M. M. MURDOCK, Editor. FRIDAY MORNING, NOV. 5, 1886.

Correction. In the article from the Kansas City Times upon Kansas journalists and also in the brief mention of it as they appeared in these columns yesterday morning there were some errors.

A rolling stone gathers no moss.—Emporia Globe. And a setting hen never gets fat.—Eldorado Republican. And the watched pot never boils.

Ten thousand people have moved away from Kansas City within the last three years.—John F. Phillips in Congress. It is expected that Dr. Phillips will join the procession of emigrants, since the voters of Kansas City set down on his congressional aspirations Tuesday.

One boy in Springfield, Mass., is so bright that he has got into the newspapers. The brightness consisted in asking his school teacher how far a procession of the Presidents of the United States would reach if they were placed in a row. When she gave it up he answered: "From Washington to Cleveland."

Abram S. Hewitt has been elected mayor of New York, but the vote given Henry George indicates that the socialists and an arch-foe as a political element in the metropolis are not to be despised. It is, of course, conceded that thousands of honest, order-loving workmen voted for him, but by the greater portion of the classes which, if they had the power, would subvert the present order of things. The vote shows that thousands of Republicans who would have voted for Roosevelt if that gentleman and Hewitt had been the only candidates in the field Tuesday cast their ballots for Hewitt in order to more fully assure the defeat of Henry George.

A NEW FORM OF CITY GOVERNMENT. A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat tells of the good results of the present method of local government at Memphis. It will be recalled that a few years since the municipal charter having been surrendered, the city was turned into a "legislative taxing district."

If anything were lacking to convince the doubting Thomases that the free trade vapors adhere to and persistently advocated by certain Democratic leaders, it seems to us that the result of Tuesday's election ought to be sufficient to carry conviction. This being an off year, so to speak, the only issue before the people, in the congressional contests at least, was that of tariff. The fight was made on that issue and the result of the election shows as clearly and unmistakably as any proposition could be demonstrated that the people of the country at large do not mean to have their best and most vital interests jeopardized not to say destroyed by tearing away the safeguards that have been so carefully thrown around American industries at home by wise and beneficent laws, such as have been enacted by the Republican party and for twenty-five years enforced by Republican administrations.

Written for the Eagle. THE ENGINEER'S STORY. "I was running the '25," etc. Pulling the fast express. And all that day my mind was filled With a dread I could not repress.

And I stood with my hand on the throttle. With my eyes on the winding track. Where the shadows threw out their ghost. Seeking to hold me back.

"But I heeded not the warning. On the shining steel we sped; And bathed in a sea of sunshine I saw the bridge ahead.

"Great heaven! the 'draw' was open! And just on the other side, A tiny child of four or five (The bridge-man's babe) I spied.

"He too had seen the peril. Would Love or Duty reign? Would he save his child, or, in duty, Lose her and save the train?

"Well, he never left his post, sir. Though his face was deathly white, And I just had to shut my eyes, sir. To hide that awful sight.

"Poor Jack! before I could stop the train He'd the little one close to his breast. Kissing the eyes, the brow, the lips, So still in the long, last rest.

KANSAS CASES BEFORE THE SUPREME COURT. WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 1. The following cases from Kansas are on the docket of the United States supreme court: 149.—The Kansas Pacific R. R. vs. Benjamin J. Lewis, Jr. 211.—Peter Magler vs. the state of Kansas. 212.—Peter Magler vs. the state of Kansas. 231.—The St. Louis, Ft. Scott & R. R. Co. vs. W. B. Dinsmore, as president of Adams Express Co. 335.—The Union Pacific Railway Co. vs. C. M. Dycha. 484.—Franklin C. Smith vs. the Board of County Commissioners of Bourbon County, Kansas, et al. 512.—The Missouri Pacific Railway Co. vs. Patrick Mackey. 522.—John Branscomb, et al. vs. John W. Wood. 713.—The Union Pacific Railway Co. vs. Maria W. McAlpine, et al. 719.—The Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas R. R. Co. vs. Benjamin Harris Brewster, attorney of the United States. 839.—The United States vs. Martha Insley, et al. 879.—George B. Halling, et al. vs. the Kaw Valley Railway and Improvement Co. 879.—The Board of County Commissioners of Labette County, et al. vs. the United States ex. rel., C. F. Moulton. 881.—Mose R. Crow vs. the Township of Oxford, Sumner county, Kansas. 889.—The Indianapolis Rolling Mill Co. vs. the St. Louis, Ft. Scott & Wichita R. R. Co.

