Work Gang For Rock Island Extension Landed at Liberal.

Trainload of Men, Teams and Building Material.

DIRT WILL SOON FLY.

Lawrence Contractor's Outfit on Scene to Begin Work.

Chief Engineer Hedged While Outfit Was Passing Topeka.

The proposed extension of the Rock Island will be a reality in a few months, notwithstanding the fact that officials hem and haw every time they are asked about it.

Chief Engineer Dauchy was here a few days ago. He said three different surveys had been made, none of which had et been decided upon. He said he had no doubt the extension would be built, with the air of a man who won't believe a dollar is a dollar till he has it in his pocket.

And while Mr. Dauchy was talking a big shipment of men, mules and material for building the road was passing through Topeka. This outfit landed in Liberal last night. It is the working force of the Stubbs Contracting company, of Lawrence, which was given a contract for a long stretch of road. They are not there to dig snowbalis, but from their force appear to be going about railroad grading in a business-like manner. Dirt flies in a few days.

PIONEER TELEGRAPHER.

Col. L. F. Shelden, Who Retires From Union Pacific Jan. 1.

Col. L. F. Shelden, who will retire as assistant superintendent of telegraph of the Union Pacific on January 1, is a pioneer in the field of railroad telegraphy. He was the first operator to work a key west of the Mississippi and he established an office in Kansas City when that city boasted by three stores. During the civil war he had charge of the government telegraph lines on the Atlantic coast, and for his services was brevetted lieutenant colonel. Later he was associated with Lincoln, McClellan, Burnsides and Banks in the management of the Illinois Central.

Colonel Shelden is now 68 years of age. For the past eighteen years he has been with the Gould system, and for many years had headquarters in Sedalia in charge of the telegraph work on the western lines of the Missouri Pacific. During the time between the end of his government service and his entrance in the employ of the Gould line Colonel Shelden was identified with a number of railroad and commercial enterprises.

SANTA FE TRACK ELEVATION.

Company in a Big Chicago Improvement Project to Cost $2,500,000.

Track elevation on a big scale along the south branch of the river, from Eighteenth street to the Illinois and Michigan canal, near Ashland avenue, will be bekun early in the spring on the lines of the Chicago & Alton, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe and the Chicago, Madison & Northern roads, says the Chicago Record. The entire cost of the enterprise, which is to be conducted jointly by a commission of the three companies, will be about $2,500,000.

The work will require a period of about two years. Contracts for the iron and steel work for subways and bridges along the route were let last week to the American Bridge company, and early next month bids will be opped for the concrete and masonry work.

The city council ordered the tracks elevated in 1897. After much delay the roads decided to co-operate and recently compicted plans and specifications.

The plans include twenty bridges and subways. One of the bridges (that over the river) is to be of the bascule type. In constructing the subways under the street crossings the failures of other roads will be guarded against. Over the steel beams will be laid watertight creosoted planking, making the subway free from leaks, while over this is to be spread ballast, which is intended to deaden the rumble and roar of the trains.

Scalpers and Country Editors.

It is said that ticket scalpers have turned their attention to editors of small papers throughout the country, and are soliciting editorial transportation at a good price. As a result railroads have ordered conductors to scrutinize carefully all editorial transportation and make certain that it is presented by the person to whom it was originally issued.

THE ONE SURE WAY

To Cure Every Form of Piles.

The only sure way to cure every form of piles, is to use a remedy like the Pyramid Pile Cure, which is applied directly to the parts affected, and its wonderful healing effects are apparant from the first application because its medicinal properties are rapidly absorbed right where needed, by the delicate tissues and sensitive membranes of the rectum. The cure is natural and easy and almost before the patient is aware of it, every trace of piles has left him.

This is one reason why the Pyramid Pile Cure has been so uniformly successful.

It is in suppository form, applied at night directly to the diseased parts, where it is most needed and not by the round about way of the stomach nor the harsh, barbarous method of surgical operation.

Direct applications to the seat of disease is the only common sense cure, and this is fully accomplished by the Pyramid Pile Cure.

If the voluntary testimony of thousands is worth anything then no sufferer should delay in giving this splendid remedy at least a trial as it costs but 50 cents at any drug store, and is guaranteed absolutely safe and free from opiates or cocaine so commonly found in so called pile cures.

