o'clock, I went to the jail for him, and when he was brought out I looked at him and found that he was afflicted with rupture, and wearing a truss.

THE GILBERT SISTERS.

There was a very respectable audience at the Athenaeum, to see the performance by the Gilbert dramatic troupe, last night. The house was not large, we feel sure was owing to the threatening aspect of the weather.
