THE ISSUE, SQUARELY.

In this campaign the issue is direct. Both the Republican and Democratic platforms are explicit. There is no dodging or evasion. Col. Moonlight stands squarely on an anti-prohibition platform, and Governor Martin, who in 1882 was pronounced an anti-prohibitionist, is now the zealous advocate of the present law. No one will deny that a large element, possibly more than one-half of the voters of Kansas desire resubmission. There is not one valid reason why the constitutional amendment should not again be submitted to a vote of the people. A large portion of the voters of Kansas demand resubmission, and in no way can there be a final settlement of this question but by again submitting the prohibitory amendment to a vote of the people.—El Dorado Republican.

UNENVIABLE POSINGS.

Who is the Soldier's Friend Moonlight or Martin? Moonlight finding that the platform upon which the Democracy has placed him smelt too loud of whisky for Kansas nostrils, has almost wholly ceased his cry of resubmission and high lico, and is undertaking the difficult feat of posing as the soldier's special friend. With any other man than Col. John A. Martin in the field he might make a greater success of his new role. The people of Kansas in a marked way or observable manner, delight to honor the ex-union soldier, and the people of no state are so delighted with soldiers' reunions. They are held every year, in every section of the state. Last year Governor Martin had for eleven weeks, from two to four appointments every week at soldiers' reunions, and never disappointed the people in a single instance. This season has been so far a repetition of last. Moonlight was invited some three weeks ago to a reunion at Westmoreland, Pottawatomie county. Governor Martin who never in his life violated the proprieties of such an occasion by dragging in party or politics, was promptly on hand and delivered a most acceptable address to everybody. Next day came Moonlight with blarney Kelly, the Democratic negro candidate for auditor. Kelly spoke in the morning, and his rambling talk was wholly of politics. He insulted not only the soldiers, but the memory of Lincoln, just as he did here in Wichita. In fact he makes but the one talk. Colonel Buckner, chaplain of the grand army, who was present, saw Moonlight directly after Kelly's speech and protested against the introduction of politics, and such politics at a soldiers' reunion. Moonlight spoke in the afternoon, and he began his speech by saying that he had not been in the habit of attending meetings or reunions of soldiers for the past fifteen years, and that he hardly knew how to address such an assemblage. After telling one or two anecdotes he opened out by declaring that he was the Democratic candidate for governor of Kansas; that he was more interested in the canvass for the position than in anything else, and that therefore he proposed to talk about the political issues of the day, whereupon he proceeded to deliver a democratic and partisan harangue in which he denounced the Republican party, defended Cleveland's vetoes of the pension bills, and abused the cause of prohibition.

We notice that again two weeks ago he was present at a soldier's reunion at Seneca, where an immense crowd of soldiers had gathered. The speakers announced were Moonlight, Major Morrill, Tim McCarthy and Governor Martin. Surrounded as he was Moonlight did not dare deliver his usual tirade and excused himself from saying anything on the grounds of a very sore throat. Governor Martin, Major Morrill and Tim McCarthy all delivered appropriate addresses. That night, however, Moonlight addressed for an hour and a half a small crowd of Democrats on political topics. His throat most suddenly regained its normal condition when it came to talking to Democrats with nobody around to answer him. He played the same game at a soldier's reunion at Clay Center a few days later, only week before last, declining to speak to an immense crowd in the park in the afternoon on the pretense that he had lost his voice but speaking at night in a Democratic meeting.

At the state reunion at Emporia last week he failed to put in an appearance till the last moment. Twenty thousand people were present the first two days, yet he avoided this great meeting of soldiers as though they had the small pox in camp. He only arrived and spoke at night after the close of the reunion and to a Democratic meeting.

All these meetings were simply called and banked upon the fact that the people who were there for a different purpose might be caught for his purpose. When forced to address the old union guards, defenders and preservers, he simply outraged the proprieties; the other times he but attempted to turn such gatherings into Democratic meetings that he might talk his personal aspirations and his political convictions, if indeed he has any.

The Emporia Globe in referring to the action and attitude of Governor Martin and Col. Moonlight at Emporia, on the occasion referred to, says: "There was no enthusiasm for Moonlight whatever among the soldiers in attendance upon the reunion. The fact is Colonel Moonlight avoided Emporia while the reunion was in session, never putting in an appearance until the afternoon of the last day, when most of the soldiers had gone home. He refused to attend the reunion, although especially invited, and we learn had not the courtesy to even reply to the committee's invitation. He did not seem to desire to attend and make a non-political speech to the veterans of Kansas. He could only come to talk to Democrats after the soldiers had gone. The contempt with which he treated Emporia, the invitation committee and 30,000 soldiers, did not do the Democratic candidate any good in the estimation of the soldiers or anybody else.

How different was the case of Colonel Martin, the Republican candidate. He showed his usual interest in the affairs of the people of Kansas by coming here and mingling with the soldiers and people for three days. He spoke on Wednesday as per announcement, again on Wednesday night, on Thursday afternoon and briefly Thursday night at the Woman's Relief Corps meeting, thus contributing all in his power to make the reunion a success in every way. The soldiers know the conduct of the two men on the occasion, and it will be futile for Democratic papers to attempt to cover up Mr. Moonlight's shortcomings by frothy and false dispatches to Democratic papers. Such attempts to bolster up their waning fortunes simply disgusts the public in general, and will receive the proper rebuke.

Senator Plumb in his speech at Osage City Saturday showed the policy of the Democratic claims to ascendancy which, they claim because they had not paid the southern war claims and only voted 115 pension bills; the right to promotion because they said they would diminish the number of employes and thereby curtail the government expense, when in fact they have increased the number of employes 3,000 men, and the expense last year was $10,000,000 greater than the last year of the Republican rule, and $25,000,000 more than any previous year since 1875.

