OUR POLICY:

To support such measures as are unquestionably for the good of Mason County as an entire community, rather than such propositions as are in favor of the individual interest, or of one section against another.

DEER IN KENTUCKY

Frederick Haskin gave in a recent issue of a Louisville paper a description of the success attending the propagation of deer in portions of Alaska, where the government placed a herd a few years ago, and by protection has greatly multiplied the original number, so that the flesh is utilized instead of other meat in that region.

It is perhaps not so well known that the Kentucky Game and fish commission is conducting a similar experiment in this state. The spot chosen is a wild section between the Cumberland and Tennessee rivers, in a section locally known as "The Coalings."

From a herd of a dozen or more placed there a few years ago it is now said to have increased many fold. There is a wide range for them to run on, and the location of the rivers prevents them straying far.

It is said among the old inhabitants that this section was formerly a famous hunting ground, even back in the days of the Indians, and if proper protection is given a few more years will bring back some of its former reputation.—Owensboro Messenger.

There is of course nothing to prevent the hysterical gentlemen who feel that unless other people's sons are sent from America to fight for the oppressed populations of Asia Minor Uncle Sam will be disgraced, from going into the trenches themselves in some European uniform in that righteous cause, but it seems altogether probable that their conscientious compunctions will not carry them to that length.—National Republican.

AMEN!

President Harding states that so long as he is president he will not pardon "any criminal who was guilty of preaching destruction of the government by force."

Amen to that! Loyal Americans who love this country, who believe in it and have faith in its destiny, will approve that decision. Only the fool in his folly frees a madman who that madman is slandering threats and preaching murder. The law of self-preservation applies to a nation as well as to the individual!

OPINIONS DIFFER ON BONUS

The American Legion has reaffirmed its stand for the soldiers' bonus. The resolution was unanimously adopted by the delegates at the convention in New Orleans. That does not mean, however, that all ex-service men are for the bonus. Already an organization has been formed among them for the express purpose of opposing any grant from the Federal government, and many thousands of veterans who take no active part either for or against the bonus are emphatic in their opposition.

FAIR CHANCE FOR RAILROADS

Over-regulation is the cause ascribed by Secretary Hoover for the car shortage from which the country is now suffering. He declares that the railroads have been so hampered by restrictive legislation in the last twenty years that they find it difficult to finance the cost of new equipment necessary to keep pace with the increasing industrial needs of the country.

HARDING'S GREATEST ACCOMPLISHMENT.

Not in modern times has there developed a stronger influence for world peace than the naval limitations treaty of the Washington armaments conference. Italy and France have thus far failed to ratify it, and have held up the reforms that it provides.

THIS LITTLE PIG GOES TO MARKET

The demand for pig iron and for steel have always been recognized as a sure indication of business conditions. At the end of August, 1922, the United States Steel Company had on its books unfilled orders to the amount of 5,950,000 tons as compared with 4,531,000 tons on the same date last year, an increase of 33 per cent.

CANCELLATION NOT FAVORED

There is yet to be found in the Harding Administration a single official advocating cancellation of the allied debts to the United States. The President's advisers and assistants are 100 per cent. American free from the internationalist taint that affected so many of their predecessors in office.

COMMENT

Oil stock markets were had much smoother sailing in the past few days than they have had for some time. The market was quite a bit more active, and there was a noticeable increase in the price of oil.

Speaking of oil stock: We understand some of the bloated oil stock holders hereabouts have been hearing something about their holdings this week. The information was imparted by the sheriffs.

The ghosts certainly played havoc in some parts of town last night. If there was a box or barrel left standing in its place, it was because the boys didn't see it.

There don't seem to be anything in the Congressional race to stir up even the least bit of interest in the fight. From present indications it don't look like it will be hardly worth while to open the polling places on election day.

Maysville might have won the championship of the Bluegrass League in baseball but it don't look like we are even going to qualify in the also-ran class at football.

The great bulk of city taxes have now been paid into the City Treasury and City Council now has the pleasant job of making the money stretch out over the budget it adopted several months ago.

One may now feel safe in drinking milk for the great majority of the dairymen delivering milk to Maysville have complied with the City Ordinance and have had their herds tested for tuberculosis. Those who have not had their herds tested and who persist in delivering milk to the city without city license should be promptly arrested and punished.

OCTOBER IS BEST MONTH TO PICK BREEDING HENS.

Lexington, Ky. — Within the next four or five weeks every farmer in Kentucky should select and mark the best hens in his poultry flock in order that these birds may be used in special breeding pens next spring, according to J. R. Smyth, poultry extension specialist of the College of Agriculture.

of experienced poultry breeders in the state have found that the egg production no frost any flock can be increased by selecting the highest producing birds in the flock and mating them with desirable males for the production of hatching eggs.

October is perhaps the best month for selecting such a pen since it is possible to pick out the high producing hens at that time of the year. Farmers who wait until spring to pick out their breeding hens will find that they are unable to distinguish easily between the heavy layers and those that produce only a small number of eggs during the year.

Only those hens that are not moulting or those that have just started should be selected when the breeding pens are being picked in October. The yellow color also should be faded from the shanks and beaks of birds belonging to yellow-shanked breeds.
