As soon as Mr. Cleveland returns from his fishing excursion the work of removing offensive partisans will be prosecuted vigorously, it is reported.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe is the first of Kansas railroads to accept the grain rates fixed by the railroad commissioners in their recommendation of August 10.

It seems that all of Envoy Sedgwick's denials that he did not indulge too freely in Mexican mescal are unavailing. The facts all show that he had a disgraceful Mexican jamboree, and that is all there is of it.

The migratory birds are leaving for the south a month earlier than last year, which it is said, means an earlier winter. There is so much to be done yet this fall in southern Kansas that we hope the birds, or the prophecy of them may be off.

Neal Dove, the Maine third-party Prohibitionist leader, was asked a few days ago if it were true that St. John had refused to speak unless paid in advance. He replied: "Yes; he did refuse to speak in Augusta because they couldn't raise any money; also in Bangor. The only two speakers of our party who get paid are Mr. St. John and the Confederate colonel from Kentucky."

There is a marked revival of speculative activity in the New York stock market. Bonds of all classes are active and strong. Government bonds advanced on purchases by the national banks. Money is easier though rates are firm at between 5 and 6 per cent. The eastern wool markets are no less favorable for holders, the tendency of prices being upward. On some lines a rise of one-half cent a pound has been attained.

An exchange suggests that it may not be generally known that there is a very simple and inexpensive remedy for cuts and bruises on horses and cattle, at the command of every one. It is nothing more than to apply to the wound lime, fresh slacked, of the consistency of thick cream, with a common paint brush. Cover the wound with it as quickly as possible, and repeat it daily, or oftener, if necessary. In a short time new flesh will form and the wound heal with hardly a scar.

Commenting on the work of the anti-saloon Republican conference in Chicago, the Inter-Ocean says: "The convention may not become historic, as Senator Blair prophesied, but it will not be remembered unpleasantly. It may not accomplish much good, but it will never be said of its members that they met as obstructionists or that they encouraged dissensions. They were honest, earnest, fighting Republicans, who desired to have their say in a great moral issue, and who exercised their privilege to their own satisfaction and credit."

ANOTHER DAILY.

The Newton Kansas, one of the oldest papers in southwest Kansas, appeared Sunday morning as a daily, an eight column daily. Our views of these daily paper ventures in southern Kansas has been expressed so often that we will not repeat them now. The Kansas is a very pretty, bright sheet, in size large enough for a city of twenty thousand, and without reference to our judgment, we wish Mr. Ashbaugh a success which shall reach his expectations.

THE SANTA FE'S NEW LINES.

The Santa Fe is not only going to build from New Kiowa southwest to Albuquerque but two hundred and twenty-five miles of the line is to be put in at once. This will carry it to the Canadian river country. It is proposed to make this line, which will go by the way of the Walnut valley, the through Pacific line. The Santa Fe is also running a survey northwest through the southern part of Chase county and over the line which the Frisco people had marked out for an extension of their line from Fredonia to Salina. The Santa Fe have also submitted propositions for a line from Greensburg, Kiowa county, to the southwest corner of Clark county. This last line will be directly in the interest of Wichita. As for the extension from New Kiowa southwest, whose interest that will be remains to be seen, but Wichita ought to and no doubt will gain very largely by it.

MOONLIGHT'S RECORD AND POSITION.

An old Kansas Democrat mournfully remarked, a few days ago: "I heard Tom Moonlight make a speech, in 1868, that was the most violent and abusive tirade against the Democratic party and its leaders I ever listened to; and now they have nominated him for governor, and expect me to vote for him. Somehow the abusive speech rings in my ears. If he was right then, the Democratic party ought to be eternally damned in this election, as well as in all others. If he slandered and lied about the Democratic party then, no Democrat ought to vote for him now."

Old Kansas remember the time, not many years ago, when Moonlight was the most radical of Republicans. In 1868 he was the Republican candidate for secretary of state, and made speeches for the Republican ticket. Two of the planks in the Republican state platform of 1868, on which Col. Moonlight ran, and which he heartily endorsed at the convention, and approved on the stump, were as follows: "Resolved, second, That the history of the Democratic party in Kansas, from its earliest attempt to force the system of human slavery upon a reluctant people, its systematic apathy during the struggle for national existence, is a record of violence, cowardice and fraud. Its leaders and its principles are unchanged, and deserve alike the unqualified opposition of every citizen who believes in the supremacy of law and the perpetuity of free institutions."

