NIGHT RIDERS MAY GIVE BOND

Special Agreement Made Providing For Their Release From Jail—Trials 1 n. November Term.

LIST INCLUDES EIGHT SENTENCED TO DEATH

Union City, Tenn., Sept. 15.—By special agreement between Attorney General S. C. Caldwell and counsel representing 100 men under indictment in Obion county for night riding, the cases will be tried at the special term of court the second Monday in November. The agreement permits the accused to make a bond of $5,000 each. The list includes eight whose death sentences for the alleged murder of Captain Rankin were recently reversed by the Supreme Court.

OWNERS OF BANK STOCK HARD HIT

Owensboro Men Must Give Up Homes to Satisfy Creditors Claims.

Owensboro, Ky., Sept. 15.—According to a decision handed down by Supreme Judge Walter Evans, the stockholders of the bankrupt Owensboro Bank & Trust Company will have to put up twice the amount of their capital stock and reimburse depositors in full. The capital stock was $1,000,000 and was squandered by James Parish, the bank president. The stockholders will many of them be bankrupted by the decision of the court, which is based on a Kentucky statute making stockholders liable for twice the par value of their stock. Among the hardest hit of the stockholders will be E. Rice, the wealthy tobacco manufacturer, of Louisville. He will have to produce about $100,000. Large blocks of the stock were held locally. Several prominent men of Owensboro and surrounding country will have to sell their homes and be reduced to poverty because of the decision protecting the depositors. On the other hand, many of the smaller depositors who had put a life's savings in the bank, will be overjoyed to have their money returned to them.

J. R. Summers Hurt.
Hon. J. R. Summers, a prominent farmer of Livingston county, a morchant of Salem and the former, honored Representative of Livingston and Crittenden counties, was rather seriously hurt last Saturday in some yet, unaccountable way, while on his way from his farm to his store at Salem. When he arrived at Salem, it plain to see that he was hurt, but how, they could not tell nor could he enlighten them and up to Monday his mind was yet a blank as to how the accident occurred. It is generally believed he was thrown by his mule. The first news to shock his many friends at Marion, was that he had received a severe blow on the head and this foul play was possible.

A Fine Entertainment Coming.

Every one remembers the "Singin Skule Begimment" which has been such a big success here twice, and now comes the good news, that the ladies of the M. E. Church have a date for Mr. Willard's new entertainment entitled "Eth'opia," a play of the sunny South, which will be produced in Evansville for two nights just prior to its coming here. The date for Marion will be October 19th. A large cast of local talent will take part and the conductor, the same as will put it on at Evansville, will be sent here, and he will take one of the leading comedy parts. "Eth'opia," like the "Singin Skule Begimment," is brim full of fun and contains lots of very pretty music, and though this is its first season, it is now almost impossible to get a date, as all of the dates are taken until after the holidays. Announcements will be made in due time and Marion folks may prepare to have another "good laff."

Fire at Sturgis.

About two o'clock Sunday morning the Hotel Sturgis was discovered to be on fire, and despite the efforts of the brave bucket brigade, was, in a very short time, reduced to ashes. The building was an old landmark, being the first house to be erected by the Cumberland Iron & Land Company, an organization still in existence and having proven, barring the West Kentucky Coal Company, the best friend the good town of Sturgis ever had. Col. Chas. Funk was the clever manager of the noted old hostelry when it burned, but the house was under a lease to A. L. Grady, who, it is claimed, had twelve thousand dollars on the furnishings and fixtures, while Mrs. Skinner, only had one thousand dollars on the house.

Death of Mildred Carleton.

Mildred Loraine, little two-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Carleton, of Joplin, Mo., died Sunday night, Sept. 12th, at their home on 1931, Va. Avenue, with spinal trouble. Their many friends showed their sympathy with a lovely floral offering. The pall-bearers consisted of four young ladies of Mr. Carleton's Sunday School class. Their many friends accompanied them to the Fair View cemetery where she was laid to rest. Mr. and Mrs. Carleton were former residents of Marion and have many friends who sympathize with them in their bereavement. Mrs. Carleton is a daughter of Dr. T. H. Cositt.

JUDGE THOS. J. NUNN

Began His First Term As Chief Justice of The State.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept., 20.—In the presence of two hundred lawyers, women and laymen, the Court of Appeals began its fall term to-day in the splendid new courtroom in the new Capitol. Judge Thomas J. Nunn presided and began his term at Chief Justice of the State. He dropped into the harness of Chief Justice as naturally as if he had been doing that sort of work all his life. Besides, he looked the part, his square shoulders and fine features reminding one of the typical Chief Justices who always command the respect and admiration of the people.

Enjoyable affair.

In company with R. M. Franks we attended the barbecue at Emmaus on last Saturday, given by Prof. J. W. Rascoe, for the benefit of his school.

There was a goodly crowd present and altogether, we spent one of the most pleasant days of our life. There was an abundance of nicely barbecued meats and the nice things prepared by the ladies to make the meal complete, such as bread, pickles, coffee, cake and ice cream, added the finishing touches. Every body present seemed to enjoy the day and none more than the Editor and good Bro. Franks. One feature of the trip was that we found the roads in better condition than was expected and having heard the Crittenden county roads spoken of as "wretched," we were agreeably surprised. On our way we passed through the nice little town of Crayne and met while there, our old friend N. J. Bishop, who is Postmaster and proprietor of a general merchandise business, also noticed the vast amount of heading, logs and flourspar ready for shipment. At the barbecue grounds we were pleased to see quite a number of pretty women, girls and children and a creditable number of handsome men, and they were not candidates either. And last but by no means to be overlooked, was a number of fine horses and mules for which Crittenden county becoming noted. Among them, the fine span of horses driven by W. E. Asbridge. While there quite a number honored us with subscriptions for which we feel thankful and our whole effort will be to make it the best dollar they ever spent. To the good people of Emmaus we will say you made our trip a pleasant one and we are truly glad we were there.
