AFTER THE FAIR.

But Few Changes Have Yet Been Made.

THE SHOW STILL GOES ON.

Exhibitors in No Hurry to Get Away, Although Preparations Are Being Made to Move—Many Exhibitors Are Going to California—Items Picked Up at the White City.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Things were not noticeably disturbed at the world's fair yesterday. The exhibitors are not scrambling to get away. Preparations were going on in all buildings preparatory to moving, but so quietly that visitors were not annoyed. For the most part exhibits will stand in place until everything is in readiness to move them out. The track was laid to the transportation building and the locomotives, cars and heavy exhibits of that department will begin to roll out the latter end of this week.

The Plaisance people are hard to move. Nearly all of them are going to California, but as they are not obliged to be off the ground until the middle of December, they would be glad to linger here while there is another dollar in sight. Some of them say they are going to stay two weeks longer, but Director General Davis says they are not.

There was not a great crowd at the fair yesterday, but it was large enough to give the place the color of life. In fact it was a much bigger day than many of those of the early summer.

Buffalo Bill's warriors will go back to their fires on the Pine Ridge agency tomorrow. His cowboys will ride bronchos and throw their lassos in Texas and Mexico without an audience this winter. His Cossacks left for their homes in the vicinity of the Black sea yesterday. His troops of United States cavalry will return to their post, their furlough being ended, and the Germans, Russians and French will sail to Antwerp together Nov. 9. Colonel Cody is going to take a trip through the southwest as the guest of General Miles and Major Burke. The general manager of the big show will shortly leave for the eastern countries to gather his wild men for next year. During the past six months Buffalo Bill's show has played to nearly 8,000,000 people.

The men had their official closing Monday and the women of the fair had their turn yesterday. Their exercises were held in the women's building, all the distinguished ladies identified with the exposition being present. Mrs. Potter Palmer made the closing address.

The old liberty bell was started back to Philadelphia last night in charge of an escort. Before leaving the ground it was hauled up alongside the new liberty bell and the tongues of both were united by a cord of American silk. Then they were both sounded in unison.

E. Moody Boynton of New York and Massachusetts is working up a sentiment in favor of establishing a national academy of art, science and industry at Jackson park, providing the exposition will donate the buildings. He took his petition to the national commission yesterday and got a column of signatures to it.

Midway's dream of a new lease of life is shattered. Last night it closed absolutely. The executive committee of the fair ordered it closed and the director general promulgated the order. Jackson park, the world's fair grounds proper, will be open, but Midway never again. All gate entrances to the Plaisance will be closed, also the entrance to it from the grounds proper. Concessions can not continue business. From now on no one will even be allowed to walk through the famous grounds without a pass.

MUST BE SOMETHING IN IT.

That Reported Secret Treaty Between the United States and Brazil.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The Brazilian minister in this city in an interview regarding the alleged secret treaty said to have been arranged between the United States and Brazil in view of certain eventualities, is quoted as saying:

"I received a dispatch from my government, dated Rio Janeiro, Oct. 30, making a statement similar to the one cabled to the Associated Press. While it is possible that such a treaty in the general conception of the word does not exist, you can depend upon it that there is a good understanding between the two republics, and that the United States will not permit a restoration of the monarchy if it can prevent it. The American warships have not gone to Rio Janeiro for nothing."

Denied in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The story that the United States has entered into a secret treaty with the Brazilian government to support it in its present struggle against the revolutionists, is emphatically denied by the officials of the state department. The department also denies that the United States government is opposed to ships of other nations being sent to Brazil, and expresses the opinion that every foreign government sends ships there for the same reason the United States does—that is, to protect their own interests. In further support of the denial that a treaty has been entered into, the fact is stated a treaty would necessarily have been sent to the senate for ratification.

Bottle Factory in Operation.

GAS CITY, Ind., Nov. 1.—Thompson's green glass bottle factory has gone into operation, giving employment to a large force of men.

COULD NOT GET A JURY.

