

THE BULLETIN.

JOHN H. OBERLY, Editor and Proprietor. WEDNESDAY MORNING, February 28, 1872

THE DOLLAR WEEKLY BULLETIN. JOHN H. OBERLY & CO. own and control the publication...

CASSIUS M. CLAY, one of the founders of the Republican party, says that to re-nominate and re-elect Grant is to open a highway to the overthrow of our liberties.

THE Cincinnati Commercial says: "We should not be surprised if it turned out that the temporary recall of Minister Washburne was prompted by the desire of the friends of the administration to bring about a reconciliation..."

THE New York Herald says, "there are at this time evident signs of revival among southern democrats." The "revival" is brought about by the conviction, shared in by honest men all over this country...

NOTES OF THE DAY.

Wachtel's drink between acts is hot water straight. The Indianapolis Sentinel calls them Terre Haute tents. Columbus, Ga., obliges butchers to wear white aprons. The Chicago Times alludes to Wachtel's "melodious gullet."

LITERARY.

THE MAGAZINE.—The March number of this sterling old monthly is at hand, and is embellished with an excellent portrait, on steel, of Herbert Spencer, the celebrated English philosopher.

The leading article of the number is a fine essay on "Mahomet," giving the results of the latest researches into his history, and written in a more popular and intelligible style than has usually been employed on this theme...

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY comes to hand promptly, and in the March number we find the usual amount of fresh, interesting and instructive reading matter.

FASHIONS FOR MARCH.

We have reached the first spring month and perhaps we may dream of soon needing lighter clothing; but the cold blasts nudge us to wrap our winter clothing more closely about us, and we set the idea aside as not being required for some time.

A standing ruffle of Valenciennes lace, with a large jabot or oval rosette in front, is worn instead of collar with dressy street toilets in the evening. The corset is extremely delicate this season, fashions generally covers the neck, the beauty, half hidden, enhanced by its light drapery.