A REFORMED SOUTHERN STATE. You take old Georgia, I'm proud of her. If anybody asks you where I live, you tell them I live in Georgia. Do you hear? I am proud of that. Our governor is a constitutional tottler; he won't touch it in any shape or form. He is a deacon in the Baptist church, and loves God and keeps his commandments. The chief justice of our state will pray all night with a peep or poor sinner that is trying to find God. Our United States senators are members of the church of Jesus Christ, and A. H. Colquit, the United States senator, is the grandest prohibition worker in America today. And I want to tell you from the top down to the bottom, old Georgia is not only a prohibition state, but she is living on the plan of the ten commandments. We've got decent people in authority in that state. [Applause.] A voice, "Democrats, too, ain't they?" Well, they were until they got religion. [Tremendous applause and laughter.]—Sam Jones.

DESTRUCTIVE PRAIRIE FIRE. Hutchinson News. Again Sunday, a very destructive prairie fire visited the Valley and Little River townships. The fire caught from the locomotive on a west bound freight train, and the wind, blowing almost a gale at the time, carried it northward with almost the speed of a train. The dry, dead grass furnished the best of material for fuel. The fire, as it passed over the prairie and sand hills, left only a blackened and smoking waste behind, with occasionally a house or out building. All else was destroyed by the fierce flames, and in several instances it was with the greatest difficulty that stock could be driven to plowed ground or other places of safety. The farmers in the route of the fire and the vicinity, turned out en masse, and extinguished the fire, but before about six hundred tons of hay, besides other feed and implements that were in the track of the fire had been destroyed.

THERE WILL BE HELL ENOUGH. Hutchinson News. One of the silliest things we have read is that of a minister of the gospel trying to describe what hell really is. Some insist upon a real hell—a lake of fire and brimstone—while others maintain that the punishment of hell will be the eternal sting of guilty conscience. It is the veriest folly in any one trying to paint hell in his true colors. We think there would be more good sense displayed in trying to avoid hell. We think and every man has his idea of both hell and heaven that hell is hell, and a place that we have not the least desire to know anything about, either in location, surroundings, buildings, inmates, or management. We only hope we may so measure our acts in this life that when summoned hence our next will take another and very different and far happier route.

KANSAS KINKS. The Central Kansas College, of Great Bend, opened on the 29th of September, and is in successful operation. The Freedlancers of Newton, Harvey county, have organized a society to conduct lectures during the winter. There are 610 prisoners confined in the Kansas penitentiary. Of this number fifty-six are sentenced to be hung. The new town of Horton is forty-one miles from St. Joe and twenty-three miles from Hutchinson. The Indian territory is the great hunting ground for the people of Kansas who live along the border. Lincoln County Clerk: Another sad affair occurred here. Mr. Cole, living south of town, shot his brother, a boy of 15, while fooling with a gun.

Some day next week the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe will bring 5,999 cattle to Atchison from Emporia, on their way to Tarkio, Mo., where they will be fed this winter. McPherson county raised more bushels of wheat in 1884 than the entire crop of the state in 1870, and more than the entire crop ten years ago west of the sixth principal meridian. A little girl baby was found dead in a covert in Atchison in a perfectly nude state, and to all appearances had been thrown there while alive. No clue to the inhuman mother. Fargo Springs, the metropolis as well as the county seat of Seward county, is enjoying a splendid trade and growing right along. It is a supply point for all that vast scope of country known as "No Man's Land."

A Parsons paper says: The city engineer says that there is urgent need for several public improvements in this city before the winter sets in, but there is no money in the treasury for that purpose. The hallo-way spirits, boys and girls, committed many outrages on property at Ottawa. They will be arrested and given a lesson in the propiety of life. Atchison also suffered from the vandalism of a similar character. The Atchison Patriot remarks that there is some talk of changing the name of Commercial street to that of Prohibition street, which would be very appropriate, as the condition of the street is caused by the revenue being cut off by the prohibitionists. The Atchison Globe says: The Woodstock Saw is the latest Kansas publication. The names of Kansas newspapers are becoming as ridiculous as some of the Kansas stories concerning how often times a train loaded with a crop of Kansas corn would belt the earth. The A. T. & S. F. has offered Summer county fifty cents on the dollar for their $172,000 stock in the old Cowley, Sumner & Ft. Smith railroad. This offer has been made since the county commenced suit to set aside the lease of the road.