The Trial of a Sheriff Comes to an Abrupt Termination.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 1.—The trial of Sheriff A. J. McLenden, charged with failure to perform his duty in preventing the lynching of a negro rapist, who was taken from the county jail by a mob a few weeks ago, came to abrupt termination yesterday. Out of 300 talesmen who were examined only one juror was secured. Finding it impossible to secure a jury the state's attorney entered a nolle prosequi. The state and public feeling was illustrated by the examination of the first juror called, Mr. M. R. Mitchell, a prominent citizen of Collierville. In answer to the usual question, Mr. Mitchell replied:

"I have formed and expressed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant."

He was ordered aside. When leaving the stand, he said audibly and dramatically, "I would give Sheriff McLenden a gold medal for his conduct."

Judge Scruggs ordered Mitchell's arrest and assessed a $10 fine and 10 days' imprisonment in the county jail.

Other talesmen, while endorsing Mr. Mitchell's sentiments, were more cautious. The cases against several of the leaders of the mob were also withdrawn and the prisoners released.

SAVED FROM DEATH.

Mrs. Spearing Tried to Kill Herself and Her Children.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Paul Spearing, 39, attempted to end her existence and that of her two children by throwing herself and them in front of a southbound express train on the Reading railroad, at the Dauphin street crossing, this city.

The gateman and a spectator succeeded in rescuing the frenzied woman in time to save the lives of all, although she fought them desperately and denied their right to prevent her killing herself if she wished to do so. Her husband at the station house said that the woman had tried to kill herself twice before, taking these freaks when she was about to become a mother.

RAILROAD DISASTER.

An Open Switch Wrecks Three Trains and Kills Three Men.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 1.—A serious wreck occurred on the Norfolk Terminal road, near the Norfolk city streetcar stables. Cars were broken to pieces and thrown here and there, one engine badly wrecked and another in almost a shapeless mass. Three men were killed, others sent to the Retreat for the Sick.

An open switch wrecked three trains, one a coal train, stationary on a central track, the other two going in opposite directions on outside tracks. The engineer of the stationary coal train was buried under the wreck. A fireman and a negro received injuries from which they died.

Tremendous Explosion on Shipboard.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 1.—An explosion of coal gas occurred on the steam collier San Mateo Sunday night while bound from Comox to San Francisco. She carried 4,300 tons of coal consigned to the Southern Pacific company. The explosion was in the forward hold and drove the deckplates in shape of an arch four feet above the deck level in the center. The plates were badly shattered. After the explosion the steamer put in at Esquimalt, where a survey will be held. Oscar Anderson, a sailor, was thrown overboard by the force of the explosion, but was saved. James Anderson, another sailor, was badly wounded in the hand. A similar accident happened to the steamer Baraccous a few months ago.

Preparing For the Bell's Return.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—Great preparations are being made to receive the old liberty bell on its arrival here on Saturday next. There will be a monster parade in which all the military, headed by the governor, will join. The national guard of New Jersey will also be represented, city councils of Philadelphia and Trenton, 6,000 school children, many firemen's organizations and civic societies will be in line. It is proposed to make it the largest demonstration of late years.

Congressman Cummings Ill.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Representative Amos Cummings of New York was taken suddenly ill while in the bathroom in the basement of the Capitol shortly after the house adjourned yesterday evening. He had three congestive chills. The attendants carried him to his hotel adjoining the Capitol. A physician was summoned, but Mr. Cummings recovered rapidly and at midnight was reported as resting easily. No apprehensions are felt.

Had No Particulars.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Superintendent Flagg of the American Express company said that he received no particulars of the arrest of Gurney in New Orleans on the charge of stealing $23,000 from a money package. A dispatch announcing that the arrest had been made was all the information Mr. Flagg had on the subject.

Woman Killed by a Train.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Herselia Madora Scott, wife of Charles Scott of this city, was killed near Dorsey Run, west of Ellicott City, by a Baltimore and Ohio freight train. She was estranged from her husband and was thought to be insane.

Two Tramps Burned to Death.

AKRON, O., Nov. 1.—A large barn belonging to George A. Chandler, in Sharon, Medina county, burned. The remains of two men found in the ruins are supposed to be those of tramps, who, it is thought, are responsible for the fire.

CRANKS IN NEW YORK

Three of Them Suddenly Make Their Appearance.

THEY ALL DEMAND MONEY.

One of Them Wanted Superintendent Byrnes to Give Him One Hundred Thousand Dollars, Twenty-Five Thousand of It in Pennies.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The latest crank walked into police headquarters at 12:45 o'clock yesterday.

"I want to see the superintendent," he said to Sergeant Mangin, who holds the outside entrenchments of the forts. "He is very busy, won't I do?" said the sergeant.

"No, I am after the superintendent. I want the money he owes me. Why don't he pay it?"

"Oh," said the sergeant, catching on, "all right. Come right in," and he led the man into the superintendent's presence, taking good care to keep close at his elbow. Mangin has an eagle eye.

The superintendent looked up from behind his desk and took in the situation at a glance.

"What can I do for you?" he said. "You can pay me the money you owe me," said the fellow.

"Why don't you? I've waited long enough."

"Let me see, how much is it now," queried Mr. Byrnes, looking his visitor over with a searching glance. The fellow never flinched. He evidently knew his cause was just, and expected to see the superintendent come round.

"It's $75,000," he said. "I told Mrs. Bell to give them to you. You were one man in a thousand I picked out to keep the money for me; but now you've had it long enough. Two years is a long time. There is $25,000 interest on it now. I want it in pennies."

"Pennies are pretty scarce," ventured the superintendent, "but, maybe, we can manage it. Frank, you take this man into the detective's office and get him his $100,000. See that they get him the $25,000 in pennies and the rest in bills."

The sergeant and the crank walked over the bridge arm-in-arm. The crank is in an iron cell now, waiting to be paid. He put his name down in the book as Thomas Reilly, a painter by trade, 45 years old, and his home as 18 Pell street.

Another of the Same Sort.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Sergeant Fagin of the East Thirty-fifth street station was behind his desk at 11 o'clock yesterday, when a wild looking man entered and in a fierce voice demanded $5,000. The man, who was fairly well dressed, kept both hands in his overcoat pockets, and it looked as if a revolver might be exhibited at any moment.

Seeing that he had a crank of violent order to contend with, the Sergeant Fagin turned the matter aside by saying that he did not have quite so much money with him. He promised, however, that if the man would call again later in the day his demand would be satisfied.

The crank left after making a threat that unless the money was forthcoming on his return there would be trouble.

At exactly 12:30 the man again made his appearance and renewed his demand for $5,000. There was no one in the police station save the sergeant, and in order to gain time he invited the man into the waiting room. The two were talking business, the officer eying the man suspiciously all the time, when Patrolman John Rose returned from dinner.

"I owe this man $5,000," Fagin said, with a sigh of relief. "Officer, take him down to the bank and see that he gets it."

Rose realized the situation in a moment, and courteously invited the man out. The crank, who was overjoyed at the prospect of getting the money so easily, followed. They boarded a Fourth avenue car and he conversed quite rationally with the officer on the way uptown. As soon as he came in sight of the Yorkville police court, however, he realized that a trick had been played on him. He refused to enter the building and then a rough and tumble fight resulted, the policeman being victorious. The fellow was put in the prisoner's pen.

Still Another.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Harlem developed its crank last night. The crank stood on Harlem bridge, brandished a revolver and yelled, "Captain Brooks owes me $50,000 and I mean to have it. He borrowed it twelve years ago to speculate with."

There were a good many pedestrians on the Harlem bridge at the time and trolley cars filled with passengers. They heard the shouts and saw the revolver, became fearful and hurried out of the cars to huddle behind the butresses of the bridge and call on the police.

"Where's Captain Brooks?" yelled the crank.

No one answered, but several knew that the only Captain Brooks in that portion of the city was the chief executive officer of the Twenty-ninth precinct. Officer Doyle, whose post is on the bridge, hesitated for a moment when he first saw the crank. Then he employed strategy and managed to get behind the man who wanted the $50,000. He promised to take him to Captain Brooks if the crank would give up his revolver. The crank consented and was promptly arrested. He said his name was John O'Donnell and that he was 28 years old.

