Somewhere—in France or in a cantonment—her dear one is serving for her—and for you and me. She is making a sacrifice—and she's serving, too. She enrolled in the Red Cross Christmas Membership Drive and is proud of the service flag that shows it. You—Will you, can you, do less than serve with her? Display the Red Cross service flag!

Bravery of a Soldier Boy

"Private Peat" a veteran of the European war, in an address at Lexington, told how he woke, wounded in a Red Cross camp. Cries were heard, he said, and he thought he was in Germany. He did find, he declared, that the man screaming, was a "fat German with a wounded arm."

"Across the room," he pictured, a little Cockney boy, a drummer not more than 16 years old, seated on a chair. His leg was cut off, his face gashed, his arm fallen at his side. In his mouth was a cigarette and he was cracking a joke. That shows the difference between the Ally and the Hun. The doctor came in. He went first to the German. That shows the way our Red Cross treats our enemy. The German, crying, received attention. When the doctor finished the drummer boy had fallen in his chair and was dead."

Open Shops Upheld.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Decisions defining in general terms the rights of both organized labor and the employer were rendered today by the Supreme Court. While the right of workmen to organize for lawful purposes was reaffirmed, the court held that employers legally may operate their plants as "open shops" and prevent conspiracies to bring their non-union employes into labor organizations.

England is Doing her Share.

The persistent attacks of the Germans and anti-English Irish among us on Great Britain since the beginning of the war have also been directed toward making France, Canada, the United States, and every one else possible dissatisfied with Great Britain's share in the war.

The facts do not substantiate this charge.

Great Britain has 45,000,000 population, in contrast with 39,000,000 for France, 36,000,000 for Italy, 175,000,000 for Russia and somewhat more than 100,000,000 for us.

This 44,000,000 has furnished a far larger proportion of the naval strength and shipping than any other nation, and has done this from the beginning of the war. This has also necessitated bearing most of the odium attached to the blockade which was for the general benefit of all the Allies as well as England.

From the beginning, also they have furnished more money than any other nation.

In the first two years of the war they did not furnish as many men as either France or Russia, but at present the British army in France is about as large as the French. The British have, besides an army in Egypt, another as Saloniki (as have also the French) and another in Mesopotamia. Moreover, the British Isles have furnished as many men in proportion and suffered as great losses as any of their colonies, besides putting forth an extraordinary industrial effort.—The World's Work.