Nearly every druggist has some favorite pile cure on which he can make a larger profit than he can on the Pyramid and often-times to substitute, but when it is remembered that the Pyramid Pile Cure is the only remedy for piles that has a national reputation and is sold by every druggist in the United States and Canada, it means something; it means that no remedy could do this unless it possessed positive unmistakable merit.

The Pyramid Pile Cure has cured thousands of sufferers from the different forms of the disease, whether itching, bleeding or protruding piles.

CHRISTMAS CANTATA.

English Lutheran Sunday School Gives a Pleasant Entertainment.

Members of the English Lutheran Sunday school, to the number of seventy, gave a very pretty cantata entitled "Santa Claus Charm" last evening. The house was crowded, with the aisles filled with extra seats. The cantata consisted of solos, choruses, a drill and song by sixteen boys in uniform with swords, a solo by the Fairy Queen and a chorus by ten winged fairies, a bedtime song-prayer, a hoop drill and chorus of sixteen girls, sleighing songs and a genuine Santa Claus. The platform was enlarged to make room for the drills and both the boys and the girls went through their intricate movements without a hitch of any kind. Unable to accommodate their friends in the church, the school will repeat the cantata on Friday evening of this week.

U. S. CONSUL A SUICIDE.

Slashes His Throat and Wrists With a Knife.

Philadelphia, Dec. 26.—W. B. Irvine Shaw, who had been filling the position of United States consul at Barranquilla, Colombia, and who was recently appointed consul general to Singapore, committed suicide here today. He opened a femoral artery and slashed his thoat and wrists with a knife. Ill health is supposed to have affected his mind.

For three years he filled attended to his duties as consul at Barranquilla while the revolution shook the republic. Fever and his duties undermined his health, and he asked for and obtained leave of absence early last August. His dislike for the old post increased and he sought another appointment, and was successful, being named consul general to Singapore. After receiving the appointment he decided to return to Barranquilla to settle his affairs. He left the home of his sister in Germantown, near here, where he had been staying, two weeks ago, and sailed from New York on the steamer Alfa That was the last heard of him until he was found dead today

Mr. Shaw was 38 years old and a native of Clearfield county, Pennsylvania. He is survived by a widow and two sons.

TALKS ON PRINCIPLES.

Congressman Lentz of Ohio Answers Cleveland About Reorganization.

Columbus, O., Dec. 26.—Congressman John J. Lentz, in a speech before the Jefferson-Jackson-Lincoln league, answered Grover Cleveland and others who urge a reorganization of the Democratic party. On this point Mr. Lentz said: "Mr. Cleveland and others who are talking and writing about getting back to the first principles would do well if they would specify what is the first of the first principles.

"We have heard enough of these glittering generalities. If these men want to get back to first principles they should go back to the days of Jefferson and Jackson. Andrew Jackson never stabbed a Democrat in the back.

"If we are to restore the first principles it must be done by the plain people in our rural districts and great cities, for it will never be done by political bosses and political brokers of our large cities, where able lawyers are working in collusion with political bosses to betray honest people into traps of trusts."

The league, which numbers in its membership Democrats from nearly every county in the state, passed a resolution indorsing the sentiment expressed by Congressman Lentz.

Attacked by Yaquis.

El Paso, Dec. 26.—Mexican troops in Sonora, Mexico, were recently attacked by a band of Yaqui Indians. Four officers and about 20 men were killed outright, and Col. Francisco Peinado, one of the leading officers of the army, was shot through the stomach and seriously wounded. C. V. Light, of Guaymas, who was there when the report was made to General Torres, gave the news out here. He says the soldiers were crossing the country and were fired on from ambush near Lamisa, about 30 mies from General Torres' headquarters. The severe press censorship has kept the news from the public, but he says he had no chance to learn exactly how many soldiers were killed. Colonel Peinado, the wounded officer, is one of the most popular officers in the army.

IN HOTEL CORRIDORS.