Mayor's Life Threatened.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1.—At a late hour yesterday evening Mayor Ferdinand C

Latrobe received an anonymous letter in which he was threatened with instant death if he failed to provide employment for the idle workmen of the city. The letter showed that the sender was well educated. The police are working on the case.

STONE'S THIRD CONFESSION.

He Implicates Other People Heretofore Not Mentioned.

WASHINGTON, Ind., Nov. 1.—It now turns out that the infamous liar and murderer of the Wratten family, Stone, who was brought from Jeffersonville Monday night to appear before the grand jury, stated that Charles S. McCafferty, whose wife is heir to the Wratten estate, and Robert Swanegan were among his accomplices in the brutal murder of the Wrattens on the night of Sept. 18.

It will be remembered that McCafferty was a son-in-law of old Mrs. Wratten and has been suspected for some time, but as there was no evidence against him, he was never arrested. Swanegan lives on an adjoining farm to the Wrattens' and formerly kept the city hotel in this city, and against whom nothing can be said regarding his past life. This makes eight men that Stone in his different confessions has accused of complicity in this murder.

Officer Cavanaugh brought Swanegan to the city yesterday afternoon, but as he was around the streets late in the evening it was presumed that nothing of importance was learned by the grand jury against him. For some reason not apparent, McCafferty was not brought in.

When Stone left in charge of Sheriff Leming to be returned to Jeffersonville, the people in this city had just begun to be aware of his presence, and about the time the train started to pull out crowds of men could be seen coming from all directions. Stone seemed very anxious that the train should start, and it was with a sigh of relief that the outskirts of the city were reached.

He did not want to be brought to this city at all, as he very much feared the people's vengeance.

Citizens who have known Stone all his life say that his lies are in keeping with the man's character, and are not surprised.

SENSATIONAL ARREST.

A Well Known Jeweler Charged With Receiving Stolen Goods.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—An arrest scarcely less sensational than that of Jeweler George Luce here last summer for conducting a fence, was made here yesterday. The prisoner is George C. Lesqueroux, son of F. A. Lesqueroux, the well known jeweler, and nephew of the well known geologist of the same name, who died recently.

The charge is that he has been receiving and concealing at his house, 725 South High street, goods stolen from cars by a gang of thieves. His barn was found full of such goods, the property of the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo Railroad company. He was given away, it is said, by one of the thieves who was apprehended last night.

Suicided in Jail.

SANDUSKY, O., Nov. 1.—Miss Edith Hastings, daughter of the late Wade G. Hastings, for many years prominent in business and politics here, suicided in jail. Miss Hastings recently created a sensation in New York city by robbing some lady acquaintances of a lot of valuable jewelry, and was tried, convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for five years, but through the intervention of friends she escaped imprisonment on the plea of insanity. Monday she was locked up in jail here on complaint of lunacy made by a relative. She managed somehow to get some laudanum, which she took, and when found was in a critical condition, and died a couple of hours later.

Prominent Priest Dead.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 1.—Very Rev. Father Sorin, superior general of the Order of the Holy Cross and founder of the University of Notre Dame, died at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at his residence, the presbytery near the Church of the Sacred Heart, at Notre Dame. His death was peaceful and came like sweet sleep. He was surrounded by his faithful priests and others of the community. Father Sorin had been in poor health for several years. His trouble gradually developed into Bright's disease and this with his extreme years caused his death.

It Is a Total Wreck.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—There is now very little hope entertained of getting the wrecked steamer City of New York off the rocks, where she ran last Thursday, while passing out the Golden Gate. Tenders found it dangerous to lay alongside and returned to the city, bringing the New York's crew along. It is thought that if the sea continues to rise, the deserted wreck will break up and sink within a few hours.

Tried to Lynch Him.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Nov. 1.—A party of coal miners was on the train with Stone, when he was returned here yesterday. They were very furious when they learned he was aboard. They made an attempt to get at him and hang him to a roadside tree but the sheriff was too courageous and thwarted the scheme. The miners were confined by a strategic movement to another car.

Railroad Completely Tied Up.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Nov. 1.—The Chicago and Southeastern railroad is tied up from end to end, not a wheel is moving along the entire length of the line. The last engine of the company was locked down at Lebanon yesterday by employees. There are five tied to the track at the latter place and one at Anderson.