WANTED, INFORMATION.

To the Editor of the EAGLE. I see in Saturday's EAGLE an editorial headed "The Rule of Anarchists would Destroy Civilization." Would you or some of your readers please inform me what the rule of anarchists means? I must confess that I have never had the opportunity of reading a statement of their aims and objects, only what I see in the EAGLE—"to divide up equally with everybody who might claim a share." This is too indefinite for me to understand, or to be able to read anything concerning them intelligently. Beside, why are they included in your discussions of the labor question? What has anarchy to do with the labor problem, or the labor problem to do with anarchy?

I have been an active operator in the ranks of labor in all its ups and downs for forty-six years, and ought to be able to understand or discuss the situation as any one. But I need information concerning these anarchists, so that I may not get them mixed up with grangers, farmers' alliances, Greenbackers, anti-monopolists, Knights of Labor, trades unions, and every other organization of industry that is endeavoring to obtain a measure of justice.

Thirty years ago the name "abolitionist" was used as a holy terror to frighten the voters and round them up to the polls to vote for the continuation in power of the pro-slavery Democracy.

Their press and their speakers taught the multitude that the aim and object of the "Abolitionists" was to steal niggers, to incite the niggers to massacre the whites, to cut their throats in the night and give their roofs to the flames. The abolitionist was especially determined that a nigger should marry his sister, and he was a fiend incarnate on general principles. The hirings of the slaveocracy swore eternal extermination against the abolitionist. They imprisoned and persecuted the Parkers and Lovejoys, and hanged the Browns. They shot down innocent men for arming themselves in self defence, and arrested and imprisoned honest men for conspiracy and treason. While all this was going on I was at a loss to know where I stood. But when it was revealed to me that the object of those who were termed abolitionists was simply to overthrow the corrupt and arrogant rule of the slave power, to secure justice, and to advance to a higher plane of civilization, I discovered that I, myself, had been an abolitionist all the time. The wrongs and outrages perpetrated upon the people of those times are so vividly impressed upon my memory that I cannot for the life of me surpress a lurking suspicion that the same means are being used to accomplish the same ends. To say the least there is a wonderful similarity in the methods and tactics of the money power of today and of the slave power of thirty years ago. This is why I want to learn what the anarchists want to accomplish.

Wm. Ross.

[One of the cardinal principles of the anarchists, if indeed it is a principle, is opposition to capital, aggregated, incorporated or otherwise. For an instance of the success, progress and standing of nations under such an idea we refer Mr. Ross to Old Mexico, to China and to India previous to British rule. Anarchy means the destruction of corporate and personal enterprise and a mere dead civilization, unprogressive and aimless.—Ed. EAGLE.]

ST. JOHN, KANSAS.

To the Editor of the Eagle.

The county Democracy met in convention Saturday, and placed a full ticket in the field: M. B. Walker for representative, J. Frank Guernsey probate judge, C. H. Higgins county attorney, Charles Campbell district clerk, Mrs. A. B. Wheeler superintendent of public instructions and George W. Vreeland commissioner. The ticket is a strong one, and considering the split in the Republican ranks, stands a good show of election.

The Swartz wing of the republican party under the name of the people's mass convention, also met and nominated a full ticket Saturday last, with Hon. E. Ross Swartz at the head for representative, Gen. J. A. Cooper for probate judge, John W. Rose county attorney, Wm. Dixon county clerk, J. Salmon superintendent of public instruction and S. A. Martena commissioner.

Four tickets now in the field, those above reported, with Prohibition and a straight republican ticket. While the county is clearly republican, yet there is considerable solicitation on the part of the straight republican ticket. At best it is a mixed affair with the odds in favor of Walker the Democratic nominee or Swartz the people's nominee for representative.

Notwithstanding the political "kickings" St. John continues to prosper. Her growth has been unusually rapid for the past few months, having almost doubled her population since March 1, 1886.

THE WAY HUTCHINSON LOOKS AT IT.

From the Hutchinson News. Hutchinson was honored this morning with a visit from the most distinguished railroad magnate this world has produced, viz: Jay Gould, George Gould and A. L. Hopkins. The party came over from St. Louis in Mr. Gould's private car, and was accompanied by Mrs. George Gould, who was making her first visit to Kansas, and the officials of the Wichita & Colorado, including Col. Marsh Murdock, of the EAGLE. The whole party at once took carriages for a drive over the principal streets, and were loud in their praises of the Queen city. Said Mr. Gould: "I am greatly surprised at what I see here. I had heard much of Hutchinson and her wide-awake business men, but I had no idea of the reality. Certainly Hutchinson is destined to make a city. Wichita and Hutchinson will be the two large cities of Western Kansas."

"But are not the two towns too close together?" "No. They will command different territory. We expect to do much for Hutchinson. It is properly located for a wholesaling and manufacturing point."

Said Mrs. George Gould to our reporter: "I am not an expert in manufacturing business, but I know your city is most beautifully and tastefully laid out. Your wide streets and avenues, with long rows of trees bestow a taste that is truly refreshing to a person accustomed to the narrow, dirt-paved streets of our eastern cities. I shall come to Hutchinson again when we have time to pay you a longer visit."

The directors and officials of the Wichita and Colorado had all been here lately save Col. Murdock and A. W. Oliver. These gentlemen were both pleased with the lively appearance of things, and the EAGLE man predicted a population of 20,000 in eighteen months, in fact Marsh ordered some lots be bought for $5 a dozen in '78 put on the market at $2,000 apiece. The distinguished party returned to Wichita.