"There are a great many stories happening every campaign which will not do for publication," said a politician at the Copeland the other night, "and almost any man who has had any experience in politics can tell them to you until you would go to sleep. Of course a lot of them will be from hearsay and a lot of them will be the genuine artclie, with the name blown in the bottle and the signature on the strip holding down the cork, but they are all good, as political stories go. I will tell you one that you may publish without violating any confidence and without hurting anyone. I was in Strong City several years ago when the state campaign was on. Every politician in the state and a lot of other people know that Strong City is the home of the Irish; it is Ireland in America. When a man has seen old Barney Carlin and Richard Martin he does not need to be told that a piece of the Emerald Isle has broken away and has drifted over land and sea until it struck Chase county, Kansas. The incident that I have in mind is when a great Republican rally was held in Strong and the Irish were out in force. The opera house was crowded the night of the rally, for a prominent man, one who is now a United States official, was to address the meeting. The stage was crowded with the local leaders and men of influence, who sat around in a semi-circle. In the front of the stage was a table with a lamp and a pitcher of water and a man who had published a book we did not have gas in Strong City in those days, and, praise goodness, we have no gas there now, for I fear that a number of the residents would blow out the gas. The night I speak of the house was crowded and the speaker was very much interested in his talk. Things were going along all right and the audience was worked up to the proper pitch when the oil in the lamp gave out. Mat McDonald was sitting on the stage with the other prominent men and he at once arose, took the glass which was sitting by the pitcher and went to the grocery store close by. He filled the glass and carried it back to the opera house, where he filled the lamp and then carefully set the glass by the side of the pitcher. A few minutes after this had been done the orator wanted a drink of water, so he filled the glass from the pitcher and took a liberal swallow. He paused for a moment after gulping the water and then spat. "Who in the blankety blanked blank put coal oil in that glass?" he roared, as he looked at the members of the cause sitting in the semi-circle behind him. No one answered him, but he was unable to continue his address. It required three pints of the best whisky in Strong City to take the taste of the coal oil out of the mouth of the orator. I do not believe there is another place in the United States where they attempted to stop the mouth of a Republican orator by throwing trust product directly in his face."

They were talking of the effect made upon the sales of books by the authors of the books taking the lecture field, when one of the members of the group said: "I have heard several authors lecture or talk or make political speeches and my opinion is that, as a rule, they do not help the sale of their books. I make one exception to this, and that is Opie Read. After his talks through Kansas this last campaign his books sold like hot cakes; in fact, a number of dealers were unable to keep up with the demand. Every book that he had written was demanded at the news stands and a great many dealers put out entire tables containing nothing but works by Opie Read. It was just the reverse when W. D. Howells lectured in Kansas a few years ago, where he lectured before the State Normal, half the audience went to sleep and there was no rush for his books the next day. Those who wanted a narcotic still pinned their faith to opium and morphine and Howells did not cut in on the sales at the drug store—neither did he increase the sales of his books in that town. Bill Nye was the greatest frost in the world when it came to advancing the sale of his books. He never failed to injure his own business by his lectures. James Whitcomb Riley is another exception. His recitations of his writings have never failed to increase the sales, and when he is billed for a town the book sellers always lay in a good supply of his works. Mark Twain did not help increase the amount of his check from his publishers and neither did R. J. Burdette. They were both frosts from the booksellers' standpoint. The Rev. C. M. Sheldon is supposed to be creating a demand for his books by his sermons in the east, but I doubt very much if that is the case. It is far more likely that the people who go to hear him have read his books and will be disappointed when they hear him. That is the rule, and the exceptions are very rare. It might be true that a man who had published a book which no one had ever heard of would increase the sales, for in that case he could not decrease them. This same rule holds good in regard to books which have been made dramatic. "Quo Vadis" was played here the other night and the booksellers will tell you that there was not a volume sold on account of the play being presented. If a person sees the play before reading the book, the book will seem insipid, and if the book has been read before the play is attended the person who sees the play will not recommend the book."

"There are no people on the face of the earth who are as progressive as the American people," said a man in the lobby of the National last night. "This has been demonstrated so many times that it is useless to cite examples, but I saw an example which brought the fact forcibly to my mind a few nights ago. I was on the train coming from St. Joseph when I overheard the conversation between two men who were sitting on the seat directly in front of me. They were talking of the abduction of the Cudahy boy. One of the men said he had an idea, and proceeded to explain it to the other. He had figured it out that it would be a paying business to insure the rich men against the abduction of their children. His scheme was something like this: When a rich man had a child the agent would approach him and make the following proposition: For $100 the child would be insured against abduction for one year. If the child was abducted the company would agree to refund the child or $20,000. The company was to have twenty detectives who would hunt up the children after they had been stolen and the company was to have ten days to restore the stolen child. He seemed to think it would be a success, as it is well known that rich men think a great deal of money, and that Mr. Cudahy has set the price at $25,000 for a good, well developed boy. If rich men could make a sure thing of raising a boy by paying $100 per year they would be sure to drop into the scheme. There are at least 10,000 rich men in the country who have children whom it would pay to abduct and if 50 per cent of them could be persuaded to go into the scheme the business would be a success. He had a lot of details which I cannot remember, but that was the gist of his scheme and I don't see why it would not work. If business gets dull the organization could abduct a few children on its own account, which would make the rich men come in at a rapid rate. There are all kinds of possibilities in the scheme."

SHOT ALL HE SAW.

A Drunken Indian Terrorizes Town of Eufaula.

Muskogee, I. T., Dec. 26.—John Tiger, a full-blood Indian, a ferryman on the Arkansas river, two miles south of Eufaula, went to Eufaula with his wife yesterday afternoon and while intoxicated met L. B. Roper and threatened to kill him. Roper immediately struck Tiger with a board, no words passing between them. Tiger went to his buggy, got a Winchester, and came back to kill Roper, but failed to find him on his return. Enraged he proceeded to shoot every one he saw, shooting Jesse Beck through the hips and killing him; shooting and killing Dave Porter, a nephew of C. F. Porter, and a mover named Johnson on his way to Missouri in a covered wagon with his family. Dad Taylor, aged 18, a boy, was shot through the shoulder and is not expected to live. Tiger immediately jumped on a horse and tried to escape, but was pursued. Tiger was chased three miles, when he jumped off his horse, got behind a tree and began shooting. Deputy Marshal Johnson, who returned the fire, struck Tiger in the arm. The murderer surrendered and was brought to Eufaula. Tiger's arm will have to be amputated. Great indignation prevails over the free sale of liquors and firearms. J. Smith, who lives ten miles south of Checotah, became involved in a quarrel with Mr. Thompson over the shooting at Eufaula and began shooting, Thompson being mortally wounded.

A young man named Joseph Elliott calmly walked into the house after the attempted wreck and took lodgings; he was arrested in the morning in his room for the offense. GOVERNOR OF OREGON USES PE-RU-NA FOR COLDS IN HIS FAMILY AND GRIP.

CAPITOL BUILDING, SALEM, OREGON.

A Letter From the Executive Office of Oregon.

The governor of Oregon is an ardent admirer of Pe-ru-na. He keeps it continually in the house. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he says:

STATE OF OREGON,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
SALEM, May 9, 1898.

The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Dear Sirs—I have had occasion to use your Pe-ru-na medicine in my family for colds, and it proved to be an excellent remedy. I have not had occasion to use it for other ailments.

Yours very truly, W. M. Lord.

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Pe-ru-na is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Pe-ru-na not only cures catarrh, but prevents. Every household should be supplied with this great remedy for coughs, colds and so forth.

It will be noticed that the governor says he has not had occasion to use Pe-ru-na for other ailments. The reason for this is, most other ailments begin with a cold. Using Pe-ru-na to promptly cure colds, he protects his family against other ailments. This is exactly what every other family in the United States should do. Keep Pe-ru-na in the house. Use it for coughs, colds, la grippe and other climatic affections of winter, and there will be no other ailments in the house. Such families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book, entitled "Winter Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Aftermath.

"So comes a reckoning when the banquet's o'er"

The spirit of generosity, and too frequantly of extravagance as well, seems to prevail in every heart during the holiday season, and it leads many a careful and provident housewife into prodigalities, that at other times would meet her grave disapproval. In many homes, temperance in eating is regarded with the strictest conformity all through the year with this one notable exception. Christmas viands must be, by custom's approbation, as rich as the purse can afford; and while good judgment may govern the quantity of materials purchased for the feast, we often lose sight of the fact that a good thing may go a long way and a surfeit of unaccustomed riches is sure to bring retribution in the clogged appetite that has a fine distaste for that which it has feasted upon.

HELPFUL RESOURCES.

The consequence of overindulgence falls not alone upon the sinner whose "repentance is the weight of undigested meals ate yesterday." But the housemother finds the difficulties of her calling as purveyor increased a hundredfold, and she must exercise her ingenuity with redoubled vigor in order to tone up the flagging appetites and at the same time use up the familiar fragments of the Christmas feast—the various odds and ends which bring dismay to many a housewife as she surveys the wreckage, may be turned to good account if, while the appetite of the family is in this state of protest, she manipulate them in such a manner as will not suggest too plainly their late indulgence in

"Too much turkey, too much pie,
Too much plum puddin'; that's why."

as the small man said when asked why he did not join the Christmas games. The week between Christmas and New Year should be one of partial fasting, even if nature did not so plainly demand it.

RICHAUFFE OF TURKEY.

Heat in a double boiler one cupful of turkey gravy or stock. When hot, lay in the meat cut into small pieces. While it is heating rub together to a smooth paste two tablespoonfuls of butter, the yolks of two hard boiled eggs, one-half a teaspoonful of made mustard, half a teaspoonful of salt and a pinch of cayenne. Add enough of the hot gravy or stock to dilute this paste to thickness of cream, then add to the meat and rest of stock; stir and cook for five minutes. Add two tablespoonfuls of sherry just before taking from the fire, if you use wine.

CHICKEN OR TURKEY CHARTREUSE.

Chop fine any bits of fowl or turkey that cannot be used otherwise. If you have two cupfuls of the meat, boil a cup of rice, plain. Line a buttered mould with this, making a wall about half an inch thick, reserving enough to cover top when filled. Add to the meat one tablespoonful finely chopped parsley, one tablespoonful onion juice, salt and pepper to taste, two eggs slightly beaten and enough thick white sauce or cold stewed tomatoes to moisten. Put this mixture in center of the mould and cover it with remainder of the rice. Cover the mould tightly and steam for three-quarters of an hour. Serve with tomato or yellow sauce poured around base of mould.

CURRY OF VEGETABLES.

Any cold vegetables, such as sweet potatoes, peas, beans, turnips, carrots, cauliflower, onions and celery may be used together. Slice the larger vegetables with an apple and put all into a saucepan with a little butter or oil; sprinkle a little curry powder over them and fry a delicate brown. Then add enough milk or broth to just cover and simmer very gently until vegetables have absorbed the flavor of the curry and nearly all the liquid. A little curry may be stirred into the milk if you like it hot. Serve with plain boiled rice in separate dish.

VEGETABLE CUTLETS.

Mrs. J. P. Andrews writes: Will you kindly give recipe for orange salad?

ORANGE SALAD—Have three large, sour oranges thoroughly chilled; peel and cut them into thin slices or small cubes. Mix a tablespoonful each of tarragon vinegar, chevril and bruised tarragon leaves, olive oil and brandy. Pour this over the oranges and let stand on ice for half an hour. Serve on a bed of pepper-grass. This salad is served with game. You can use plain French dressing if you prefer.

For a sweet orange salad use sweet oranges and slice them thin; sprinkle each layer alternately with finely chopped nuts and shredded cocoanut, sprinkle with powdered sugar. Do not let this salad stand or the oranges will become bitter.

Oysters are served in puff paste shells, bouchee cases and croustades. Peas in bouchee cases or croustades. You can buy the puff paste shells if you do not want the trouble and expense of making them. The croustades are newer and are dainty, inexpensive and no trouble to prepare.

CROUSTADES—Cut bread into slices two inches thick, remove crust and trim into square, diamond and round shapes. Cut out crumb carefully from the center, leaving a wall about one-quarter inch thick. Brush inside and out with melted butter and toast a pretty brown in the oven. Cut and trim these slices and brown in the same way for the lids. Keep them hot until ready to serve. The lids may be tied on with bebe ribbon if you desire to carry out color scheme in decoration.