HOUSE AND SENATE.

Proceedings of Both Branches of Congress.

SILVER REPEAL BILL POSTPONED

The House Will Not Take Up the Measure For Twenty-Four Hours—Some Debate Will Be Indulged In—A Number of Measures Acted on in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Public interest was transferred yesterday to the house end of the Capitol, where it was expected that the last act in the great financial drama that has been riveting the attention of the country on Washington for the past three months, would be enacted. But the crowds which surged into the galleries were doomed to disappointment. The silver men had discovered a parliamentary obstacle which would delay the doom of the white metal for 24 hours.

Fully 200 members were present when Speaker Crisp dropped the gavel, but not one-fifth of them knew of the sudden change in the situation. After the reading of the journal Mr. Cummings secured unanimous consent for consideration of the senate joint resolution transferring the model of the battleship Illinois at the world's fair to the city of Chicago. Without opposition it was agreed to.

At 12:50 Mr. Cox of North Carolina, the secretary of the senate, came into the house bearing in his arms the repeal bill. Mr. Livingston of Georgia, made an attempt to secure unanimous consent to proceed with the consideration of the repeal bill. His proposition was that the house agree to consider the bill for the remainder of the afternoon and Wednesday until 5 o'clock when the previous question be considered as ordered on the bill and pending amendments.

Mr. Bland made a vehement protest and said the bill should take its course like any other bill and come up regularly under the rules. "Many members want to be heard and I, for one, object."

An so the first attempt to reach an agreement in the house failed.

Mr. McMillin, from the committee on ways and means, then called up the bill to remit the duties on the ammunition imported for the use of the navy during the trouble between the United States and Chili, which, after a short discussion, was passed.

Debate on the bankruptcy bill was then resumed. Mr. Wolverton of Pennsylvania spoke in support of the bill. Mr. Cockran of New York, from the committee on ways and means, presented a favorable report on the bill for the aid of the world's fair prize winners' exposition to be held in New York city. Then, at 5:17 p. m., the house adjourned.

In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The senate opened with prayer for the first time since the 17th day of October. The attendance of senators was not large, and there were only a few people scattered through the galleries.

Mr. Pugh, from the committee on judiciary, called up the house bill providing for the time and place of holding circuit and district courts in South Dakota. The committee reported certain amendments to the bill, and as amended the bill was passed.

Mr. Waltham, from the committee on public lands, reported the senate bill extending the time for final payments on desert land entries. The committee amended the bill so as to extend the time of payment for one year instead of three and to make it apply only to entrymen who were unable to pay. As amended the bill was passed.

A resolution authorizing the committee on agriculture and forestry to continue during the recess the investigation into the state of agriculture, authorized by resolutions of April 19, 1892, and March 3, 1893, was agreed to.

The New York and New Jersey bridge bill was taken up, and the remainder of the day's session was almost consumed with debate on the measure.

The senate at 4:30 p. m. went into executive session after which it adjourned.

CRANK PRENDERGAST.

He Writes a Card to Secretary Carlisle on the Financial Question.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Secretary Carlisle's private secretary was looking over Mr. Carlisle's mail yesterday afternoon, he was much surprised to pick up a postal card signed by Patrick Prendergast, the assassin of Mayor Harrison of Chicago. The writing on the card, which was postmarked Chicago, was in lead pencil, and at the head of the card on either side was drawn the figure of a simple cross. The writing on the card reads as follows:

MY DEAR SIR—Regards, respects and compliments to you. I think the best way for the president to overcome his present difficulty is for him to issue bonds. There can be no doubt as to the power and authority of the government to do so. Sincerely, P. E. PRENDERGAST.

The card was turned over to Mr. Huntington, chief of the loans and currency division, for preservation.

Banks to Resume.

MUNCIE, Ind., Nov. 1.—A dispatch from President Kenwood, who is in Washington adjusting the affairs of the Citizens' National bank of Muncie, says that everything has been satisfactorily arranged and that the bank will resume operations in a very few days.

Heavily Dosed.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Nov. 1.—Walter McGrail was fined $200 and given six months in jail for assaulting Ambrose Dillman.
