FINANCIAL AVERAGES

Philadelphia Americans Lead in Club Fielding and Batting.

Three Nationals Tie in Club Fielding Figures.

SEASON'S PITCHING RECORDS

James and Radolph Pitch Great Ball for Boston.

Cocereham Won One and Lost Three During Season.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 10.—The final official figures on the American and National baseball clubs and players was announced here today, and the dope bugs will now have all winter to feast and make comparisons between their favorite teams and individual players.

In the National league Brooklyn leads in club batting with 269 per cent and New York is second with Philadelphia third in club fielding. Boston, St. Louis and Pittsburgh tied for first honors with New York next on the list.

In the American league Philadelphia leads in club batting with 270 per cent and Detroit is second. Philadelphia also leads in club fielding and New York takes second place.

The pitching records of the National league show that Nelhaus of St. Louis; Hughes, of Boston; and Ritter of New York lead with 1000 per cent. Cocereham, the former Topeka Western league pitcher who finished his first year in big time with the Boston Braves this year won one game and lost three, thus making 250 per cent. Two of the three leaders won one game each and lost none and Hughes won two and lost none. Radolph, who worked against Philadelphia in the world's series Friday night, lost only eight games during the season. Mathewson of New York won 23 and lost 13 during the season.

In the American league two pitchers won one game each and lost none, thus making 1000 per cent. These are Davies of Philadelphia and Cooper of Boston. Bender, who was knocked out of the box by the Boston Braves in Friday's world series game, won one and lost three games during the season. Reynolds, another Topekan with Detroit won 5 and lost 3 with a percentage of 625 figures are as follows:
