Not Nocturnal Habilitments.

Our confreres of the country press have gotten into their heads that the silk robes of office which the judges of the Supreme Court are to don in a few days are night gowns.

The Review Blade of Marksville says:
"It does look supremely ridiculous for a big grown up man trudging along wearing the legitimate apparel of women."

Now if Editors Gremlion and Lafargue could see our distinguished fellow citizen Mr. Justice E. D. White with his black silk robes, they would find nothing comical or effeminate to find fault with.
They are not for street wear either. While occupying the bench, the grave and dignified judges have black silk robes thrown over their shoulders and they are merely sombre badges of office.—Baton Rouge Advocate.

Butter Milk.

And How It Is Transformed Into Buttons and Glue

The most malignant opponents of trusts can scarcely take exception to the one which in the last ten years has developed the case in industry of this country into one of the best investments for both the farmer and the manufacturer. It is not so long ago that buttermilk was such a drug on the market that it was regarded as a food for pigs or as a waste substance to be thrown away. This has been changed, and, where formerly the dairyman obtained nothing for the liquid, he now converts it into casein, either in his own dairy or in a factory owned by the Casein Trust. Casein is an albuminose substance, best known to the average citizen in the form of cheese. It contains as much nitrogen as meat, more than eggs, and much more than fish. Its food value is therefore very high. Thus far this feature has not been utilized in the United States, all of our own casein being used for other industries, but vast quantities go to France and Germany, where they are transformed into artificial foods. The manufacture is now up in the millions of pounds, and is increasing annually. Some is converted into buttons. This is done by mixing the casein with fine clay and other inorganic materials made into a paste, rolled, stamped and baked. It makes a light, glossy and handsome button, and is much stronger than the one made of chinaware alone. In the matter of small buttons and studs it can be made iridescent or colored to suit the public fancy.

Thus far in our own land casein has been put to low utilitarian purposes. By chemical treatment it is changed into a very strong glue, which is used in making veneers. Several great cooperages out West now make barrel heads of these veneers and save one or two pounds of weight, and at the same time get a stronger and handsomer barrel head. These veneers are also employed for chair seats, car seats, sounding boards and piano cases. A second use is as a constituent of paper pulp. Casein is snow white, and, when mixed with wood pulp, straw pulp and similar bodies, gives a whiter and clearer product, and also one that is less brittle and more durable. This mixed pulp is made into paper for newspapers, writing paper, wall paper and paper boxes. The white boxes which the more enterprising shoe dealers and department stores now effect are results of this industry.

Casein mingled with lime makes a liquid covering intermediate between whitewash and paint, which possesses a handsome gloss, and is very much cheaper than the latter. The lime reacts upon it and makes it both waterproof and, to a certain extent, fireproof. As a finish for fine leather goods it is now employed in at least 50 of the leading works of this country. It is particularly adapted for fine kids, goat skins, dog skins, cat and sheep skins. It is also used as a finish for the outside of lead pencils, penholders and other wooden wares.—New York Evening Post.

A Te Deum was sung at the St. Joseph's church of Thibodaux on New Year's eve, at 4 past 4 o'clock P. M. to which we had the privilege of attending. The Rev. Fathers Dubourg, Ravoir and Simon officiated. Owing to the unpropitious weather, the attendance was small.

Mary Louisa Schwartz aged 18 months the only daughter of Martin Schwartz and Leonora Aucoin, died last Thursday Dec. 27th at 12:30 o'clock. Her death was caused by lockjaw brought on by what at the time seemed to be only a slight injury. Her remains were interred in the St. Joseph's Catholic Cemetery. The Sentinel extends sincere sympathy to the bereaved parents.

What is Missed.

The man who advertises only once in a while does not get the full value of his advertising. Neither he nor his business ever benefits from the cumulative value of publicity. His each announcement may bear some fruit in proportion to its individual value, but one absorbs nothing of the good wrought by the other. His firm name is not kept constantly before the people. It is not unremittently impressed upon consumers. Hence he is in a measure a new advertiser every time he advertises.—Dry Goods Economist.

QUESTIONS FOR WOMEN

Are you nervous?
Are you completely exhausted?
Do you suffer every month?
If you answer "yes" to any of these questions, you have the which Wine of Cardui can cure. Do you appreciate what perfect health would be to you? After taking Wine of Cardui, thousands like you have realized it. Nervous strain, loss of sleep, cold or indigestion starts menstrual disorders that are not noticeable at first, but day by day steadily grow into troublesome complications. Wine of Cardui, used just before the menstrual period, will keep the female system in perfect condition. This medicine is taken quietly at home. There is nothing like it to help women enjoy good health. It costs only $1 to test this remedy, which is endorsed by 1,000,000 cured women. Mrs. Lena T. Friesburg, East St. Louis, Ill., says: "I am physically a new woman, by reason of my use of Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Blood Purifier." In cases requiring special directions, address giving physicians, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

which fact is much to be regretted as the beautiful hymn composed by Saint Ambrose and St. Augustine is one of the grandest in the Catholic liturgy and is heard on rare occasions only.

Although New Year's day opened also under conditions very unfavorable to pedestrians, there was quite a number of persons at high Mass. The St. Joseph Choir on this occasion really outdid itself, which is saying a great deal. The singers were in full accord with the grandeur of the occasion. At the Elevation, the tones of the organ rolled into a beautiful anthem of joy to herald the coming of the King, and the advent of another century. The "Adeste" of Miss Pauline Chol was as sweetly and as fervently sung as it is the custom with that gifted singer. The skilful organist and his choir deserve the thanks of the congregation.