"Resolved, third, That the studied and persistent hostility of the Democratic party to the prosecution of the war for the preservation of the Union, its constant and malignant efforts in the North to perplex the Government and dishearten the people, and its open and disguised treason in the South, its position of uncompromising opposition to every measure originated for the safety of the Nation; its nomination of candidates for President and Vice President (Seymour and Blair) who propose, if elected, to trample in the dust laws duly enacted, to disperse State Governments, constitutionally established, and undo the work of reconstruction with violence and blood, impel all friends of the Republic, with renewed energy, to rally in support of the Republican party, to rally in support of the hopes of the Nation clustered in its darkest hours."

In the Democratic State Convention that year, as delegates, were Hon. Thomas P. Fenlon, Judge W. R. Wagstaff, Judge John Martin, S. C. Bephart, J. P. Taylor Isaac Sharp, A. G. Otis, B. P. Waggener, and many others equally well known. The Democratic candidate for Governor was George W. Glick; for Congress, Gen. Charles W. Blair; for Secretary of State, Wilson Shannon, jr.; for Associate Justice, D. R. Wagstaff; and for Attorney General, Ross Burnes. These were the "leaders" who, Colonel Moonlight then declared, deserved "alike the unqualified opposition of every citizen who believes in the supremacy of the law and the perpetuity of free institutions," and whose history and actions in Kansas constituted an unbroken "record of violence, cowardice and fraud."

Colonel Moonlight made speeches, in all parts of Kansas, endorsing this platform, and he was elected Secretary of State by the Republicans, beating Wilson Shannon, jr.

In September, 1870, Moonlight was a candidate, before the Republican state convention at Topeka, for congressman, receiving ten votes. Failing to receive this nomination, he became a candidate for re-nomination as secretary of state, but was beaten, receiving only thirteen votes out of one hundred and seventy-six. Two years later, in 1872, he was an applicant for appointment as United States marshal. Failing to receive this appointment, he became sour and sore-headed, and drifted into the Democratic party.

This is the political history of the man the Democrats of Kansas are asked to vote for. Senator Ingalls made him a Democrat by refusing to have him appointed United States marshal, and he has ever since hated and abused the Republican party and John J. Ingalls with about equal bitterness.

Moonlight is, however, consistent in one thing. He is for free whiskey, all the time. He it was who forced Judge John Martin to decline the Democratic nomination for Governor, in 1862, by bulldozing the Democratic state convention into adopting and nullification platform, on which Judge Martin refused to run. The Leavenworth platform of 1866 is his platform. It is not only against prohibition, but against any restraints or restrictions on the whisky traffic. It is against local option, against high license, and against anything except an unrestricted whisky traffic—a license system permitting anybody to open a saloon who pays for the privilege.

A PARTY OF BOSSES.

Our readers could hardly have failed noticing the cut and dried atmosphere which laid so heavily on the Sedgewick county Democratic convention last Saturday. In the principal convention there was not a single contest that could be called such. Everything was shoved through as per program on schedule time. The candidates having all been previously determined upon by the bosses, each as his place was announced, was trotted out and trotted through unanimously by acclamation and in great shape. Such harmony could only come of the cooked work of bosses. If the candidates were angels they would be repudiated by the Republican party, if so foisted into their campaign. In reading over the report of the doings of that convention we find its entire proceedings almost wholly taken up with little unimportant details and useless formalities. The real work for which such bodies are supposed to be called into existence, proved simply a rapid routine endorsement of what had all been very evidently determined before. In making up their central committee, also, the authority and power was vested in six or seven men only. What should have been the committee and which would have been in some character representative, was simply made a tail, or an auxiliary, to be used or not used, as the bosses might determine was for the best interests of the ring. Any man who failed to see it so needs a guardian. Still this is the party whose organs go on talking about bossism in the Republican party. They are so used to winning under their own gall that they naturally think that every body else must be suffering also. The truth is the Democratic party is a party of bosses. Jackson is their patron saint and he was an ideal boss in every public relation of his life. Name us any state or any city in this country where the Democratic party is dominant and we will name a state or city which is ruled by "bossism" in its most offensive and dangerous form, we don't care whether it's Tammany in New York or the mere political cliques and rings of a South Carolina or a Mississippi. What the one is and has been costing New York for years and what others have cost the south we need not tell Republicans, for they know, and it is useless to tell Democrats for they won't heed, but the high handed corruption upon the one hand and the blasting effects of intrigue upon the others are disputed and denied only by the Democratic party themselves, who no doubt would deny that the work of last Saturday in this city had all been practically prearranged.

