JOHN P. BARRETT & Co., Publishers. HARTFORD, OHIO COUNTY, KY. WEDNESDAY, OCT. 27, 1875.

THE FRANKFORT TRAGEDY.

A Lexington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial furnishes that paper with a history of the murder of SOLOMON P. SHARP by JEREBAM O. BEAUCHAMPE, at Frankfort, on the night of November 6, 1875.

He had, among other serious offenses against decency, wrought the ruin—and promise of marriage—of a young lady of good family in Lincoln county, named ANN ELIZA COOK.

LETTER FROM AN EGYPTIAN.

FRIEND MEHEMIT.—Education although very young in this country, is making rapid strides toward civilizing the lower classes.

LETTER FROM DIXON.

DIXON, KY., Oct. 17. EDITOR HERALD:—Seeing in the last issue of the HERALD, that you have added to your list a few correspondents from other portions of the State, and that you desired to increase the list, I have decided to give you an occasional sketch from this part of the State.

LETTER FROM FORDSVILLE.

FORDSVILLE, KY., Oct. 23. EDITOR HERALD:—It has been some time since I undertook to write anything from this part of the moral vineyard.

blows upon the back and shoulders. He then turned upon his heel, left the hotel, and went to the house where he had stopped.

He had been there but a short time, when he received a letter from Frankfort, written by a friend, wherein he was informed that SHARP was repeating his foul slander, and claiming that the retraction was coerced from him by an armed and desperate man at a time when he was unarmed and unable to defend himself.

It was a foolish, yet an insane thought that prompted him to disguise himself, by blacking himself like a negro, and wearing old and ragged clothes in keeping with the character he assumed, and waiting until the town was quiet, and then decaying his victim to the door, smite him with his dagger to the death.

He had, among other serious offenses against decency, wrought the ruin—and promise of marriage—of a young lady of good family in Lincoln county, named ANN ELIZA COOK.

There are other evils tolerated in the community, but I will pass them over as being too numerous to record, and go on to the social state of this strange people.

I heard so much talk when I first arrived here of freedom, equality, and rights of man, that I actually began to think I had of a verity arrived in the paradise of earthly perfection.

Society is about the same here as in any other country, and instead of every man being on a footing of equality, I find their exists as many different casts among those free American citizens as you can find amongst the natives of Hindoostan.

Very little business was done in town last week, owing to the fact that most of our citizens were in attendance at Quarterly court, one half of the town was trying to make the other pay another man's debts, but the would-be force party had to pay the costs.

What has become of "R" did spelling "vocabulary of language" choke him, or has he got the "shakes"?

At the same time the warmest sympathy for Mr. Davis was clearly manifest in every countenance.

Mr. Vaughn will continue the stage twice a day between Hartford and Beaver Dam, morning and evening, connecting with all passenger trains on the L. P. & Southwestern railroad.

There is much complaint from the mining companies that they cannot get half enough cars to ship the coal they sell; it is to be hoped speedy arrangements will be perfected to supply the demand.
