Hitting the ball when hits meant runs, and taking advantage of errors and slow fielding by the Methodists, the Baptist boys again took the measure of the boys from Rev. Gunn's church.

Young Flanders, pitching for the Methodists, was given a rest after the third inning and Bob Magee went in the box. L. Boyd struck out, but Bob walked McDaniel and Lambright, after which J. Bailey hit a long fly that, by slow fielding, was allowed to go for a two-bagger and two runs resulted.

The prize hit came in the eighth inning in the shape of a home run by "Babe" (Ruth) Lee with Lambright and Bailey on base. It was a beautiful smash and cleared the high screen in left field.