SARATOGA CELEBRATION.

K. P. Rhoades, chief engineer and superintendent of construction of the Kansas, Pratt & Western, will be the recipient of much deserved praise today at Saratoga, which place will celebrate the completion of that road to that point. Wichita extends a friendly hand to the Saratogans, and to the people of Pratt county generally, congratulating them upon the auspicious occasion which binds them to the rest of the world with a line of steel. The King-man silver cornet band and the Saratoga cornet band will furnish the music. A match game of base ball between King-man and Saratoga will take place. A full and complete program. Excellent speakers will be present, among whom are Gov. John A. Martin, Thomas Moonlight, Democratic candidate for governor, Hon. Thos. George, Hon. S. R. Peters, "Tim" McCarty and his "Pawnee Braves," Judge Clark and Judge Houk have been invited, and a number of them signified their intention of being present.

WENT TO THE STATE ENCAMPMENT.

The 2nd regiment of the Kansas National Guards passed through this city yesterday to attend the state encampment at Ft. Riley. They had a special train composed of thirteen coaches on the M. K. & T. The companies were from various places in the state, the headquarters of the regiment being at Wichita. Colonel Woodcock was the commanding officer. The Emporia company, E. joined them here with Captain G. W. Meigs in command.—Emporia Republican.

AN HONOR TO THE STATE.

From the Atchison Champion. The corner stone of the new Garfield University, at Wichita, will be laid with appropriate ceremonies October 8th. The handsome structure will be built of brick, with stone trimmings, at a cost of $100,000. It will include sixty rooms, including a chapel capable of seating 3,000 persons. This is the first institution of learning erected by the Christian church in Kansas, and it will be a credit to the denomination and an honor to the state.

MR. PRENTISS' REMARKS AT CHICAGO.

The Chicago Times thus reports Mr. Noble L. Prentiss' remarks at the Chicago anti-saloon Republican caucus: He said in Kansas they had a Republican party and a Democratic party, which kept like a sandbag in a gymnasium—to thump. They also had a third party, a small one, which was spending its time abusing the Republican party, which passed a prohibition law for them just as they wanted it—even when the jails were so full of saloon keepers that their coat tails were sticking out of the windows. There is really but one party in Kansas, and that is the Republican party. This party has made prohibition a success. In the banquet of the saloon nineteen-twentieths of the drunkenness went with it, and the baleful influences of the saloon as a leading place also went along. The present generation of old drinkers may get liquor on the sly under the present law, but the rising generation is growing to detest liquor, and will not want nor get it. The youth are free from temptation. Nobody, added the speaker, need fear for Kansas. She is all right. He commended Kansas' example for the convention to follow.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

The Daily Globe of Emporia, in reviewing the work done by the Republican conventions in the different parts of the state, says the following of Sedgewick county: "The Republicans of Sedgewick county, which now has three members, had the good sense to select the two for re-election who represented that county last year. Hon. Rodolph Hatfield and E. E. Lawrence. The other is A. H. Carpenter, and if we are not mistaken he is a prominent business man at Valley Center. Mr. Hatfield was one of the ablest speakers in the last house, and both he and Mr. Lawrence were regarded as among the best and most industrious members. Mr. Hatfield is certainly an orator of which the booming city of Wichita may be justly proud. If we are right in regard to Mr. Carpenter, this Sedgewick delegation will be a strong one. We may predict this, anyhow, because no people so full of vim and 'git up and go' as those in Sedgewick would send any other than one of their representative men."

There seems so be a strange misunderstanding in some of the curious portions of Kansas. Here is a Wichita paper declaring that Kansas City is in a peck of trouble, that her north-western road is a fizzle. Perhaps the wish is father to the thought. To us it appears probable that the road will be a conspicuous success. As Mr. Newman Erb so brilliantly said to our esteemed contemporary, the Journal, "The road has not been in the hands of men who have changed hands—that's all."—Kansas City Times.

AND IS THAT?

THE ELECTIONS OF 1886.

From the Commonwealth. There is every reason to believe that the Republicans will carry the elections of all the leading northern states this year. But for the separate prohibition vote the Republican majorities in Maine, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Iowa would be so sweeping as to practically bury the Democratic party in those states. But with separate prohibition tickets in the field there is no reason to doubt that the Republicans will carry this year.
